WEDDINGS AND TEAS HELP BUSINESS.

There was a fair demand for flowers the past week, weddings and the coming out teas of the "society buds" drawing largely on the supply, particularly of the good stock. Quite heavy frosts on Wednesday and Saturday very nearly settled the dahlias, but there are still a few from growers who had them in a measure protected; the white are bringing good money, as all kinds of small flowers for ground-work are scarce. Roses are the most plentiful flowers in the market. The stock is improving rapidly and most of the varieties can be had with 24 to 30-inch stems and some longer. American Beauties are in tip-top shape, all grades up to the four-foot specials. Chrysanthemums are now beginning to rule the market; they have been a bit slow coming in, but are now seen in quantity. Yellow Queen, a new and fine golden yellow, is here for the first time. It looks good. Chrysolora, Tint of Gold, Early Frost, Pacific Supreme, Halliday and Polly Rose are leaders. There is plenty of lily of the valley. Easter lilies are a little behind the demand. Cattleyas are about equal to requirements. A few oncidiums and cyripidiums are picked up quickly. Some very good sweet peas are seen, orchids and grandifloras, and they sell very well. Adiantum and asparagus are in fair supply, but a brisk demand carries this class of stock away at good prices. Violets are improving and there are gardenias in limited quantities.

NOTES.

If the bituminous coal situation does not soon clear up those who have not stocked up will be greatly inconvenienced. Coal at the mines is now quoted at twice the price of last season, while freight rates are also higher. In addition, there is no promise of early delivery owing to the scarcity both of labor and cars.

J. Otto Thilow was a busy man October 12, when he delivered his lecture on "Flowers from Snow to Snow" at Lancaster in the afternoon, and in the evening told the Florists' Club of Lancaster of the wonders of the Canadian Rockies. Both lectures were illustrated.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. is proud of their Russell and Francis Scott Key roses. The plant department is very busy, while Manager Swan of the ribbons reports they cannot get stock fast enough to keep up with the orders.

Edward Reid is back from his western trip looking as brown as a berry. He reported great activity in all lines of business. Cattleyas, lily of the valley and Kaiserin roses and good smilax are head-liners of a varied stock.

Killarneys in all grades in fine color are the quantity rose with the Jos. Heacock Co. Kentias in all sizes are being shipped in quantity, they recommending delivery before danger of frost. The stock is very fine.

The Robert Craig Co. has just received their Christmas plant baskets. They are exceptionally well selected, and when filled will brighten the stock of many retail stores. Business in all their lines is very brisk.

With the strike over, the whole machinery of the Whilldin Pottery Co. is running at top speed, turning out thousands of pots a day. Business is very good, the demand more than keeping pace with the supply.

Walter L. Sabers has opened a nice shop at 3606 Germantown avenue; it is in a new building, with the finishing touches now being applied. Mr. Sabers has experience and energy plus, and should do well.

This city is to have several new flower shops. The Poryles Flower Co. will open at the old stand in the basement at Fifteenth and Chestnut streets. This is now being remodeled and improved.

On every floor of the Bayersdorfer building are seen salesmen with sheafs of orders picking out the goods for all parts of the country. Stephen Green has just returned from a successful trip east.

Fred Chesky, of Churchtown, had the misfortune to break his arm while pumping up a tire, forcing of the ring with such force as to cause the fracture. His stock is doing well this season.

The H. F. Michell Co., Inc., are having a great run on florists' bulbs. Narcissus Paper Whites and Easter lilies are going out daily in large quantities.

The Glory fern as seen with H. A. Dreer, Inc., is a great seller. It is fine for basket work, particularly in the three and four-inch sizes.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. has added another Ford to its delivery system. High grade chrysanthemums are a feature here.

J. M. Harley, of Media, Pa., added two houses, 12x125 feet, the past summer. He is kept busy with wedding and funeral work.

Berger Brothers are handling quantities of Chrysanthemum Tint of Gold. Fine Maryland roses and Easter lilies are also features.

W. P. Craig attended the session of the National Flower Show Committee at St. Louis.

BUSINESS IS DISAPPOINTING.

The business of the past week was very light, particularly when we consider that this is the season when it is expected to improve. American Beauties, lilies and lily of the valley held up fairly well because there was no surplus, but in orchids, the tea roses, chrysanthemums, carnations and violets there was a marked slowness. The chrysanthemums are now arriving quite freely, though these are but the forerunners of what is to come, so it is sincerely to be hoped that business will soon improve. There are good carnations on the market, for the season, but they were slow during the past week. As for violets, not much can be expected of them, while cattleyas are selling at from 10 to 20 cents each, wholesale rates, and further, the violets are poor, the doubles being scarcely passable for funeral work, which is mostly where they are being used, if used at all. There are various opinions as to the cause of light business. The autumn has been warm which keeps the people away from the city; and again, the old bugbear of a "presidential year" is being flashed on the screen, but be that as it may, very few people seem to be greatly interested in politics.

October 16.—The market continues dull, with stock moving slowly. The supply of chrysanthemums has greatly increased, one feature being the large stock of Unaka, which is a failure so far as this market is concerned. It opens up with a yellow heart, not as good a yellow as the heart of a daisy, and furthermore, the pink of its petals fade. There are Unakas on the market that are not worth $3 per 100. A part of the Chrysoloras are good, but some of it is poor. There is fair stock of other varieties on the market.

NOTES.

Myer, of Madison avenue and 58th street, went to Hot Springs, Va., October 17, taking four of his men to arrange an elaborate decoration for the wedding of Miss Prudence Sterry, daughter of the manager of the Hotel Plaza in this city, to Mr. Smith, of Providence, R. I. The wedding takes place October 21 and they began decorating on the 18th, southern smilax and many American Beauties, yellow chrysanthemums and lilies of the valley being used. The bridal bouquet was of orange blossoms and lily of the valley. There were eight bridesmaids' bouquets of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses, and boutonnieres of gardenias for eight ushers. The "Pillars," Hot Springs, is the winter home of the Sterry family. Henry Luhrs, of Myer's staff, superintended the decorations.

Secretary John Young of the S. A. F. has just returned from Chicago and St. Louis, having attended the convention of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery in the former, and the meeting of the National Flower Show Committee in the latter city. He is very enthusiastic over the hospitality and enthusiasm of the florists of both cities. The next National Flower Show, as will be elsewhere noted, will be held in St. Louis in 1918 and Secretary Young states that there is abundant evidence already at hand to forecast it as a great success.

The George W. Crawbuck Co., Inc., which, since early in the season, has conducted a wholesale business at 57 West 28th street, have found that store too small for their growing business. They have therefore leased the store at 47 West 28th street and will remove about November 1. This gives the Crawbuck Co. a very fine store in a desirable location.

Max Schling has returned from Chicago, where he attended the meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery. He speaks highly of the meeting and of the assembled florists; also of Chicago, and his only regret was that business engagements compelled him to make so brief a stay.

Charles H. Brown, the retailer, of 2366 Broadway, has just returned from Chicago, where he attended the meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, and was much pleased with results and with the reception accorded the delegates by Chicago florists.

President D. J. Pappas of the United Cut Flower Co. has sold his interest in the retail store at 2751 Broadway and will hereafter devote his entire attention to the United Cut Flower Co., Inc., 111 West 28th street, which is a wholesale enterprise.

At the store of C. A. Dards, Madison avenue and 44th street, we have recently noticed a very elaborate window decoration of orchids, chrysanthemums and other flowers, flanked with

ARNOLD BOXES ARE BEST

Leading Retail Florists Everywhere Say So.

Many Chicago florists use no other kind as they have found from experience that Arnold Boxes suit their purpose best and are the most reasonable in price, taking quality into consideration.

A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co., 1302-1308 W. Division St., CHICAGO, - ILLINOIS.

Arthur M. Clarke, a son of Marshall Clarke, of the retail firm of David Clarke's Sons, 2139 Broadway, has just returned from McAllen, Tex., where he went as a sergeant of the Seventh New York infantry which has been stationed there for several months. He is not much in love with the kind of soldiering experienced on the border, and comes back to civil life as the buyer for the store.

Calling, October 14, on the Astoria Florist (M. L. Vlachos), 2188 Broadway, we found his force busy with a fine wedding decoration. In Walter Lee he has a very clever designer and decorator. A brother is also assisting him in the store. Mrs. Vlachos has been quite ill, but is now improving.

E. J. Hession, the retailer of 984 Madison avenue, has returned from his vacation in fine health and spirits. His store, which is one of the finest in the city, is now particularly attractive.

E. C. Horan, 55 West 28th street, is having fine new signs put up on his store. It is a pleasure to state that he has quite recovered his health, which for a time was delicate.

Peter F. McKenney, 1 East 42nd street, had a wedding decoration at Whitman, Mass., October 14, and has also been busy with funeral work.

George C. Siebrecht, the wholesaler of 109 West 28th street, has recently added a fine line of fancy baskets to his stock and they are selling well.

James Marketos has sold his store (The Colonial Flower Shop) 2251 Broadway, to Macres Bros. A. F. F.

Rochester, N. Y.

FAVORABLE WEATHER HELPS SALES.

Trade has been good during the past week following crisp weather. Fall bulbs have arrived and are moving well. The carnation crop has greatly improved and the blooms are much larger with longer stems. The white varieties are the best followed by Enchantress. Chrysanthemums are arriving in larger numbers, are excellent in quality and meet with ready sale. The demand for roses is strong but the supply is limited on choice varieties. American Beauty is good and the price is low. There is a strong call for Harrisii lilies and orchids and lily of the valley sell well for corsages and bridal work. Pot plants move readily.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meetings of the florist association was held October 10 in the Chamber of Commerce building, the feature of the evening being an interesting lecture illustrated with stereopticon slides by John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of city parks. He spoke of important trees and plants in all parts of the world, among the subjects covered being the mangosteen, akee, soursop, Negro peach and mango; also a number of plants that are sources of important drugs and the iron nut from which are manufactured buttons for men's clothing, the various operations being shown.

NOTES.

Edwin C. Kaelber had an artistic window display recently in which he featured a large vase of splendid white chrysanthemums, green plush being used in contrast. Individual vases held long-stemmed single violets on gilt mats. The combination was charming.

Donald Brooks, who was run down by an ambulance while alighting from a street car October 5, has returned to work after being compelled to rest up for several days.

T. Colin Ogston, in charge of the Thompson conservatories, has produced some excellent cattleya orchids. His collection is wonderful.

The ladies' auxiliary of the florists' association enjoyed a bowling party October 12 followed by a luncheon.

CHESTER.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Trade has been very good during the past two weeks, weddings being numerous, funeral work much in demand, and excellent shipping business. Chrysanthemums are now the feature of the market. Pompons are making their appearance. Pot plants are also selling well.

NOTES.

Mrs. Alice Flick Shive and Miss Marguerite Flick arranged an elaborate decoration at Huntington, Ind., last week, the occasion being a large wedding.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are rebuilding several houses at their range.
H. K.

CORFU, N. Y.—Wendelin Preisach is making improvements at his range, which will include rebuilding one house, 38x100 feet.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Up-to-date houses have replaced the old ones at the range of Hugh Morgan and other extensive improvements have been made.

SATISFACTORY TRADE AT GOOD PRICES.

Business during the past week has been good with prices entirely satisfactory. Asters are still finding their way into the market and command good figures. Roses are not as plentiful as they have been and the demand for them is very good. The last of the gladioli and other outdoor flowers were seen last week, the heavy frosts having killed them. Funeral work holds up well and there are plenty of wedding orders.

The Cassidy Co. has opened its new store in the Strand Theater building and the establishment presents a very attractive appearance. The handsome display window is also a feature that adds to the general good impression the whole presents.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

VISITED CHICAGO: Watson S. Woodruff and wife, Orange, Conn., enroute to the coast.

AMERICAN grown Queen of the Market aster is one of the unusually short items this season.

F. M. SMITH, western agent of the Huntley Mfg. Co., Silver Creek, N. Y., died at Chicago, October 5.

HARRISBURG, PA.—The Holmes Seed Co. reports good business. Bulbs, although late in arriving, are now seen in quantity.—W. S. Schell reports the best season in a number of years.

THE entire board of directors attended the meeting of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League at the Hardware Club, New York, October 17. After an extended discussion it was believed that prices will be higher.

CALIFORNIA rains reported in last issue were followed by additional storms which have done considerable injury to flower seeds still unharvested, especially the late varieties of asters. Beans have also suffered materially.

DETROIT, MICH.—President Kirby B. White, of the American Seed Trade Association, attended the meeting of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League at New York October 17.—Lem W. Bowen, manager of D. M. Ferry & Co., motored to New York last week.

A LEADING Dutch grower writes from Sassenheim September 15: "Many bulb prices were so low the past three years the growers could not make a living and have substituted vegetables. Except some inferior stock no bulbs will be sent to the states for auction."

TOULON, FRANCE.—This town, formerly known as headquarters for bulb growing, is now in the ammunition-making business, and that has become its chief industry. Because of this car service is short, for bulb business, and this in addition to labor shortage accounts for the delay this year.

WETHERSFIELD, CONN.—The partnership which was formed in 1894 by Chas. C. Hart and J. Frank Welles as Hart, Welles & Co., has been dissolved by mutual consent. Chas. C. Hart, who has taken his three sons, William G., Frank S. and Everett H., into partnership, will continue the business, trading as Charles C. Hart Seed Co.

Burpee's Sweet Peas.

The varieties given prominence in Burpee's list of sweet peas for 1917 are Fiery Cross (scarlet), Margaret Atlee (cream-pink), King White (white), Cherub (cream), The President (scarlet), Hilary Christie (salmon-orange edged with fiery orange-scarlet), Wedgwood (blue) and Phantom Blue (opalescent blue, marvelously blended with a tinge of delicate purple).

FT. WAYNE, IND.—Chas. S. Bash, of S. Bash & Co., seedsmen here, died September 24.

WATKINS & SIMPSON, London, Eng., have issued an extensive list of novelties, among which we find antirrhinums, Chinese barberries, carnations, Cineraria Matchless, eremuri, escholtzias, Godetia Schamini "Rosy Morn," heucheras, Pansy Apricot Queen, sweet peas, primulas, Delphinium Blue Butterfly and early flowering cosmos, the colors running through crimson, deep rose, pale rose and blush to white.

Holly and Green.

The holly situation in Tennessee is said to be below the average. Breakers are urging contracts based on shipments from Mississippi or Arkansas. Aside from the question of quality this would mean a 50 per cent freight increase. Frosts have not yet hardened the foliage for shipping.

Bouquet green in the northwestern districts will cost 50 cents per 100 pounds more because of advance in wages. Freezing weather has, during the past week, put the ground pine in better shape for pulling. While active work has only begun the output can be told more definitely by November 5-10.

Record Crop of Canary Island Onion Seed.

Teneriffe, August 31.—The single outstanding export of the Canary Islands to the United States, onion seed, closed down its shipping season for the year 1916 on August 28, showing a record exportation for cebollino reaching to $84,314, as compared with only $41,801 for 1915 and $45,841 in 1914. While a slight increase in the value of the crop was indicated in the July forecast, the gain of over 100 per cent was a surprise even to dealers here, who found it impossible to supply the entire demand from the United States for the ordinary, canary-yellow onion seed. On the other hand, the usually scarcer and more expensive wax seed gave an extra heavy crop.

The showing made by American purchases of onion seed has had a most stimulating effect on the industry in these islands, and heavy planting may be expected for the 1917 crop, judging from the plans now talked of by the more important growers here. With even average growing conditions this circumstance may succeed in reducing prices for next year below the high level obtained for the 1916 output.

The value of the onions shipped to Porto Rico was $1,189 less than in the preceding year, being $12,245, as against $13,435 for 1915 and only $7,963 in 1914.

Western Canners' Association.

The Western Canners' Association held its semi-annual meeting at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Tuesday, October 17, President F. F. Wiley in the chair. Over 100 members were present and the burden of the meeting, called to order at 11:20 a. m., was the cost of the 1917 pack and practically all the members present took part in the discussion of each item, lasting all afternoon, including President Dickinson, of the National Canners' Association, Walter Sears, president of the Sears-Nichols Canning Co., Chillicothe, O., and W. W. Moore, president of the Illinois Canning Co. The discussion disclosed the fact that the cost of the 1917 pack would be 21½ cents per dozen cans or 43 cents per case greater than that of 1916. The meeting, which closed at 6 p. m., was adjourned subject to the call of the executive committee.

Seedsmen in attendance included: S. F. Leonard, Edward Leonard, John Leonard and Albert H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Leonard H. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago; W. B. Lucas, of the John H. Allan Seed Co., Sheboygan, Wis.; Theo. Cobb, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; Watson S. Woodruff, Orange, Conn.; W. C. Langbridge and Chas. P. Guelph of the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; S. E. Mathers, of the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Green Bay, Wis., and W. C. Pressing, Norwalk, O.

Alaskas sold at $3 to $6 and many of those who failed to contract last year are anxious about their supply of seed. Some sales of sweet corn are reported as high as $8 and talk is in the line of higher prices for all canning varieties.

American Onion Seed for Bermuda.

Orders from Bermuda for several hundred pounds of California onion seed as the result of sending last season two pounds of sample seed to Consul Carl R. Loop, of Hamilton, are reported by the Los Angeles growers. The same firm supplied, free of charge, onion seed for the use of the Bermuda experiment station.

National Canners' Association.

Various committees of the National Canners' Association are in session this week at the LaSalle Hotel, Chicago, adjusting prices and arranging the programme for the annual convention to be held at Cleveland, O., next February with the Hotel Statler as headquarters.

BULLETIN No. 422, entitled "The Egg-plant Tortoise Beetle," issued by the United States department of agriculture, treats of observations of the insect concerning its life history, distribution, enemies and methods of control.

UNDER title of "Systems of Renting Truck Farms in Southwestern New Jersey" the United States department of agriculture in Bulletin No. 745 makes a comparative analysis of the methods of renting in vogue in that area.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—Mushrooms, home grown, 15 to 25 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 10 cents; radishes, $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, 40 to 50 cents per box; tomatoes, six baskets, 50 cents to 75 cents; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $1.75.

New York, Oct. 17.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $1.75 per basket; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.00 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, per package, 25 cents to $1.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.50.

Potato Shippers Guilty.

Five members of the Aroostook (Me.) Potato Shippers' Association, who were brought to trial at Boston, Mass., October 3, following a charge of conspiracy to restrain trade, as announced in our issue of October 14, page 690, were found guilty under the Sherman act, October 11. Those implicated are Carl C. King, president of the association; John M. Hovey, secretary; Clarence H. Powers, member of so-called listing committee; E. H. Doyle, New York agent, and H. W. Sylvester, Boston agent. It was alleged they blacklisted dealers and boycotted persons who traded with the blacklisted ones.

Onion Rot.

According to the annual report of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station for 1915, onions rotted badly after storage that year, growers in some instances losing from one-half to three-quarters of the crop. While the botrytis was partly responsible for the rot there were cases where a fusarium fungus was the chief cause, producing a wetter rot than the former. The botrytis seems to work down between the layers, often rotting one or more so that the inside easily slips out of the outer healthy layers. The wet summer season was apparently the chief factor in the development of the trouble. It is probable that most of the bulbs went into storage already infected although showing little or no sign of decay at the time.

Harrisburg, Pa.

The capital city of Pennsylvania is a very busy place when the legislature is in session and there is enough vim in the 100,000 inhabitants to keep things moving right along between times. The flower trade is not as numerically strong as one would expect to find in a city of this size, there being no large growers, almost all the cut flowers coming from Philadelphia and other large cities of the state.

The House of Flowers (Chas. Uttley, proprietor), 321 Walnut street, is very much up-to-date in its appointments. A splendid stock of all the best flowers is carried, which are artistically displayed in baskets and large vases about the store and in the handsome window. A large work room off the store in the rear was presided over by Miss Uttley, who has great ability as a designer. A large electric sign outside was an attractive feature. Boxes of ivy and pyramid box trees were also features of the front. Mr. Uttley expects to occupy a much larger and corner store next his present location, a part of a large hotel, which will include his present shop. He expects to open the season there early next fall.

The Bouquet Shop at 311 Walnut street is very neat and beautiful in its blue and gold decorations. Gilded grape leaves and vines with bunches of grapes, cover much of the wood work and ceiling, producing a very delicate decorative effect. Standing about in vases and baskets were quantities of seasonable flowers. In the rear the work room opened off the store. The roomy appearance of the shop was very attractive and calculated to make a good impression on the high class trade that was being catered to. Mrs. Hildebrand, wife of the proprietor, is the artist and is also very well versed in the art of selling.

Charles L. Schmidt, 313 Market street, right in the heart of the retail district, has a very attractive entrance in his decorated lattice work vestibule leading to his store proper and greenhouse in the rear. Mr. Schmidt says that special sales and week end offerings at moderate prices are great factors in his business. Sweet peas and violets, when they can be had in quantity, also roses and carnations that can be offered at 49 cents a bunch or dozen, sell quickly and in large quantities. Business has opened up very well and he anticipates a good season.

The Berry Hill Nursery Co., on Locust, above Second street, had a very prettily arranged shop with its specimen evergreens in front. Orange dahlias and marigolds, tastefully arranged in a large basket, with a two-toned orange ribbon, was a feature in the store. Miss Roop, formerly of Williamsport, is the decorator and in charge of the store. At their nurseries in the suburbs, a fine line of trees and all kinds of shrubbery were in stock for their landscape department, which now has its hands full with work to be done before winter sets in.

At the capitol park greenhouses, the superintendent, John Logan, reports the squirrels have played "hob" with his large latanias when out in the grounds, eating out the new leaves as they came up. A new range of glass of most up-to-date and imposing appearance, will shortly be erected on new park ground recently acquired opposite the capitol.

J. D. Brenneman has a conspicuous corner at Second and Locust streets, with the large window filled with plants and vases of chrysanthemums.

The new Cumberland Flower shop has opened at 809 North Third street. It is well fitted up and is making a good bid for business.

L. K. Longnecker, 804 North Third street, is kept busy with funeral work. He also handles a fine line of foliage and flowering plants. K.

Westchester and Fairfield Society.

A large attendance and an exceptionally fine display on the exhibition tables characterized the monthly meeting of the above society, held in its rooms in Hubbard hall, Greenwich, Conn., October 13, President Sealey in the chair. Four new members were enrolled and one application received and filed. The committee in charge of plans for the fall show reported everything in readiness for the exhibition, which will be held October 31-November 1. A fine schedule with awards in 121 classes has been prepared and is ready for distribution, the prizes consisting of cash, cups, silverware and cut glass.

J. H. Troy of New Rochelle, N. Y., and F. E. Conine of Stratford, Conn., were visitors and addressed the meeting briefly. The following awards were made: Well grown vase of bouvardia in variety—cultural certificate to Wm. Graham. Carnations—high commendation to Robert Grunnert. Roses in variety—high commendation to Anthon Pederson. A vote of thanks was extended to the last named for a display of carnations, petunias and a box of grapes. P. W. Popp was highly commended for a display of gladioli, a certificate of merit having been previously awarded. The next meeting will be held November 10, at which time nominations for officers for the ensuing year will be in order.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

NEW YORK.—Lewis & Valentine, nurserymen, 150 Nassau street, will open a branch at White Plains in addition to the establishments now operated at Roslyn and East Rockaway.

THE Chicago Co-operative League, through the courtesy of the International Apple Shippers' Association, distributed 50,000 apples to the poor, Tuesday, October 17, the occasion being "National Apple Day."

ROCKFORD, ILL.—The R. V. D. Giddings Co., landscape gardeners and nurserymen, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $5,000. R. V. D. Giddings, who will manage the concern, has for several years been employed as a landscape architect in Georgia.

UNDER the title, "Roses for the Home," the United States department of agriculture has issued Farmers' Bulletin 750 by Professor F. L. Mulford, landscape gardener, Office of Horticultural and Pomological Investigations. The bulletin contains 36 pages, is profusely illustrated, and treats of the many classes of roses, their adaptability for ornamental or cut flower purposes and methods of culture.

American Association of Park Supts.

The eighteenth annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents was held at the Grunewald hotel, New Orleans, October 10-12, about 100 members being present at the opening session. Owing to the non-arrival of a number of delegates, the only business during the morning was a meeting of the executive committee. In the afternoon the local entertainment committee, headed by W. A. Porteous, chairman, escorted the visitors on an automobile tour of the city, ending in Audubon park, where the party was met by the board of park commissioners. Following the photographing of the delegates, during which they were entertained with southern melodies by a band, the entire party was ushered into the banquet hall where Hon. P. Capdeville, former mayor of the city, and president of the park improvement association, welcomed them. President E. T. Mische responded and expressed for the members of the association their high appreciation of the cordial reception extended to them. After refreshments were served, the Delgado art museum, which is situated in the park, was the next place of interest visited.

Constructive details marked both the morning and evening session Wednesday, particular attention being given to relationship of playgrounds and parks. At the morning session a paper by Frederick Law Olmstead, entitled "Playgrounds in Parks from a Designer's Standpoint," was read. In his summary he asserted that playgrounds must be made as orderly and attractive in appearance as possible, no matter where placed. "City Planning in Relation to Park Properties," by Professor James Sturgis Pray, was another interesting paper, as was also Lebert Howard Weir's paper, "Trend of the Playground Movement as it Affects Parks." An interesting discussion followed.

The beauties of the Pontchartrain lake shore were shown the visitors during the afternoon, followed by an auto ride through the residential streets of the city. Supper was served at the Southern yacht club.

The principal feature of the Thursday morning session was the election of officers which resulted as follows: John F. Walsh, New York, president; Henry W. Busch, Detroit, Mich., first vice-president; Herman W. Merkel, New York, second vice-president; Ernest Strehle, St. Louis, Mo., third vice-president; Alexander Stuart, Ottawa, Ont., fourth vice-president; Clarence L. Brock, Houston, Tex., fifth vice-president; Charles W. Davis, Memphis, Tenn., sixth vice-president; Roland W. Cotterill, Seattle, Wash., secretary-treasurer.

During the afternoon the visitors were taken aboard tugs of the dock board and the conservation committee and inspected the city's harbor facilities. The trip occupied several hours and was much enjoyed by all in the party.

At the session Thursday evening lively voting characterized the selection of the next meeting place and resulted in the choice of St. Louis which received 30 votes, followed by Louisville, Ky., and Hartford, Conn., with 14 and 3 votes respectively. Because of illness of several of the speakers, the programme for the night session was abandoned and the convention was called adjourned.

CYCLAMEN:

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted.

Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. Our plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently are invariably satisfactory both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

Investigate*BOSTON OFFICE: 113 State St., Boston, Mass.*PHILADELPHIA OFFICE: Harrison Bldg., 15th and Market Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.Mention the American Florist when writingNewark, N. J.

We believe it is correct to state that Newark was a growing city when the map makers were making a great dark space in the west, say where Kansas and a few other states are now located, and marking it: "Great American Desert." To many of the present generation, the above may seem like a joke, but the writer can remember to have seen such a map. At any rate, Newark is one of the old cities of America, and its inhabitants have for the past four months been celebrating the anniversary of its first settlement and have had a jolly time and incidentally secured a lot of good advertising.

Calling recently on a number of the florists we found them busy and hopeful for the future. At Begerow's, 946 Broad street, great improvements have been made in their store and plans have been perfected for very elaborate window displays.

Philips Brothers, 938 Broad street, in addition to much other work, recently arranged a fine church wedding decoration in which a large amount of smilax and many chrysanthemums were used.

The new store of W. R. James, Bloomfield and Mt. Prospect avenue, is very attractive and business was reported as improving. Robert James, his father, a veteran grower, is now assisting him in the store.

Harry J. Stein, who conducts the flower, plant and seed department in Hahn's large department store, is making a fine display in cut flowers and plants and has received a great stock of bulbs.

McLaughlin & Murphy, 181 Clinton avenue, are clever designers and decorators and have a growing business. They are active in the affairs of the Essex County Florists' Club.

George Penek, 637 Broad street, has a very neat store and does a good business, being a constant buyer in the New York market. His window decorations show good taste.

The Essex County Florists' Club will hold an exhibition this fall, the date and location to be hereafter announced, though as a matter of course, it will be held in Newark.

Penek's Flower Market, 171 Market street, which is conducted by Chris Penek, shows a good stock of cut flowers and plants and is well managed.

John Crossley, the Bellevue avenue florist, has closed his summer cottage at Atlantic Highlands and business is now active at his store.

Henry A. Strobell, another Broad street florist, is a veteran in the business and keeps an attractive store.

We found Wolfinger busy with funeral work, while counter trade was reported good.

In 1911 I purchased a No. 1 Kroeschell Boiler for my uptown greenhouses. At my other range we had a cast iron sectional boiler. In two years we cracked two sections. That experience was enough for me. This year I thought I would not take any more chances, so we have just installed another No. 5 Kroeschell Boiler. I believe if the Kroeschell Boilers were known to all, they would use no other.

Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? Yes! Perfect. Our winter temperature ranges as low as 45° below zero. Last winter we had six weeks of steady cold. The maximum temperature at noon 12° below, the minimum temperature at 4 a. m. 52° below zero. This was a good test of the heating capacity of a Kroeschell.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Callas.

The calla bulbs that were planted in pots during August should now have a fine start and should be placed in the benches or pots where they are going to bloom. Make the soil good and rich—it can hardly have too much manure to get the best results, but do not use too fresh manure. Have it partly rotted. If grown in pots and the bulbs are large give them a good size, nine or ten-inch is none to large, and pot firmly. After potting give the plants a good soaking and then withhold water until the plants have obtained a good foothold in the new soil, when they will require lots of water. Place them in a house where the temperature can be held at 60° at night if flowers during the winter are desired. Keep the plants tied up that the bloom may have straight stems. When cutting leaves be careful not to cut too low or the young flower that is enfolded in the leaf stem may be injured.

Mignonette.

As the weather grows cooler, the mignonette will begin to throw the long spikes that are so much desired by the best trade. The plants should be carefully kept tied or held erect for if they get bent over the stems will grow crooked and they are worthless. Growers adopt different methods for doing this. Some grow them in wire rings similar to the carnation supports, others cut short brush sticks which they set between the rows of plants and still others run wire lengthwise of the bench and tie strings across, making a square around each plant in which it will stand erect. Other wires and strings are added as the plant grows. Keep the plants growing very cool from now on; a house at about the temperature of a violet house, that is from 36° to 40° at night, will produce the finest spikes of flowers. When the flower spikes begin to show keep the plants well disbudded, allowing only the center flower to bloom and all the side shoots should be cut off. This will have to be done very early with the first bloom that sets, for as soon as it forms, three shoots will immediately start to grow at the base of the flower; these should be removed as early as possible that the entire strength of the stalk can go into the terminal flower.

Dahlias.

Before the dahlias were through blooming they should have been carefully named and a label properly inscribed fastened to each plant that it is desired to save. As soon as the plants are killed by the frost they should be cut down and the tubers dug. Leave about six or eight inches of stem and firmly attach the label to this in such a manner that it cannot become loosened and lost. A good, dry cement cellar, either with a cement or earthen bottom, will keep them nicely through the winter, but it should be frost proof and not too near a boiler or heater. The tubers can be placed closely together and then covered with soil and they will come through the winter and the tubers be nice and plump in the spring. They should be occasionally examined to see that they are not getting too dry or shriveling. If this happens cover the soil with papers and then sprinkle the paper and the soil will absorb the moisture.

Gladioli.

As soon as the frost has killed down the foliage the gladiolus bulbs should be lifted and dried off. Keeping the varieties separate, the bulbs, with the tops attached, should be laid out in layers either on a light, dry shed floor, or on boards in the open air where they can be protected at night during frosty weather. A set of boards or frame shutters spread along on the south side of a building make a very fine place to dry them off and fully ripen the bulbs. Have plenty of covering handy that can be thrown over them on cold nights. When thoroughly ripened the bulbs can be broken from the tops and packed away. Look the bulbs over carefully for any diseased spots and if any having these are found, keep them separate from the sound ones, for it is the prevailing opinion that the disease may be communicated to a sound bulb by coming in contact with a diseased one. Of the finer varieties and those which it is desired to increase, save all the small corms, and these can be planted to grow on in succeeding years to make flowering bulbs. There are so many new and meritorious varieties now being placed upon the market that the grower who has a market for gladioli should make it a point to use these, for the advance has been very rapid and many of the new ones are far ahead of the older varieties. This flower has forged rapidly ahead in the last few years as a cut flower, and with the improvement now going on is bound to retain its popularity.

After Chrysanthemums.

The early chrysanthemums are now through flowering and the space that they have occupied should be made of use by a growing crop. The soil in which they have been grown should be removed. It is very seldom that a good crop of any flower can be grown in the soil that has produced chrysanthemums. While it looks to be all right and often has much manure in it that the chrysanthemums have not taken up, yet our experience has been that the soil will not grow a succeeding crop. It is better to throw it out in a pile where it can be subjected to the sweetening process of nature. The stock plants of the chrysanthemums can be selected and blocked up closely together and the surplus stock sold, and the space made ready for a following crop. Many growers frequently ask what can be grown to follow chrysanthemums. It depends greatly upon what the trade demands. Where the early frosts are not severe, the single violets are left in the field and planted in the beds, but in the northern section of the country the weather is often too severe, the plants being badly frozen and will not recover until mid-winter. Plant growers will require the space for the growing plants and the lilies where planted early can be moved into the benches. Sweet peas make a good crop in these beds for spring blooming. If the seed is planted in pots in October and then transplanted to the beds early they can be bloomed in March. There are a number of annuals that can be profitably grown, such as bachelor's buttons, and stocks, or early blooming herbaceous plants like Canterbury bells, and Coreopsis lanceolata, which will give an attractive assortment of flowers in early spring.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

George V. Wienhoeber, Chicago.

George V. Wienhoeber, well-known Chicago retail florist, had his fall opening last week at 41 South Wabash avenue, brief mention of which was made in our last issue. The opening was a great success in every respect and the store was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the feature being a magnificent window display of orchids. A large and complete assortment of all seasonable cut flowers was on display for the benefit of the customers, particularly chrysanthemums, orchids, lily of the valley, American Beauty, Mrs. Chas. Russell and all the other leading roses. Everything in general was in good demand, but chrysanthemums and roses sold best, although practically every item of stock was pretty well disposed of each day before closing time. Mr. Wienhoeber believes in buying in large quantities and doing a volume of business, and one of his orders alone on one day from one house called for 1,400 fancy chrysanthemums, which, together with the other stock bought, gave the visitors an impression of a small flower show.

Mr. Wienhoeber started in the florist business with his uncle, Ernst Wienhoeber, at 22 East Elm street, Chicago, when he was 16 years of age and four years later left his employ to take a position with the J. M. Gasser Co. of Cleveland, O. He gave up his position with the Ohio concern about a year later and after working for various Chicago retail florists several years he finally accepted a position as manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., which he held 11 years. On January 1, 1914, he started in business for himself at his present location, taking over the old Lubliner & Trinz store, where, by strict attention to business and hard work, he steadily built up a fine trade, which reached such large proportions that he was compelled to rent an adjoining store this fall, just around the corner at 52 East Monroe street. By removing the wall in the rear of his old establishment it was possible to connect the two, giving him an L-shaped store with over 1,500 square feet of floor space, not counting the basement, and two main entrances, one on South Wabash avenue and the other on East Monroe street. The A. L. Randall Co. furnished the fixtures when he remodeled his place last month, and after the alterations were completed his establishment ranked second to none in appearance with any in Chicago. The store is lined with mirrors on all sides and entirely free of fixtures with the exception of the wall cases, office furniture and display refrigerator. Most of the cut flowers are kept in a large ice-box in the basement, where all the supplies are stored and the work arranged. The window is wonderfully well adapted for show purposes and no opportunity is ever lost to use it to the best advantage. The magnificent displays have attracted much favorable attention and comment, besides being splendid advertisements, which resulted in many sales. He has 12 people on his payroll, all considered experts as salesmen and designers. Mr. Wienhoeber himself is a hard worker and designer and a most capable manager. Illustrations of some of his work have appeared in previous issues of THE AMERICAN FLORIST. His arrangement of corsages for personal adornment and everything connected with a modern flower store is always in good taste, and his aim is ever toward the high class and artistic. He is a firm believer in advertising and will spend $10,000 next season, commencing with November, 1916, the greater portion of which will appear in the street cars and on the billboards. Mr. Wienhoeber is only 34 years old and has a splendid future before him if his past record can be taken as a criterion. He is climbing the ladder of success rung by rung, and while he is practically at the top, he feels that he has only started and just partly formed the foundation of a greater business that is to follow.

Hallowe'en.

To the wide awake retailer, the man who is always up on his toes and ready for the sprint, advantage is taken of every opportunity to get his business before the public, and impress them with the importance of his store, the variety and quality of the stock, and his ability in its artistic arrangement. To make and keep the store attractive is always uppermost in his mind. Current events, such as local football matches, boat races, elections, etc., things that are uppermost in the public mind at the time, can all be featured in window decorations that are sure to attract attention and favorable comment.

Hallowe'en is an occasion which affords an excellent opportunity to bring the store before the public and show the ability of its artist as a decorator in more or less elaborate window decorations. Of late years the makers of all kinds of novelties in papier mache and other like materials, lithographers and printers, firms whose specialty is crepe paper and who work out print designs suitable for all the events of the year, furnish materials that are a great help to emphasize the character of the event. The fac simile pumpkin heads, the hob goblins, black cats, the witch and the broom, crepe paper, pictured with all sorts of Hallowe'en lore, will all be found useful adjuncts in this work. Good corn fodder with the husked ears attached, pumpkins in which faces have been artistically cut, an art learned in the school boy days, give materials that essentially belong to and have from the earliest time been associated with the day.

GEO. WIENHOEBER'S STORE OPENING, CHICAGO, OCTOBER 16, 1916.

Chrysanthemums in various shades of yellow and bronze that work in nicely with the autumn colors of the oak leaves and corn stalks, will add materially and give an artistic finish to the whole. The inside of the store should also reflect the same holiday aspect with stalks of corn and autumn branches arranged over cases or the refrigerator or in many places where they will be conspicuous, yet out of the way. Many of the manufactured articles, besides being decorative, are also salable and quite a little business can be done with them in connection with the sale of flowers for the occasion.

There are many dinners given in observance of the day for which some quite elaborate decorations are prepared. Large and small pumpkins, hollowed out, some with faces, filled with flowers and tied with ribbons, are generally features of this work. Very artistic decorations can be arranged with these, partially husked ears of corn, autumn leaves, chestnut burrs, etc., with marigold boutonnières for the men and corsages of bronze pompon chrysanthemums for the ladies.

Pumpkins, in which faces have been artistically cut, and some are very realistic, if nicely filled with flowers and tied with ribbons, make appropriate and acceptable gifts, that if prepared and featured some time before are sure to find appreciation and a more or less ready sale.

To make the most of such a decoration, it should be prepared and ready to place in position at least a week before the event; to stick a few things in the window the day before, as many do, is to make a very poor stab at it. Florists should realize the advantages of featuring and making the most of all such occasions in advance; the advertising value of an event planned for and extended over a week, as compared with a hastily constructed and hurriedly put together job the day before with things at hand, is obvious. In the one case the attractive window as passed day after day is noticed, its various features commented on and spoken of to others, who make it a point to go out of their way to see it and thus the store and business is brought favorably to the attention of many who would not otherwise have known of its existence. The other hurried display is no sooner up than it has to be taken down, and has but little, if any, continued advertising value.

Every man in business hopes to see his trade increase and become more profitable year after year, but how comparatively few there are who work intelligently to bring this about. The successful men are always on the job; they are alert, active, with eyes on the future, always ready to grasp opportunity as it presents itself in any branch. Others are satisfied with a busy day now and again, taking the dull days between as a matter of course—"One can't be busy all the time, it will be better next week." They do not feature, they do nothing out of the ordinary to encourage trade, but simply wait for it to come along. In these days of modern storekeeping, men must be up to the times. It is the bright attractive store that with its elaborate display of seasonable plants and flowers, calls, Halt! to the passerby and compels him to at least take a look and impresses on his mind that here is an up-to-date flower shop, where should he want anything of the kind he would be very likely to find it. He may even think it worth while to go inside, and quite likely comes out with a package or has left an order and becomes a customer, all entirely due to the progressive efforts of the man wide awake to his opportunities.

Tradescantia Baskets.

The tradescantia is worth much more attention than is usually given this pretty pendant vine. Its growth is very rapid, and there are many places about the greenhouse, such as along the edge of a table, where a row of pots may be placed without interfering with the other stock and where these vines will grow without becoming tangled. When placed in mossed wire baskets, they make a beautiful ornament for house window decorations. A six or eight-inch pan, filled and grown on a slender pedestal, is soon saleable with its vigorous bushy trailing greenery. If kept pinched they make a nice centerpiece for the table. As a present for a child, half cocoonut shells or gourds, filled with tradescantia are good stock and also make attractive store window ornaments.

K.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Fall Care.

The chrysanthemum season is now opening up; the very early varieties are already being displayed in the retail stores, and at the greenhouses many of the other varieties are fast unfolding their petals so that by the time these notes get into print there ought to be a good supply of blooms to meet the demand. Owing to the terrific heat during the summer, it has been a trying season for the grower to keep his plants in a first-class growing condition, and he now finds many of the varieties maturing several days later in comparison to other years. These beautiful Indian summer days are altogether too warm for the best development of chrysanthemum blooms and it is important that the greatest care be exercised to guard against the spotting or damping of the petals. An over abundance of moisture at the plants' roots, together with wet conditions about the houses, are among the principal causes of spotted petals. The plants should be given waterings as they need them, but be sure the soil is dry enough to require it before watering. When it is necessary to do so, it should be done before noon so that the house will be well dried up before night, and rather than water in the afternoon it is best to let the beds go over a little on the dry side until the next morning.

Airing the houses is another very important matter to consider. It is impossible to develop fine flowers with good texture in the petals, under close, high temperature conditions. We may expect bad weather, sometimes accompanied with fog, which is very hard on the blooms. At such times allow the ventilators to remain open at a crack and turn on a pipe of steam to keep the atmosphere as dry as possible. Warm, close conditions also quickly develop mildew, especially on the pompon and single varieties, and when once these plants get affected with the mildew, it spreads rapidly, and should it make its appearance, do not delay the checking of it. The best means which we have found for this purpose is to dust the plants finely with grape dust, blown on with a small bellows.

Every means should be taken to keep the plants free from aphids, which sometimes are very troublesome on the expanding buds. While the buds are still small they can be sprayed with the insecticide, but after the petals begin to unfurl the insects must be kept in check by fumigating or painting one of the steampipes with the insecticide. Choose a still, cool night when it is necessary to use a little steam and remember that it is safest and best to do any fumigating lightly as a preventive than to wait until the plants become infested and have to resort to extreme measures to clean them up again.

As soon as the buds begin to show color, it is time to let well enough alone and dispense with the feeding, because after the buds have expanded enough to show the color of the petals, feeding the plants with liquid fertilizer will not help the blooms any and it may do them a great deal of harm; overfed blooms are poor keepers and of little value to ship.

As soon as the weather becomes cold enough to allow for steady firing each night, it means a changed condition all round for the plants. A steady temperature, both night and day, can then be maintained so that the blooms will develop gradually; from 46 to 50 degrees at night, with a rise to 52-54 in the daytime on cloudy, cold days, with a crack of ventilation on both day and night to keep up a free circulation of fresh air, is what the blooms need for their best development, guarding at all times against strong, cold draughts.

The pompon and single varieties being grown several sprays to a plant are now fast budding up and will be greatly benefited by an occasional watering with liquid manure, being careful not to have the material too strong or apply when the soil is very dry. Be sure these plants are properly supported so that the sprays can be developed without becoming crooked or damaged. A little disbudding greatly improves the spray, but do not carry the disbudding to the extreme or the greatest beauty of a spray of pompons will be lost.

Cutting, packing and shipping the large blooms will form a very important part of the work from now until the end of the season, and is a place where a great many growers fall down. After giving close attention to the growing of the crop, it seems a great pity to only partly reap the benefit through loose and faulty methods of packing and getting the blooms to market. For commercial purposes the blooms should be cut just before they are fully matured and allowed to stand in water in a cool, dark place 12 to 24 hours before being packed. The best boxes are ones that can be easily handled by one man; when they are extra large, needing more than one man to handle them, the expressmen generally give them pretty rough treatment. The corrugated boxes, 24x60 x12 inches deep, are being largely used for shipping and answer the purpose very well for short distances, but when the shipment has to go a long way wooden boxes of the same size are the best. Line up the boxes with newspapers according to the weather conditions, using double sheets of tissue next to the blooms. First make a pillow roll of tissue paper filled with excelsior to lay the first row of blooms on, then start from one end of the box with the stems toward the center. After four rows have been put in, start in the same manner from the other end putting in four rows, then follow this up with some more rows from the other end with the stems toward the center all the time until the box is nicely filled, then secure them in by fastening with a cleat across the stems at the center of the box. Fasten the lid on securely, but do not nail more than is necessary, it being best to cord up well for easy handling instead of using too many nails.

The pot plants of chrysanthemums, whether in market or exhibition sizes, will need plenty of room and constant care to bring them to their best. They are now in vigorous growth, well budded up, and the first consideration is to see that they have sufficient supports to allow for them to be properly handled and to form even, uniform specimens. The wire rings or other supports, should be put on now so that the plants will have plenty of time to shape themselves before their flowers develop. These plants require lots of water and must not suffer for the want of it. They are also greatly benefited by application of liquid manure once or twice a week. Keep the temperature of the houses cool at all times, giving plenty of fresh air, and pay particular attention to keeping the plants free of insects.

C. W. JOHNSON.

W. F. Therkindson.

We have received the following with regard to W. F. Therkindson, the well known advertising manager of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., from John B. Geraghty, chairman publicity committee, Philadelphia Salesmanship Club.

"Some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them."

Mr. Shakespeare undoubtedly was thinking of none other than W. F. Therkindson, advertising manager for W. Atlee Burpee & Co., when he penned those immortal words:

It is hard to believe—but it is true—that one man could achieve the greatness in five days that fell to the lot of W. F. Therkindson. This is what happened to him between Friday, October 13, and Wednesday, October 18—

First of all, he was unanimously elected secretary of the Poor Richard Club, the organization that has taken the lead in Philadelphia clubdom since it put over the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, last June.

Then he was elected a director of the Ohio Society of Philadelphia, an organization of high type Philadelphians, who were born in, or lived in the Buckeye state for a long while.

Then he was elected a trustee of the Philadelphia Salesmanship Club, a new organization whose membership will be 2,000 before Christmas.

Then he was chosen to sit with a group of 40 of the city's leaders to consider plans for advertising Philadelphia, and from that group of 40 he was chosen to be one of seven men to consider plans for holding a World's fair in 1926 to mark the sesqui-centennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Then he was called in by the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society to help stage the chrysanthemum show on November 7.

And still he has time to sell the products of the world's largest mail-order seed house.

a chance to get in his work without danger to himself.

In the trial ground here, where all new sorts are given a chance to show their good qualities, the beds looked fair, but in common with other growers not up to the standard of other years. They lacked for no attention, but this was not their year and they just had to make the best of it.

commencing in July from plants set out in May and from successive plantings until frost.

Queen of the Market is the best early, then followed the Royal Early Branching. Crego's Giant is the mid-summer sort, while the Semple family filled in the balance of the season. Carlson's, Vick's, Invincible or other named late branching types, are all similar to the Semples. Peerless Pink is an improvement on Mary Semple, being a little brighter and more perfectly formed. The King asters are also a very good type.

Mr. Kerr recommends the single varieties as being very attractive and especially useful in cut flower work, the long, slender stems and many shades of coloring and the daisy-like formation of the flower being, to him, very artistic. Bordeaux mixture will help fungus or stem rot, but the main thing is to keep down the ravages of the tarnished bug, which was the cause of most of the evil, for then, with robust growth, there would be no yellows, no root aphid or stem rot.

Lancaster, Pa. and Environs.

The most productive county in the United States is that of Lancaster, Pa., when we consider the thousands of such sections which make up the various states of the union. To hold this high honor is indeed something of which its body of citizens is justly proud. Corn, wheat and tobacco, the latter being an important product here, are the principle crops. It also stands well to the front in the flower growing industry, there being a number of quite large greenhouse establishments and many other smaller, but equally well managed places.

The city of Lancaster, the county seat, is a live, progressive town, with a very good street car and suburban service, every section of the county being connected with fast trolley lines. A number of well conducted retail flower shops, situated principally in the retail section, are seen, nicely stocked with plants and flowers. The B. F. Barr Co., on Queen street, right in the heart of the retail district, has a very up-to-date store with a greenhouse in the rear filled with choice stock. All the

ASTER TRIALS AT BURPEE'S FORDHOOK FARMS.

The Aster Problem.

The cut flower market of this summer has been anything but satisfactory, mainly on account of the failure of the aster crop, which has always in recent years been a great factor in the August and early September months. This season the report from all over the country is that the outside aster has, for some reason, failed to grow and flower, there being but few growers who obtained half, or in many cases, not enough of a crop to pay for the seed.

George W. Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s force, at Fordhook Farms, Doylestown, Pa., where the aster has been a specialty for years, and who is an expert in this plant, is unable to account for this universal failure, other than that the weather conditions of last spring and early summer, when there was such an excess of rain, was more than the aster could stand and weakened or made the growth so soft that they were easily the prey of the tarnished bug and the root aphid. The tarnished bug, he considers, the worst enemy. It is a small, lively, sucking insect that lodges in the center of the main shoot or stem of the aster and appears to take the life and vigor and stunt the growth so that the foliage turns yellow and the sickly plant is then a victim to all plant enemies. He combats this with ordinary kerosene emulsion and to each gallon adds a teaspoonful of arsenate of lead. This is given once each week after the plants have been set out until the plants are in full flower. It is done with a knapsack sprayer, a man of ordinary intelligence soon getting to do the work satisfactorily. This method did not work nearly as well the present season on account of the frequent rains, which he thinks washed the solution off almost at once and gave the bug

There were a few of the black beetle and these, Mr. Kerr said, were overcome by knocking them off into a flat pan of kerosene; it is tedious work, but seems to be the only sure way. Ducks and chickens will pick them off, but are also known to do other things not so meritorious.

Regarding cultural conditions, the soil should be well manured and also given a good limeing, as this sweetens it and helps to keep down insects. This should be done two weeks before planting. To get early asters, sow seed in hot beds, then transplant to other frames and then lift with ball of earth to field. Later sowings will keep up a continuous crop, cutting latest flower bowls and other bric-a-brac are tastefully displayed on small tables in the front of the store. A large counter refrigerator is also a very useful and showy fixture. The show window is nicely decorated with chrysanthemums and Japanese umbrellas. "Barr's since 1892," is one of its slogans.

W. A. Hammond, on West Orange street, has a very neat store. A lot of nicely made funeral clusters were seen at the time of our visit ready for delivery. Wedding work is also a specialty. Business was said to be very good.

Harry A. Shroyer's business dates from 1862, when it was founded by his father. His store on Duke street is well equipped for present day demands, being nicely stocked with plants and cut flowers. Mr. Shroyer is treasurer of the school board and all school tax details are handled by him in an office in the rear.

The Rose Shop, on Pennsylvania square, is the latest comer. Its white enameled interior is very interesting. A handsome ice box or flower case is kept well stocked. Florists' chinaware, vases and flower bowls are nicely displayed. There are several large cases for ribbons and cut flower baskets, of which quite a stock is carried. A commodious work room in the rear is partially screened by a white arched lattice.

Mrs. George G. Goldback, on Duke street, has an old-established stand, which has a very business like looking front.

The Rosary Shop, under the Stevens hotel, is one of the recent bidders for trade, being opened last season. The windows are attractive with ferns, roses and cut flowers.

B. F. Barr & Co.'s greenhouses on Columbia avenue, in the suburbs, are quite extensive, some 50,000 feet, all the stock of which is sold in the city store. Considerable building has been going on here all summer; one house, 40x100 feet and three, each 30x100 feet. Several of these were filled with roses. Intensive culture is pursued here, several houses of chrysanthemums being followed as fast as cut out with sweet peas from pots now in frames outside. Mr. Barr reports he gets quicker results in this way than from seed sown in the houses, only the stock must not be allowed to get pot-bound. A great variety of plants are grown here and all looked very well.

A very neat and orderly place is that of Henry D. Rohrer on East King street. Carnations, principally Enchantress Supreme and White Perfection, filled a large ridge and furrow house 200 feet square. Although in ground beds with cement borders and some distance from the glass, they looked very good. Bonnaffon chrysanthemums are a feature—house after house of this variety alone, anyone who thinks old "Bonny" is going back, had better see the stock here first. Such a large quantity has never been done better. Another specialty is Primula malacoides, grown by the thousands in four-inch pots and sold in flower in January and February. Sweet peas fill several high houses; they were a good crop last season. A novelty was a house of forget-me-nots which cut freely from February on. Owing to failing health, H. D. Rohrer has given over the management of the houses to his son, Harry K. Rohrer, who is certainly well versed in the business.

MANSFIELD, O.—Stuhldreher Bros., who operate 40,000 feet of glass, will open a retail store on West Fourth street, under the management of Alex C. Gardiner.

Indiana-Kentucky Florists' Joint Meeting.

As announced in our last issue the joint meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Society of Kentucky Florists held at New Albany, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., October 17-18, was a most successful affair. It being the regular meeting of the Indiana association the business session was conducted by that organization. A feature of much interest was the report of the advisory committee of the Purdue University experiment station, dealing with the problem of pests that affect florists' crops in Indiana, for which President Vesey, acting for the association, thanked the committee. Earl Mann, of Richmond, Ind., announced that the next meeting of the Indiana association would be held at the E. G. Hill Co.'s establishment, Richmond, November 2, and extended a cordial invitation to the Kentucky florists to attend.

Among those in attendance were the following:

New York Notes.

Frank L. Deery, who for a number of years has been with Thos. F. Galvin, Inc., Boston, and this city, and who for some time past has been manager of the New York store, has accepted a position with J. H. Small & Sons, Madison avenue and 52nd street. He is a capable designer and decorator as well as a clever salesman.

H. E. Froment is now receiving from L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., fine stock of the roses, Lady Alice Stanley, Prima Donna, Ophelia, J. L. Mock, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst, Mrs. Geo. Sawyer, Cleveland, and Mrs. Aaron Ward. We have particularly noticed the Lady Stanley and Prima Donna.

Calling, recently, at the range of the Dailedouze Brothers, Flatbush, we found fine stock of roses, chrysanthemums and carnations. Particularly noteworthy are their Francis Scott Key, Ophelia and Mignon roses. It is unnecessary to enlarge on their carnation growing as they are past masters in that line.

W. J. Boyd, of Rochester, N. Y., who, for about two years has been foreman of the D. Y. Mellis range, near Holy Cross Cemetery, Brooklyn, has resigned the position and is open to an engagement. His home is at 169 Milburn street, Rochester.

John B. Nugent of Young & Nugent, is exhibiting with considerable satisfaction a silver cup, won at the recent dahlia show for a very artistic arrangement of dahlias, which was mentioned in our report of the show.

John J. Coan is receiving the best Paper White narcissus we have yet seen on the market. He is also receiving fine stock of the pink chrysanthemum, Chieftain, which wholesales at $4 per dozen.

Johnson & Millang, Inc., have recently received large shipments of nursery stock, part of it from Holland. As will be elsewhere noted, their auction days are now Mondays and Thursdays.

J. B. Henry, who for a number of years has been a grower at Richmond, Staten Island, has, we learn, disposed of his property to a real estate firm and gone out of business.

In the Pierson department of the New York Cut Flower Co., on October 18, we met Frank Myers, of Chestnut Hill, Pa. It's a great place to meet prominent people.

For some months good sweet peas have been very scarce articles in this market, but the Henshaw Floral Co. is now receiving excellent stock.

J. S. Willoughby, a son-in-law of Thomas F. Galvin, is now manager of their store at Fifth avenue and 46th street.

John Scheepers will lecture before the International Garden Club, October 31, his subject being, "Tulips."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS TAKE LEAD.

Loose flowers of all kinds are good sale, the demand being particularly strong on chrysanthemums, as displays grow more profuse and beautiful. Chrysanthemum prices range from $1.50 to $4 per dozen, with prospects of a drop, owing to increasing abundance with which they are coming in, and the large crop to draw from. Among the prime favorites are Marigold and the Oconto. Pompons are just making their appearance and bring from 75 cents to $1. Carnations are still in limited supply at 75 cents a dozen, but are not very enticing in quality, stems being still short of standard. A threatened glut in roses under heavy chrysanthemum buying has been held off so far, but prices show a tendency to soften. An exception is American Beauty, which is rather scarce. Local growers have about abandoned this rose, and persistent effort is made to substitute newer varieties with the public. Corsage flowers are short of the trade's needs. There is a dearth of lily of the valley and sweet peas are not in as yet. Last week saw the first showing of violets. They are choice stock and sell for 50 cents a bunch. Less interest is being taken in the bulb trade than usual. Receipts of imported varieties have been erratic, some being still overdue, and the department and five-and-ten-cent stores have brought about a more or less ruinous competition.

Virick, the State street florist, has an attractive Hallowe'en window, the space being filled with articles foreign to the flower trade, with an imitation human skeleton, reduced size, as one of the eye-catchers. J.

STOCK GOOD AND PRICES FIRM.*

A cold snap last week, which started with rain and ended with snow, with a temperature of 26 degrees above zero, put outdoor stock out of business. Demand was steady, however, with an increase in orders for decorations. Cut flower stock is limited to roses and chrysanthemums, the latter becoming more plentiful. The quality is good and prices are firm. Lily of the valley is plentiful and good.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. report shipping trade exceptionally good. They are handling fancy stock in Russell, Milady, Killarney, Ophelia and American Beauty roses as well as chrysanthemums.

Forest Hill Cemetery is getting the houses into good shape and is cutting good white and yellow chrysanthemums.

W. J. Barnes is making heavy cuts of chrysanthemums and reports good demand for funeral work.

H. Kusik & Co. report A1 trade, with stock of all kinds moving fast.

E. J. B.

HICKMAN MILLS, Mo.—Wright & Ragan are erecting two houses, each 27x200 feet.

MANASQUAN, N. J.—The range formerly conducted by Mrs. Emma Paterson has been purchased by A. G. Freer.

OBITUARY.

Thomas Franks.

Thomas Franks, founder of the well-known florist firm of Thomas Franks & Son of Champaign, Ill., and the first gardener at the University of Illinois, died at the home of his sister in that city, October 18, aged 72 years. He had not been in good health for five years and his death was attributed to premature old age.

Mr. Franks was born in Westbury, Eng., and came to America at the age of 21, first landing in Quebec, going from that city to Hamilton and Ancaster, Canada, where he remained for about three years, after which he removed to Chicago, and was employed in that city for several months on park work at the time Lincoln park was laid out. While thus engaged he was highly recommended for the position of gardener at the University of Illinois, to which he was appointed, and while there laid out the grounds and superintended the tree planting.

In 1871, Mr. Franks purchased property in Champaign and erected the first greenhouse in the county. The business prospered, and aided by his son, Geo. B. Franks, who was admitted to partnership, when he became of age, the firm has grown to extensive proportions.

Thomas Franks was a charter member of the Society of American Florists, having attended the meeting of the society at Cincinnati, O., in 1885. For a number of years he was quite active in the organization. He at one time held the office of park commissioner at Champaign and was a member of the Elks.

As early as 1894, Mr. Franks was a contributor to THE AMERICAN FLORIST, among his articles being the description of a single pipe system of steam heating, which he had installed at his establishment and which created much interest and brought forth numerous inquiries from others in the trade regarding method of installation.

The funeral was held October 20, with interment in the family lot in Woodlawn cemetery, many handsome floral tributes covering his last resting place.

Eben Eugene Rexford.

Eben Eugene Rexford, well known as a horticultural writer and poet, died at his home at Green Bay, Wis., October 18. Mr. Rexford is said to have been the author of "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Wartime Plant Names.

The Horticultural Trade Journal of October 11 published at Burnley, England, has the following taken from the London Daily News:

"In a German nurseryman's catalogue, which came to me by devious routes, I find plants bearing names which should instantly qualify them for interment in the German empire, being still offered without apology or change. Mrs. J. S. Brunton holds her place among the delphiniums and there is a special paragraph of eulogistic recommendation of the geum, Mrs. Bradshaw. Among the roses the Marechal Neil and the Caroline Testout are listed, and even the Mrs. John Laing is recommended as fit and proper for the gardens of patriotic Germans. In British gardens, the Ulrich Brunner and the Frau Karl Druschki have been long since banished, or naturalized under names which sound more friendly to British ears."

Personal.

Prof. Frank A. Waugh, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, called on Chicago friends last week.

Denver.

On the evening of October 19 there was a very enjoyable little dinner party at C. A. Benson's at which J. A. Valentine, N. A. Benson, Emil Glauber, C. F. Maler, A. C. Bush, E. S. Kennedy, Carl Gross, Fred Hall and Ben Boldt were guests. Those present were given an opportunity to inspect and admire the handsome new home which was recently completed. Charlie explained to his guests that he was celebrating the end of his first 10 years in business for himself. He started with nothing, and now has a nice range of glass, an elegant home and a charming family, which all goes to show that the greenhouse business is not such a bad one after all when it is given proper attention.

RAFFIA exportation from England was prohibited in August.

ROSE MIDGE.—Daily fumigation for three weeks is said to be a certain remedy.

Chicago to Bloomington.

The fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at the Coliseum, Bloomington, November 9-10. Treasurer Frank L. Washburn of the state organization advises that the Chicago & Alton gives the best service between that city and Chicago. The train schedule from Chicago to Bloomington is as follows:

Leave—	Due—
Chicago 9:00 A. M.	Bloomington 12:55 P. M.
Chicago 10:15 A. M.	Bloomington 1:20 P. M.
Chicago 12:01 P. M.	Bloomington 3:15 P. M.
Chicago 1:15 P. M.	Bloomington 5:15 P. M.
Chicago 6:30 P. M.	Bloomington 9:40 P. M.
Chicago 9:00 P. M.	Bloomington 12:55 A. M.
Chicago 10:20 P. M.	Bloomington 1:10 A. M.

The fare from Chicago to Bloomington is $2.54, round trip $5.08. This is the flat two-cent rate and there is no party or other reduced rate between these points. The train leaving the Union station at 10:15 a. m., Thursday, November 9, has been selected for the Chicago delegation and it is hoped our city and club will be well represented, the Bloomington show being the only one of importance in the state this year.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club has been postponed to November 16, especially to permit members to attend the Bloomington exhibition and meeting of the state association.

Luncheon will be served at Bloomington, Thursday evening, November 9, at seven p. m.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at the Hotel Breslin, New York, on the afternoon of October 23, the following being present: S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, president of the society; Louis J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I., vice-president; Harry O. May, Summit, N. J., treasurer; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; Admiral Aaron Ward, Roslyn, N. Y., and Fred Howard, Los Angeles, Calif.

There was an extended discussion on matters pertaining to the affairs of the society. A committee was appointed to work as representatives of the society on rose test gardens, to be established at Portland, Oregon, as follows: Jesse A. Currie, chairman; Albert J. Clarke, and Alfred Tucker, all of Portland. A committee was also appointed to report on rose gardens, outlining a form for reporting on the merits of roses in various test gardens, showing the qualities of different varieties at certain periods, committee to report at executive committee meeting in Philadelphia, in November. The committee follows: Admiral Aaron Ward, chairman; Louis J. Reuter and Wallace R. Pierson.

A committee was appointed to raise a guarantee fund, in case the society decides to hold a show in Philadelphia. This committee is requested to obtain guarantees from 50 firms, of $100 each. The committee is composed of: S. S. Pennock, Louis J. Reuter, Wallace R. Pierson, Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Fred Burki, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Wm. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, Ill.; Herman Knoble, Cleveland, O.; H. G. Berning, St. Louis, Mo.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Wm. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y.; J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Ont., and Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.

It was decided to hold the next executive meeting in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, November 8, at 3 p. m., when reports of various committees will be received and a decision reached relating to an exhibition. Eight hundred dollars has already been pledged on the guarantee fund. All rose growers and others interested in horticulture are invited to meet with the executive committee of the society in Philadelphia, November 8, to consider the advisability of holding an exhibition in that city in March, 1917.

Cleveland Fall Show.

Several new classes not on the premium list have been offered the past week. The first one is for non-commercial growers and reads: "For the best group of orchid plants in variety, to cover space three feet by eight feet. Accessories and greens allowed—First prize, $50; second prize, $25; third prize, $10.

For commercial growers there is a special class offered for a vase of 50 American Beauties arranged for effect—First prize, $50; second prize, $30; third prize, $20.

The real competition will center around the $500 Corrigan cup. This is open for private growers only and calls for 36 chrysanthemum blooms, six varieties, six bloom each, to be staged in two vases, accessories allowed. Arrangement to be considered. The winner has to capture the cup three years for it to become his personal property. This cup was made by Tiffany of New York, and will be keenly fought for.

There are prizes for lilies, violets, lily of the valley, cyclamens and begonias. Send to M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader-News building, for information and premium list.

Frank A. Friedly is chairman of the show committee.

ELLA GRANT WILSON,

SEASONABLE STOCK IN GOOD SUPPLY.

We felt a touch of winter this week—the mercury dropped to 25 degrees and the wind blew a gale. At this time we had our first snowfall, October 20, which put an end to all outdoor stock. The chrysanthemum season is here at last and they are arriving in large quantities. An abundant supply of roses is on hand, most of the popular varieties being available at moderate prices and are in good demand. The sale and price of carnations holds up remarkably well, good blooms selling at three cents and fancies at 3½ cents. Other years at this time their prices ranged from one to two cents. Lilies sufficient to satisfy the demand are to be had at 10 to 12½ cents each. Orchids, lily of the valley and violets are getting fair attention, their prices being somewhat high. A few sweet peas were in the market this week. Snapdragons of good quality are to be had. Some inferior calendulas are also appearing. Smilax can now be had at 20 cents a string. Other greens are in good supply. The plant business has been good for the past week, those in best demand being Begonia Chatelaine, Jerusalem cherries, chrysanthemums and ferns.

JOINT MEETING.

A large gathering of Indiana and Kentucky florists assembled at the A. Rasmussen's establishment, New Albany, to attend the joint session held October 17-18. A fine buffet luncheon was spread in the service building, after which the joint session was held which, being the regular meeting of the Indiana association, was in their charge. Mr. Rasmussen gave a welcoming speech after which the minutes were read and approved. Edwin Morners of Shelbyville, Indiana, was elected to membership. The report of the advisory committee of Purdue University experiment station was very interesting and dealt with the problems and pests of Indiana florists. President Vesey, acting for the society, thanked the committee for their investigations. Mr. Taylor of the Kentucky Tobacco Products Co. extended an invitation to all to visit their plant the following day. A. F. J. Baur read a paper on "False Economy" which was very profitable and interesting. August R. Baumer announced the programme for the following day, after which Earl Mann, of Richmond, invited the Kentucky club to attend the next regular meeting held November 2 at the E. G. Hill Co.'s establishment. After adjournment a group photograph of 130 persons was made.

NOTES.

The Claypool Hotel Floral Co. had a very attractive window last week—baskets of pompon chrysanthemums, roses and carnations, artistically arranged with a background of fancy decorative plants, interspersed with Frances Scott Key roses.

Clarence Green, of the Hensley Flower Shop, felt greatly gratified when the automobile that he decorated received the first prize out of 500 cars decorated for the Indiana Centennial Celebration of Henry County at New Castle.

The E. G. Hill Co. has employed Daniel O'Mara, and the E. A. Nelson Co. have now in their employ, Otto Rieman.

It is rumored that this city will soon have a new flower store on Washington street, controlled by outside interests.

The Tomlinson Hall flower market reports business good for the week, cut flowers becoming more plentiful.

The Pahud Floral Co. has been remodeling in order to have more room in which to carry on business.

Visitors: Emil Niednagel, of Evansville; W. W. Coles of Kokomo; Edwin Mornor of Shelbyville; Paul and Henry Dailledouze of New York; Mr. Smith of the Marion Floral Co., and Robert Newcomb of Chicago.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Trade conditions continue to improve, counter sales especially gaining in volume. Chrysanthemums are arriving in great quantities but clean up nicely. Carnations are improving but are limited in supply, and prices are high. Roses are abundant—Nesbit, new this year, bids fair to become very popular. Pompons are just coming in and are great favorites.

NOTES.

The wedding of Clifford J. Keller, eldest son of J. M. Keller, and Miss Elizabeth Howard, was solemnized October 7 at the bride's home. The house was artistically decorated with American Beauties, white chrysanthemums and Boston ferns. The dining room was brilliant with Ward roses and yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Keller left for a honeymoon of two weeks, after which they will reside in East Rochester.

Hugo Teufe has just completed a new greenhouse, 40x250 feet, the largest single house in this vicinity. It will be devoted to carnations and sweet peas. His chrysanthemums are very fine and include Chrysolora, Oconto, White Queen and Polly Rose. He is also growing some excellent primroses and cyclamen.

Edwin C. Kaelber has just returned from a business trip to New York, Tarrytown on the Hudson and Scarborough, N. Y. He has received a big shipment of pottery and artware vases and bowls.

H. E. Wilson had a fine display of Chrysolora chrysanthemums in tall vases, and contrasted with huge vases of white and lavender chrysanthemums.

Geo. T. Boucher had an excellent window display last week, a fine arrangement of plants being augmented by about 100 orchid blooms.

A little daughter, Mary Anna, has come to brighten the home of Jos. Werdein and wife. The trade extends congratulations.

F. J. Keller was a recent visitor to New York and Philadelphia on business. CHESTER.

GOOD BUSINESS AND AMPLE SUPPLY.

The cut flower business on the local market has been very good the past two weeks, stock of all kinds being in sufficient supply for all requirements, with the possible exception of lily of the valley and Easter lilies. American Beauties in all sizes have been plentiful and the demand good. Rhea Reid, probably the best red rose now on the market, meets with a good call. Some very good Sunbursts arrive; also, Sawyer, Sweetheart and Baby Doll, Ward, Killarney, Mock and Kaiserin. The quality is uniformly excellent. Chrysanthemums now have the call and some very good white and yellow varieties come in daily. Small stock is more plentiful, and all is in good demand. Gladoli still arrive, as do dahlias, straw flowers and cosmos. Snapdragon is good stock, in pink, yellow and white. Wedding decorations are using Southern smilax in large quantities.

NOTES.

The Cleveland flower show, which takes place November 10-12 at the Hollenden hotel, promises to be an event of some importance from the present looks of things. Manager Vinson is advertising the event freely and promises a good show. A small admission fee of 25 cents will be charged to help defray expenses incurred, as the committee feels the public will pay this small sum to see a good exhibition. It is hoped the retailers will take more interest in the show and all help to make the display of table decorations, baskets, corsages, etc., one worthy of the florists of this city, who have a reputation of being a "live bunch." The entertainment committee will give a banquet at the Hollenden hotel, Saturday evening, November 11, and hopes all who can will attend. The competition for the Corrigan cup is very keen, and private growers are working hard to win this beautiful trophy, valued at $500. Wm. Fisher, gardener for Harvey S. Firestone, Akron, O., won the cup last year. The chrysanthemum show, which takes place at the same time, will be worth the price of admission alone, as growers have some excellent stock, and other exhibits include violets, lily of the valley, calendulas, antirrhinums, etc. Come to the show, exhibit if you can, and don't forget to tell all your friends and customers about it.

The Claude Tyler Company and Asher M. Coe, both of North Olmstead, O., are cutting some exceptionally fine chrysanthemums for the local market.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange will put on another Ford delivery car which will be ready in a few weeks.

Chris B. Knuth, of Euclid, O., is cutting a fine lot of Golden Glow chrysanthemums.

C. F. B.

Toledo, O.

BUSINESS AHEAD OF 1915.

Business here is still forging ahead of last year, and it is merely a question of being able to get enough good stock to supply the demand. Funeral work has been fairly plentiful, while the opening of the social season has created a demand for corsages.

CLUB MEETING.

The first fall meeting of the florists' club was held October 17 in the rooms of the Retail Merchants' Board and was very well attended by growers and retailers. The annual election of officers took place. George Bayer was re-elected president; Harry Heinel, vice-president, and J. L. Shiller, secretary-treasurer. An interesting discussion concerning the rising costs of doing business was a feature of the evening. The verdict seemed to be in regard to raising prices that outside competition to a great degree fixed the prices of the local growers. It was also decided not to have a flower show this fall.

NOTES.

Feniger's Flower Shop has a superb location on Adams street and is noted for two things: the finest store in the city and the largest and most attractive display windows. And Mr. Feniger does not hesitate to fill these windows with the finest products of the soil. This week he has a magnificent array of chrysanthemums of all sizes and colors, attractively displayed in handsome baskets. The interior of his store presents a bower of beauty. He doubtless has the largest stock of flowers in this city.

One of the most beautiful autumn windows to be seen in this city is that of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, Superior street florist. It is the work of Robert Blake, designer, who has a consistent habit of trimming Mrs. Freeman's large display window in an artistic and appealing manner. This particular window, while exceedingly simple, was beautiful enough to cause hundreds of passers-by to stop and admire it.

Schramm Bros., Cherry street florists, have remodeled their offices with a view to having more room to this essential end of the business. Their rapidly increasing patronage made this improvement necessary. Frank M. Schramm has again been made director of decoration for the Ohio and Michigan land show at the Terminal building.

Many associates in the trade, and other friends, are mourning the untimely death of Miss Frieda Schlegel, assistant decorator for Miss Helen Patton, Madison street florist. Miss Schlegel was an able and conscientious young lady, and was extremely well liked in florist circles of this city. She was a victim of typhoid fever.

Metz & Bateman have now completed their new and entirely modern salesroom in the basement of the Ohio building beneath their store. This firm, though young, has made a truly wonderful progress and the new salesroom was absolutely necessary for their continued growth.

Harry Heinel, has been sending in some unusually fine roses but he has long enjoyed the reputation of being a better than ordinary grower of roses.

POMPONS—50 cents to 75 cents per bunch.

CHOICE SHIPPING ROSES

RUSSELLS—We are growing the finest Russells arriving in this market. All visitors to the greenhouses in the Chicago district say that our Russell are the best here.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade. The roses which we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS ARE MORE PLentiful.

Chrysanthemums are more plentiful this week but are selling well at good prices considering the large supply of stock offered. Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Bonnaffon, White and Yellow Touse, Robert Halliday and a large number of other varieties are on hand to select from and the quality of the local grown stock in some instances is unusually fine and in others it is below the average. Large quantities of chrysanthemums are being received regularly from California and it is a question whether the foreign growers will be able to compete with the home producers now that practically everyone is starting to cut more heavily. Pompoms have made their appearance in large numbers, particularly Zenobia, Astor, Fairy Queen and Buckingham. Some exceptionally grand American Beauty roses are obtainable in the longer stemmed grades which seem to clean up fairly well each day, although the prices realized might be much better. Mrs. Chas. Russell are of good quality but none too plentiful, which holds good for roses in general. Carnations are steadily increasing in quantity but are still scarce and command high prices. Lilies are in short supply and so is lily of the valley, which is selling at higher figures than ever. Orchids are in good supply but the receipts of gardenias are scarcely large enough to meet the demand. Sweet peas are seen in larger numbers and some fine calepudulas, forget-me-nots, snapdragons and daisies are included in the daily receipts. Home-grown single and New York double violets are improving in quality but are not in very good demand. Trade is gradually improving and stock of all kinds is cleaning up well every day at good prices. Chrysanthemum and cyclamen plants are being featured in many of the retail stores and choice stock in these two items are seen. Greens of all kinds are in large supply and the first red winter berries of the season made their appearance this week.

NOTES.

The Weiss & Meyer Co., of Maywood, are cutting a good supply of fine American Beauty roses. They grow this variety exclusively and have about 35,000 plants, all told.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has a splendid supply of chrysanthemum pot plants ready for delivery in all the leading varieties and report a brisk demand for same. Some of the cyclamen are also ready and are moving rapidly. Tom Conlon, manager of the plant department, has everything looking fine for the fall trade and the stock at this establishment was never in such splendid condition as it is this season. He is making ready for the azaleas due to arrive at any moment and will insure the regular customers of their Christmas supply. August Poehlmann celebrated his forty-seventh birthday last Saturday, October 21, and looks as young as he ever used to be. Mr. Poehlmann says that his firm has placed an

J. A. Budlong leased the corner store in the LeMoyné building early this week, consisting of 800 square feet of floor space, and has already taken possession. The new store adjoins the present L shaped Budlong quarters, consisting of 1600 square feet of floor space and all that is necessary to combine the two stores into one is the removal of the partitions, work on which has already started. After the alterations are completed the Budlong company will have one of the finest and best lighted wholesale stores in the great central cut flower market, with three entrances, two on North Wabash avenue and one on East Lake street. This firm's business has increased so rapidly of late that Manager Schupp was obliged to secure more space and was fortunate in being able to get it right next door, which was the only main floor store vacant in the LeMoyné building.

Felix Reichling says that carnations are in better crop with Peter Reinberg but that there is never any surplus in this item after the customers are all taken care of. Chrysanthemums and pompons are arriving in large quantities and clean up splendidly every day. Mrs. Reinberg was pretty busy last week entertaining Mrs. Woodrow Wilson while the president was making campaign speeches here.

The John C. Moninger Co. received an order from its New York office this week calling for three houses, 52x300 feet, for J. J. Fallon, Lynchburg, Va. The Moninger Co. has delivered the material for a new house to Sears-Roeback Co., which was ordered only last week and goes a long way to show what splendid service this concern is equipped to render. M. G. Kill of the Moninger sales force was married October 18.

The Alpha Floral Co. is making a fine showing of chrysanthemums and all other seasonable cut flowers at its loop store. Andrew Chronis says that trade is showing signs of improvement and is making a strong bid for the fall business by carrying a heavy and complete line of cut flowers on display at all times.

A. E. Hunt & Co. are cutting a good supply of sweet peas, daisies and calendulas. They specialize in daisies and have a fine stock of 2½-inch Chicago White and yellow Etoile D'Or plants ready for immediate delivery. Mr. Hunt says that they find these two varieties fill the bill best for cut flower purposes.

George V. Wienhoeber, 41 South Wabash avenue, has been in such unusually good humor of late that everyone has noticed it, but so far he has not told any of his friends it is because a brand new baby girl arrived at his home the other day.

Dick Rolston is in the employ of the Central Floral Co. at Detroit, Mich. This concern has a store in this city at 132 North State street, which Peter Duris so ably manages and is also doing business under the name of the Central Floral Co.

F. W. Haeger, who has been on the Texas border the greater part of the summer with the second regiment, Company F, is back home and is again attending to his duties in the plant department of the A. L. Randall Co.

The John Kruchten Co. is offering a large supply of Golden Glow chrysanthemums, which are just coming in crop with one of their growers, and marks the lateness of the chrysanthemum season in general.

Chris Pedersen, 58 East Randolph street, has been confined to his home with rheumatism for two months. His sister, Mrs. Theodore Callos, is managing the store during his absence.

Andrew Benson, orchid collector for the Poehlmann Bros. Co., returned October 21 from the Philippines with large shipments of phalaenopsis and vandas in fine condition.

The Atlas Floral Co., 32 East Randolph street, has about completed the improvements to its store and will start decorating the interior as soon as conditions permit.

The Raedlein Basket Co., 713 Milwaukee avenue, is enjoying a busy season and reports trade as exceedingly brisk. Plant baskets especially are in heavy demand.

Miss Suzanne Leslie is doing nicely at her new store at 6 East Monroe street, opened last week, and which was formerly the location of the old Flower Market.

The Randolph Floral Co., 57 East Randolph street, has opened another store at 187 North State street, with Nic Mocasco in charge.

Lloyd E. Shirley, manager of the Garland Manufacturing Co., Des Plaines, made a business trip to Michigan last week.

D. E. Freres received his first consignment of pompons this week, but so far his shipments consist only of Zenobia.

J. E. Franke, 760 Milwaukee avenue, is back from a pleasant visit at his summer home at Thunder Lake, Michigan.

Philip L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., visited at Milwaukee, Wis., October 20.

Hoerber Bros. are cutting from a splendid crop of White and Yellow Touset chrysanthemums.

E. C. Pruner, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., is home from a trip.

John Canger, Nick Lempares and Charles Stamalakos, of the John Mangel force, are back from a duck hunting trip to Lake Villa, Ind. The sight of the wood ducks and golden and silver pheasants in Mangel's windows was too much of a temptation to resist the call of the wild any longer, and nothing would satisfy them until they had spent a day in the blinds with the hope that they might accidentally bring down a few as the flocks crossed the wild rice district.

Bassett & Washburn will have a large exhibit of cut flowers at the fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association to be held at Bloomington, November 9-10. Mr. Washburn is a big booster for the state society and is urging everyone to become a member and advises all the wholesalers to make an exhibit at the next meeting. No premiums will be awarded which should encourage a number of smaller growers to display their stock, who have never done so before.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are featuring a large and most complete line of cut flowers, including a splendid supply of roses, especially American Beauties, and orchids. Their chrysanthemums and pompoms are fine and consist of all the leading varieties in both. Mr. Vaughan visited the H. W. Buckbee greenhouses at Rockford last week and found the stock in splendid condition, particularly the chrysanthemums, which are grown on a large scale each season.

Wieter Bros. are strong on chrysanthemums and pompoms this week and are cutting a magnificent supply of both, including extra fancy White and Yellow Touset. In pompoms they are cutting Zenobia, Astor, Vanderbilt, Buckingham and Fairy Queen. American Beauty roses of unsurpassed quality are included in the daily offering and are disposed of early at good prices.

L. A. Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, is planning on making a business trip to Baconton, Georgia, where she and her sisters have extensive pecan orchards. She will be away about a week. This firm is supplying their trade with choice stock in all lines, including a good supply of snapdragons.

Zech & Mann's shipments of chrysanthemums now include fancy Chieftain, Early Snow, McNiece and Comoleta. Allie Zech says that business so far this month has been fine and that the sales are away ahead of the same period of last year.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are finding that their enlarged quarters are coming in mighty handy right now and are using every foot of space to good advantage. Carnations are seen in good supply here and so are roses and chrysanthemums.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a splendid supply of roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable cut flowers.

SUPPLY CLEANS UP WELL.

Conditions in the wholesale market continue satisfactory, and stock of all kinds cleans up well. October weather has much improved carnations, chrysanthemums and roses, while killing frost has practically destroyed the outside stock and there is an improved call for greenhouse flowers. Carnations still continue to sell well and all arrivals are quickly snapped up by the buyers. The present cooler weather is just what violets need, and there is a decided improvement in the quality of the flowers. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful. The varieties mostly in evidence are, Chrysolora, Unaka, Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Appleton, and Pacific Supreme, while there are a few Polly Rose of the smaller varieties. Lilies are somewhat short, Cosmos are nearing the end of the season, Dahlias are gone, as are also asters and gladioli. Lily of the valley continues to sell well for weddings despite the high prices of the stock. The sale of pot plants is limited to ferns, palms, araucarias, pandanus and other foliage plants.

NOTES.

T. J. Johnston & Co., who have been in one location for a good many years, are going to move to much larger quarters on Washington street, where they will have larger display windows.

The local stores have had some splendid windows during the past week. They never were more attractive, which means more business.

H. A. T.

St. Louis, Mo.

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Another week of favorable weather has passed, causing a firm and steady market. One rainy day followed by a cold spell, indicated the normal fall conditions. This brought the carnations in fine quality. The shipments were heavy and the demand was good. American Beauty is scarce and as usual when scarce, the demand is heavy. The prices run up to $5 per dozen. Tremendous shipments of the poorer quality of roses are coming in. The novelties, Hadley, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Russell are in great demand. Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and Pacific Supreme are the only chrysanthemums to be had in quantities. They clean up fairly well at moderate prices; the best brought $2 per dozen, the balance as low as $6 per 100. The light frost, October 20, killed all outdoor flowers. This will help to clean up the inside stock. Orchids are coming in quantity; their quality is very good, and the demand for same fairly satisfactory. The same may be said about violets. Lily of the valley is scarce, and the retailers are depending more on the out-of-town markets for their supply. Lilies are in short supply and the price has advanced to $15 per 100.

NOTES.

The preliminary premium list of the spring flower show to be given under the auspices of the St. Louis Flower Show Committee, Inc., in this city, March 15-18, 1917, is now ready for distribution. Prizes are offered in 26 sections, both for commercial and private growers. W. W. Ohlweiler, Missouri Botanical Gardens, is executive secretary and Jules Bourdet is exhibition manager. The premium committee is composed of H. W. Endres, O. K. Sanders, C. E. DeWeaver, C. B. Windler, A. H. Hammert and A. Jaenicke.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. handles a fine quality of yellow chrysanthemums. Frank Windler reports business very good. He has booked quite a few good orders for artificial Christmas goods.

The new St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. reports business good, especially in fancy orchids and chrysanthemums. The supply department is one of the finest west of the Mississippi river.

The daily sales of C. A. Kuehn & Co. are reported as running 30 to 35 per cent ahead of a year ago and Mr. Kuehn says conditions of the trade looks better to him each year.

H. Geranios, for years the owner of Metropolitan Flower Co., who gave up his business a year ago and went north, is back in the city. He is connected with J. Witek.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. handles very fine roses and carnations from Kirkwood growers. Will Ossick reports business very good in all departments.

The retail florists' association held a well attended meeting October 16 at the Mission inn. All officers were present and much important business was transacted.

John Steidel, of Olivette, Werner Bros., of Clayton, and W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood, are cutting excellent roses in the leading varieties.

Ophelia is a splendid rose according to Vincent J. Gorly, who also likes the Vincent pink carnation. He says the public takes to both.

H. G. Berning has received shipments of the very fine Rose Minnetonka from Thermann Nurseries.

A heavy run of funeral work is reported by Mullanphy Florists.

The first real frost came on the night of October 19, which was somewhat early for this region. However, there is no doubt that it was a benefit to business, as the flower shops report that trade is very good indeed. Chrysanthemums are the chief flowers seen, and it can truthfully be said that never before were flowers of such fine quality seen so early in the season. There is a red variety, named Eureka, which is certainly the best of this color this writer has ever seen in October.

Walter Mott, representing Hammonds Paint & Slug Shot works, Beacon, N. Y., was a visitor this week. Being an old acquaintance, it goes without saying that we had a very pleasant visit together. S. S. B.

During the past week business has quieted to a certain extent. There is a perceptible decrease in the retail business, and there is an extra large quantity of early chrysanthemums being grown this season, which has caused an over-supply. The consequence is that nearly every line of flowers have dropped in price. Roses are going cheaper than last week. The larger fancy varieties, such as Russell, Hadley and long-stemmed Ophelia, command real good prices. Carnations are more plentiful, but are selling well at $2.50 and $3 per 100. Colored varieties sell much better than white, as white chrysanthemums and pompons are plentiful. The chrysanthemum market is overstocked with the average quality flower, although large, fancy kinds sell at good prices. Pom-pons are coming in larger quantities and are in demand. Violets are not very good yet, and the market for them is not especially brisk. There are a few sweet peas seen, but their quality does not command a very satisfactory price. Greens, such as Sprengerii and plumosus, are selling very well at 35 cents per bunch. Orchids are obtainable, but cattleyas are the most plentiful, being sold at $4 per dozen.

NOTES.

At the time of our recent visit to the establishment of S. J. Goddard, Framingham, we found his stock in a flourishing condition. His carnations are looking very healthy and have a good foundation for the ensuing year. A bed of the new pink variety, Nancy, looked very fine and had the best crop of flowers of any variety on his place. Rosalea also showed up very well and Mr. Goddard thinks very well of this new variety. He recently added a new Overland delivery car for his retail trade.

The Boston Co-operative Flower Market held their annual meeting and banquet at the Quincy House on Saturday evening, October 21. After the regular business meeting, the banquet was held, which was one of the best which the market ever had. Wm. Craig and Henry Comley gave short talks and John Lynch had charge of the entertainment. The board of directors for the coming year is as follows: Donald Carmicheal, Norris Comley, Wm. Elliot, J. Lister, E. Cartwright, John McFarland, Robt. Montgomery, J. Simson and M. Woods.

Robert Montgomery and wife of Natick spent the week end of October 21 at their summer home at Buster's Island, Me.

Raedle's Special Plant Basket Offers

Styles you will need this fall and winter. Leading florists everywhere are using them for their foliage and blooming plants or in making combinations of both. They say that our baskets are best adapted to this kind of work, for the sizes are consistent with the dimensions of the pots and fit in very nicely.

THREE BIG BARGAINS

No. 1—$18.00 Per Dozen

Assortment of 12 Plant Baskets for plants ranging in size from 5 to 10-inch pots, $18.00 per dozen.

No. 2—$12.00 Per Dozen

Assortment of 12 Plant Baskets for plants ranging in size from 5 to 10-inch pots, $12.00 per dozen.

No. 3—$8.00 Per Dozen

Assortment of 12 Plant Baskets for plants ranging in size from 5 to 10-inch pots, $8.00 per dozen.

The difference in prices is due to the quality, but each offer is a good buy and big value. For other sizes and styles, write for new catalog.

GOOD STOCK IS SCARCE.

Due to the dark, cool weather the latter part of last week, the supply was suddenly cut short and it again became quite a task to fill all orders. With quite a bit of funeral work the local demand became brisk and all stock cleaned up in quick order. Russell and Ophelia roses are scarce at the present time; carnations do not remain on the counter, while the few Easter lilies are soon picked up. There is a greater variety of chrysanthemums, and while the supply has increased considerably within the last week, no good stock is held over, and the prices thus far are satisfactory. The green goods market is holding its own.

NOTES.

During his stay last week, James Mathewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., was taken to the famous Cudahy range in Gust Rusch's auto; it was his first visit there and he was well pleased with all the stock. During a conversation with Mr. Scott, the superintendent, it developed that both had worked for the same party in England, even slept in the same room and bed, it seemed then as though two long lost brothers had met again, talking of the good old times. Earlier in the week Messrs. Rusch and Scott made a tour of inspection, visiting the North Milwaukee growers, G. F. Baerman & Sons and the Heitman-Oestricher Co.

While there is a lull in the cut of Russell and Ophelia roses at the Brown Deer plant of the Holton & Hunkel Co., the pink and white one seems to be more faithful. They are cutting some fine chrysanthemums though to fill the gap.

Miss Elsie Gutermuth was recently married to Wm. F. Wichtel. The bride is a sister of Fred Gutermuth, who operates the greenhouses formerly owned by Wm. Edlefsen at North Milwaukee; also a retail store at 813 Winnebago street.

While they are cutting a good supply of chrysanthemums in variety, roses and carnations are also coming in good at the C. C. Pollworth Wauwatosa plant. The cut of orchids, while not heavy at any one time, is steady.

Leon B. Thorpe and wife have returned from their honeymoon. The former is again back in the harness as foreman at the Greenwood Carnation Co.

Harry Mann, who opened a retail store a short time ago, reports satisfactory business thus far in spite of the high price of stock.

The Schroeder Floral Co., Rieb Bros. and the Fox Point Floral Co. are consigning yellow pompons of good quality to the local market.

The monthly meeting of the florists' club will be held November 2, 8:15 p. m., at Kurtz Bros., Eleventh and Prairie streets.

First snow October 20, with the thermometer down to 32 degrees the same night.

Mr. Claute, of Claute Bros., Fort Atkinson, Wis., was a visitor last week.

FAIR BUSINESS AND AMPLE SUPPLY.

Business is fair. The supply of stock is large and able to care for all present demands upon it. A killing frost during the past week has put all outdoor stock out of commission and has relieved the market to that extent. Chrysanthemums are very plentiful and may be had in everything from pompons to the largest varieties. Roses, too, are very plentiful. The cut of carnations is about the same as it was at the last writing, but is sufficient for present needs. Easter lilies are in a good supply. The first callas of the season made their appearance last week. Excellent orchids and lily of the valley may be had. A few snapdragons, sweet peas and violets are coming into the market.

NOTES.

On Saturday night, October 21, at the Price Hill Masonic temple, E. G. Gillett, as chairman of the Temple Club entertainment committee, welcomed the guests in an address that preceded the entertainment, the first of a series. The evening was a success that bespoke eloquently the untiring efforts of Mr. Gillett and his associates on the committee.

C. E. Critchell had some asters as late as last week. They were in pretty fair condition for the lateness of the season.

LIMITED SUPPLY HOLDS PRICES STEADY.

Business has not been normal the past week and the supply of stock was just enough to meet the demand. Had there been more stock prices would have suffered considerably. Chrysanthemums are coming more plentifully and they will arrive steadily from now on. American Beauties are still holding their own, specials selling at $20 to $25 per 100. Carnations are still bringing three cents for good stock. Violets are not selling so fast, but will improve soon, as the weather gets colder. Lilies are more plentiful. All greens are plentiful, except smilax, which seems very scarce. Dahlias are over for this season. Cosmos is still coming, but will not last much longer.

NOTES.

The Sewickley Horticultural Society will hold its first annual flower show Nov. 2-5. They expect to have exhibits from all the leading chrysanthemum growers in the country. For further particulars address Geo. Wessenauer, Sewickley, Pa.

Jos. Thomas and his greenhouse force made a tour of all the greenhouse ranges in the northern end of Allegheny county, October 22. He found the crops far behind in most establishments.

Geo. L. Huscroft, of Steubenville, O., died October 21. He was one of the most popular florists in the country. The florists of Pittsburgh express their sympathy to the family.

J. Meiklejohn, representing W. A. Manda, of South Orange, N. J., called on the trade this week with a fine line of decorative plants.

MARKET WELL STOCKED.

The market the past week has been well supplied with all kinds of stock. A few days of unusually warm weather, breaking the records of the weather bureau for October, brought everything along rapidly and rather flimsy in substance. Dahlias, not caught by the early frosts, are in evidence and appear to be in good demand. All other outdoor stock is about over. Roses are particularly plentiful and are sold low in quantity lots—the quality, until the warm spell set in, has been exceptionally good, American Beauties excelling. Russell has also shown class, while Prima Donna, with some growers who appear to have initiated themselves into the lady's good graces, is doing splendidly, showing up much better than the Russell; the stems are equally straight and strong and the color brighter. Carnations are improving and are more plentiful. Cattleyas are not so freely offered as two weeks ago. Lily of the valley is quite equal to the demand. Everything has, however, to stand aside for the chrysanthemum, which now, and for the next four weeks, will rule the market; there is an abundance of choice flowers in all colors, Chrysolora, with its huge yellow blooms, being the most conspicuous. Pacific Supreme, Polly Rose, October Queen, Early Frost, Unaka, etc., are also offered. The demand fell off considerably the past week, nearly all the stores complaining that the business was very flat with little doing. Week-end and special sales were in order, and the man who would take a chance, purchasing in any quantity, was given special attention and very low prices, the balance being almost given away to the street gentry.

NOTES.

The detailed report of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery meeting in Chicago, complete reports of which were given in THE AMERICAN FLORIST, issues of October 14 and October 21, was interesting reading to the retail brethren in this city. The great work being done by this association is not realized by those who are on the outside. Since its inception it has overcome many obstacles, which in reality proved to be only imaginary, as was seen when this fine body of men got together; they were found to be all of one mind, all in harmony and each willing to do his utmost to help the movement, which, while for his own benefit, is also bound to be a great factor in opening up a new field which will largely increase the sale of flowers in every state in the union. In every community, large or small, every live retail florist should become a member of this association; mingling with such progressive members of the trade will widen his vision and open his eyes to the possibilities of the increased business that is bound to come his way if he will work for it intelligently, along the lines laid out by this association.

Charles Grakelow, the live wire up-town retailer, celebrated his birthday October 17 at Lulu Temple by entertaining over 500 guests. The various midway attractions of a country fair afforded great amusement to the company. Mr. Grakelow, who belongs to Herman Zimmer piloted Samuel Liley, Rupert Kienle and Frank Gaul, October 15, through the famous dahlia farms of Atco, Williamstown and Collingswood, where he entertained the party with a good dinner. Exceeding the speed limit was a feature of the trip but as they never "fine" Fords in New Jersey, the usual admonishment was thought sufficient.

Wm. Graham, late of this city, but now of Chicago, is spending a week here attending his son's wedding and visiting old friends. Mr. Graham, who looks well, says Chicago is certainly a hustling city, something doing all the time, which keeps all branches, particularly the retailers, constantly on the go.

The Robert Craig Co. has commenced cutting chrysanthemums; a number of houses at their Forty-ninth street place look very well, particularly the later sorts. Plant shipping is going on extensively, the express companies, with their large trucks, being on the job morning and afternoon.

Edward Reid has somewhat recovered from the "western influence" and is getting down to business. He had a great trip. High grade chrysanthemums and choice American Beauties are features here.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is crowded to the doors with stock these days. Sawyer and Ophelia roses and chrysanthemums are headliners.

A new wholesale cut flower company is being incorporated to do business in the central district. Several well known members of the trade are interested.

At Berger Brothers, Tint of Gold, Chrysolora and other choice chrysanthemums were much in evidence. Good single violets sold well.

Choice chrysanthemums are a feature of Stuart Miller's stock. A good supply of roses and carnations are also being received.

M. J. Callahan had a loss by fire October 23. It started in the basement and spread rapidly. His loss is $500, fully insured. K.

New York.

MARKET LACKS LIFE.

The late "Sandy" Faulkner, the Arkansas poet, had a story about calling at a house one day to seek shelter from a heavy rainstorm. When he got inside he found there was little relief, as the roof leaked badly, so he said to the proprietor: "Why don't you fix that roof?"

"Can't fix it stranger, when it's raining," was the curt reply.

"Well, why don't you fix it when it stops raining?" "Don't need it fixed when it doesn't rain," was the come back.

Taking a humorous view of the situation, this market is a parallel. When there is a brisk demand for flowers everything cleans up and nothing seems to be needed, but when there is but little demand and stock keeps pouring in, nothing can be done, and the past week was a fair illustration of that condition. The gulf storm, or a section of it, swept this city, October 19, with wind and drenching rain. The following day was unseasonably warm, so these two days were practically lost to the trade. As a matter of course, the retailers must keep up a stock, and Saturday brought a little life to the market, but it was very much like sustaining life with a pulmotor. One leading wholesaler has stated that his September business was much better than it has been thus far, this month, and the statement is quite reasonable. In September he had a fair supply of roses which cleaned up. Now he has an increased supply of roses, a great stock of chrysanthemums, carnations, dahlias and various other stock, with no increase in the demand. The special stock in roses and chrysanthemums is particularly hard to move, as the general demand is for something cheap. The white chrysanthemums, good ones too, are practically a drag. There is a process in vogue with several wholesalers, of dipping or dyeing them pink and many are treated that way, and it is much more successful relating to appearance, than dyeing white carnations green. No fault can be found with the quality of stock on the market; even the violets are much improved in quality but there is simply too much of it for the demand. This refers particularly to the roses, chrysanthemums and violets. American Beauties, lilies and lily of the valley are holding on well, there being no surplus. Orchids are rather cheap, but moving fairly well.

October 23.—The weather is clear and cool, a condition that should be favorable to business, but business responds very slowly. The buying on Saturday, October 21, was fairly brisk, but it appears that the retailers did not clean up and it is slow this morning. While a few of the specials and novelties in chrysanthemums bring fair prices, the bulk of the stock is selling very cheap compared with former years. In white, there is good stock going as low as $1 to $1.50 per dozen, and the great supply of chrysanthemums is dragging down prices on nearly all other stocks.

NOTES.

C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., has recently returned from an extended business trip on the Pacific coast. He visited the principal cities of California, Oregon and Washington, and is well pleased with results. It is unnecessary to state that McHutchinson & Co. is a very enterprising firm. Their importation of raffia cloth from Madagascar is an innovation. We recently visited their warehouse where many thousand dollars worth of it is stored in bales. As will be supposed, by all who have handled raffia, the cloth is light but very durable and is in demand for the manufacture of summer hats.

The Warendorff family is so large that it is hard to keep track of all of them and their activities. Herman, the buyer and head of the house, is well known in the wholesale district and makes his headquarters in their fine store in the Ansonia Hotel. In the management of this store he is assisted by one brother, Richard. Edward conducts a store at Madison avenue and 59th street, while Ben, the humorist of the family, conducts a nice store at Liberty and Nassau streets. They have yet another store in the Empire building on lower Broadway.

Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Calif., was in this city during the past week, in the interest of their new rose, Los Angeles. On October 20 he visited Eugene Daille-douze, at his Flatbush range, who accompanied him to the fine estate of Admiral Aaron Ward at Roslyn, L. I. He later visited Bobbink & Atkins, the Julius Roehrs Co., C. H. Totty and other well known growers. Los Angeles, we have been informed, is an outdoor rose and will be disseminated in the east by Henry A. Dreer, Inc.

The flower stand in the Astor market, Broadway and 95th street, which is conducted by the United Floral Co., is very attractive. They have 500 square feet of space, the floor is concrete, the counters thick glass. As the market has its own refrigerating plant, they share in its benefits. The market being new and handsome and located in a fine section, is frequented by well-to-do people, thus a good quality of plants and cut flowers is kept in stock and a good business is carried on.

Attention is called to the announcement of the Nippon Garden, Inc., in another column. This store is near 28th street, only two blocks from the heart of the wholesale district. They are clever men, but for that matter all the Japs we ever met were clever. There is nothing in the line of Japanese gardening but what they can carry out successfully. At the last National flower show, they were awarded a certificate of merit for their exhibit.

Miss Florence Rubin, who, for the past seven years has been cashier for the New York Cut Flower Co., has resigned the position, to enter the married state, so it is said. We do not know the gentleman, but hope he is worthy of her as she is a fine young woman. She will be succeeded by Richard B. Cantillon, who for the past 12 years has served the same company in various capacities.

On the steamer Ryndam which reached this port October 17, the Macniff Horticultural Co. had several hundred cases of bulbs and plants, azaleas included in the plants. Robert Macniff advises us that his auctions of the past week were very successful. Calling, October 21, we found carpenters at work fitting up a poultry supply department in one of their stores.

We have recently noticed at the store of the Colonial Florist, Broadway and 157th street, a remarkably handsome display of chrysanthemums. In the show window space, which is large, they were closely arranged in a pyramid about 10 feet high. At the base there was a border of pompons, building up with large white, pink and yellow blooms in the order named.

A diversion for the next few weeks, will be the fall shows, Madison, N. J., October 26-27; Mt. Kisco, N. Y., October 27-29; Greenwich, Conn., October

The wholesalers need not worry, even if business gets worse. Miss Freda Hempel, Metropolitan opera star, who spent most of the summer in Germany, arrived here on the Bergensford, October 22. She says that the scarcity of food in the Fatherland is a blessing in disguise, as it is taking fat off both men and women and improving their figures.

A retail store that makes a fine appearance is that of the Boston Florists, at the northeast corner of Lexington avenue and 34th street. They occupy two floors, both having fine show windows which are always well filled with cut flowers and plants. This firm has occupied the same store for quite a number of years and have a nice business.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held Wednesday evening, October 11, President James McDonald in the chair. The report of the dahlia show was read and approved, and final arrangements were made for holding the chrysanthemum exhibition November 2-3. James Gladstone was appointed manager of the same. It was decided to hold a smoker after the next meeting, November 8, and it was left to the executive committee to make arrangements for same. Robert Jones offered a prize of $10 for the best decorated table by assistant gardeners to be competed for at that meeting, the decoration to consist of chrysanthemums. An essay received from the National Association of Gardeners on "Malnutrition in Trees," by Arthur Smith of New Jersey, was read and proved to be very interesting.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President;
F. W. Belgiano, Washington, D. C., First
Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The business of the Jones Seed Co. has been sold to the A. J. Brown Seed Co.

ALBERT DICKINSON, Chicago, will celebrate the seventy-fourth anniversary of his birthday October 28.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—George Jack, formerly with A. C. Brown, seedsman here, is with him no longer.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, October 25, were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.25 per 100 pounds.

WASHINGTON, IA.—The trustee in the bankrupt estate of the Mills Seed Co. here has made a first and final distribution of eight per cent.

WETHERSFIELD, CONN.—Seed growing conditions in this district are pretty serious on the large growers. Common labor at $3.50 per day is almost prohibitive.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The forces at the St. Louis Seed Co. and the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. are being kept busy. All indications point to a good fall season in seeds and bulbs.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—The Henry Field Seed Co. has discontinued the handling of soft house plants and 1-year roses, claiming this class of stock causes more trouble than seeds or bulbs.

NEW YORK.—W. E. Atwood, of the A. T. Boddington Co., Inc., sales staff, whose brother is a member of the flying corps in France, will leave shortly to join the American ambulance corps in that country.

It is reported that the growing of the old Totus Albus Paper White narcissus has been given up in Southern France because the smaller flowers will not sell in competition with those of Paper White Grandiflora.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; G. C. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; E. F. Crossland, of Steele, Briggs Seed Co., Toronto, Ont.; Thos. Madsen, New York.

NEW YORK agents of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, report that owing to present exceptional circumstances now prevailing, and the lateness of the crops, the preliminary seed list will be mailed about the middle of October.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—McKay, Reece & Co. have reorganized as the McKay-Reece Co., with the following officers: Duncan McKay, president; J. E. Patter, vice-president; E. F. Baird, secretary-treasurer. Additional warehouse room has been leased.

Dutch Bulb Dumping.

Seedsman of New York and vicinity are complaining of the very evident dumping of Dutch bulbs. The Dutch Bulb Growers' Union was evidently not well advised when it circularized the American trade with the statement that Dutch bulbs would not again be dumped on this market. Not only have surplus bulbs been consigned to the United States in large quantities but both trade and private buyers have been drummed to a finish by circular and otherwise proclaiming the reason of this wholesale dumping of such stocks. Where is the United States government anti-dumping inspector?

Snow Perils Western Seed Crops.

Sioux City, Ia.—We had about eight inches of snow here October 18-19 with some rain, the former drifting badly. Much of the corn in the field was blown over by the wind and the crop is partially covered by snow. We look for about 25 per cent damage to the many crops still in the field. However, the weather is now clear and if it warms up and the snow disappears quickly the condition will be improved. The sweet corn was good and dry and will better survive than would have been possible under less favorable circumstances.

SIoux CITY SEED & NURSERY CO.

Waterloo, Neb., October 20.—We have just passed through a very unusual storm for the time of year. It snowed more or less all day yesterday, although we only have about three inches. The snow was preceded by some rain, but not a great deal. The thermometer went down to 15-18 degrees above zero last night. It is feared a good deal of damage may have occurred to corn and a great many summer squash crops are still in the field. Most of our small corns are grown in the central part of this state and the storm was more severe there than here. We are afraid a good deal of damage has been done and that a short crop will be further reduced in quantity.

J. C. ROBINSON SEED CO.

Onion Seed Vitality.

Following the examination of 1793 samples of onion seed of succeeding crops from 1896 to 1912, the Connecticut experiment station in its annual report for 1915, Part 6, states that, in general, onion seed loses in vitality the second year, but it often happens that seed more than one year old from a crop grown and harvested under favorable conditions will sprout better than seed less than a year old, which grew or was gathered under unfavorable conditions. It is the opinion of the station, that with sufficient skill in separating seed after threshing and winnowing, Connecticut grown seed can be put on the market which will compare favorably with California seed, from the standpoint of high germination.

Gladiolus Diseases.

Continued appearance of several kinds of diseases in certain varieties of gladiolus bulbs, appearing either at digging or developing during winter storage, the nature and control of most if not all, of which seems to be entirely unknown to both state and government experts, prompts careful growers to discard all planting stock showing disease. The further question arises, Should any infected stock be used at all, especially on soil which may be used again? It is said that germs of "hard rot" will remain four years in soil where such infected bulbs have been grown. Of the well known kinds of diseases "hard rot" seems most prevalent, infecting a larger percentage of the varieties which it attacks and apparently making good progress in winter somewhat as crocus disease operates. Another more deadly infection is a dark brown, soft decay, which infects one-fourth or more of the substance of the bulb and quickly and rapidly involves 50 or even a larger per cent of it. As this develops the central part of this decayed portion becomes hollow and of a lighter brown color.

French Seed Crops.

A recent summary of the seed crop conditions in France contains the following:

"In general the land usually reserved for seed crops has been diverted to other purposes. The heavy drain on the country of all men capable of bearing arms between the ages of 18 and 48 has been a great burden in the country districts. Proficient and able-bodied help is no longer forthcoming. Many of the farms are much neglected. The women are nobly performing along with the men past military service and children their full share of the responsibilities of the war, but prefer to grow potatoes, haricots and wheat to the troubles of seed raising. Moreover, the prices are more remunerative and deals are made on a cash basis. This is of great importance to the small farmer as the cost of living has gone up considerably the past year."

Seed Importation Act Amended.

The joint regulations of the secretary of agriculture and the secretary of the treasury for the enforcement of the seed-importation act of August 24, 1912, as amended by the agricultural appropriation act of August 11, 1916, as compared with those published in T. D. 35363 of May 3, 1915, are as follows:

(1) Definitions of rye grass and vetch are included, the original act having been extended by the amending act referred to above so as to cover these seeds.

(2) More exact instructions for the sampling of screenings which result from the recleaning of seed in bond are provided.

(3) More definite disposition is provided for the various classes of screenings removed from seed in bond.

(4) Provision is made for the mixing of seeds of similar quality upon a written permit of the secretary of agriculture.

Next annual convention will be held at Springfield, Mass., in 1917.

THE potato market at New York has shown signs of weakening. Offerings have been large with no fair demand, and lower prices were easily established on nearly all grades of whites. —Good onions were steady and well controlled.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—Mushrooms, home grown, 15 to 25 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 6 to 8 cents; radishes, $1.00 per 100 bunches; celery, 40 to 50 cents per box; tomatoes, 10-lb. baskets, $1.00 to $1.25; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.50 to $1.75.

New York, Oct. 24.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $2.00 per basket; mushrooms, $1.00 to $2.00 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per package, 25 cents to $1.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.50.

Onion Exports from Valencia.

The 1916-17 onion export season opened for the Valencia district May 15, and shipments to September 16 have amounted to 852,860 cases and 584,995 crates as compared with 661,057 cases and 235,230 crates for the corresponding period of 1915, according to Consul John R. Putnam. The shipments to the United States began June 20, 1916, and have totaled for the less than three months period 564,835 crates and 20,034 cases as against 231,045 crates and 18,703 cases shipped during the same period last year. The export of onions from this district is steadily increasing each year.

Harvesting Sweet Potatoes.

Sweet potatoes must be harvested and stored with the utmost care, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture, if their production is to prove profitable. Any bruising of the roots, either in the field or in storage, will greatly increase the percentage of loss.

Throughout most of the sweet potato producing region the harvest will take place within the next six weeks or two months. Growers should be sure before digging that the roots are mature, and they should select a time when the ground is dry and the day bright. If frost nips the plants, the roots should be dug within the next few days, and, if this is impossible, the dead plants should be cut off at the ground with a hoe so that in rotting they will not carry the decay to the roots.

Care should be taken in plowing out the potatoes to avoid all bruising by contact between the implements used and the roots. The soil should then be scratched away from the potatoes and they should be left exposed for several hours to dry. Picking should be in padded boxes, baskets, or crates. The roots should be carefully placed, not thrown into the picking receptacles. Although sweet potatoes do not have the appearance of being easily injured, they require, in fact, as careful handling as oranges and apples.

Handling should be minimized to as great an extent as possible. This makes desirable a rough sorting in the field by placing the largest potatoes in one picking container, the smallest in another, and the bruised roots in a third. In no case should sacks be used either as temporary containers or for marketing purposes. Diseased potatoes should be placed in none of the assortments. Such roots should not be left permanently in the field, however, to contaminate the soil, but should be gathered and fed to pigs.

Sweet potatoes may be satisfactorily stored in bins, but where economically practicable it is advisable to store in crates or hampers, since such a practice reduces pressure on the roots, permits better ventilation, and confines such rotting as may start to a relatively restricted space.

Where storage is to be in bins or other receptacles these should, if they have been used before, be thoroughly disinfected by spraying with solutions of formalin or copper sulphate. The former should be used in the proportion of 1 pint to 30 gallons of water. The copper sulphate should be used at the rate of 1 pound to 25 gallons of water. With either solution a second spraying should be given after 24 hours.

Further information on this subject may be obtained from Farmers' Bulletin No. 548.

Celery Roots Bunched.

The report of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station botanist for 1915 calls attention to celery which after being transplanted remains small or becomes stunted during the season due to lack of sufficient fertilizer or of sufficient cultivation to enable the plants to make use of it in a normal growth. A somewhat similar trouble is attributed to excessive fertilization and the plants remain stunted, appearing "pot bound." While the roots in two fields under observation were massed together and had a reddish diseased appearance, no signs of fungus or bacterial cause were seen, the trouble being apparently due to fertilizer burn. In some instances the worst spots show a red color of the soil, due to the development of an unusual amount of unicellular alga, indicating an unusual condition of the soil solutions.

Nashville, Tenn.

AUTUMN BRINGS GOOD BUSINESS.

With the coming of the first frost and the approach of cold weather, the opening of the many schools, the inauguration of the social season, and the daily announcement of brides and brides-to-be, trade has taken a decided upward tendency which promises to be permanent during the season. Some very handsome wedding decorations have already been arranged at churches and homes, with a long list of bridesmaids, necessitating many elaborate bouquets, all of which made business good. The supply has grown with the season and the demand, and is very good. Chrysanthemums are coming in, in rich profusion and are much in demand for any and all occasions. Roses are much improved, the blossoms fine, but in some instances with short stems, but good blossoms and plentiful. American Beauty is coming on nicely and already is good to look upon. Carnations are excellent and good in supply. There is still a plentiful supply of lilies, there never having been a scarcity of them even through the summer season. The florists seemed to take a good deal of interest in a society stunt given here recently which they called "Fashions and Follies" and among other things demonstrated, the fashionable flower to be used with each gown and for each festive occasion, was shown off to advantage.

NOTES.

McIntyre Bros. have again opened up their stand in the market house. While doing a large business at their beautiful West End store, they find it profitable to also sell in the open market, reaching an entirely different class of customers. They have a fine supply of pot plants, chrysanthemums, cyclamen and a variety of cut blooms on sale.

Geny Bros. have an abundant supply of fine chrysanthemums and their roses are first class. They have fine Richmond, Killarney, both white and pink, Kaiserin, American Beauty, Aaron Ward and Mrs. Russell.

The Joy Floral Company is showing very fine American Beauty and other roses, as well as a choice lot of chrysanthemums and carnations. They have had some very fine wedding orders recently.

Funeral business continues good.

CYCLAMEN:

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted.

Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. Our plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently are invariably satisfactory both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

WENATCHEE, WASH.—The Columbia & Okanogan Nursery Co., of this city, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—Theo. E. Griesa, for many years in the nursery business in this city, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $24,564.87 and assets, $21,425.47.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The board of education of this city, through Samuel D. Jones, its business director, is asking for bids on 1,000 pin oaks and Norway maples for planting in public school playgrounds.

OCTOBER weather has been favorable for digging and handling out-door stock, but all growers and nurserymen should remember that we are nearing the date when all such operations are attended with freezing risks and will do well to provide nightly against damage from stiff frosts and arrange for warm refrigerator cars for transportation.

Peony Bulletin.

We have received from Secretary A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y., Bulletin No. 3 of the American Peony Society, containing proceedings of the society at its annual convention, held at New York, June 9-11, 1916, report of the New York exhibition, reports on local exhibitions, a symposium of the new foreign varieties, "Peonia lutea as a Basis for Cross-fertilization," by Winthrop H. Thurlow, and "Peony Fragrance." Copies of this bulletin may be had by anyone interested on application to the secretary as above.

California Association of Nurserymen.

The sixth annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen, scheduled to take place at the Civic Recreation building, Santa Barbara, October 26-28, has been postponed for one week. The association has extended an invitation to all horticulturists, landscape gardeners, florists, seedsmen and nurserymen to attend this meeting. The following programme replete with papers and discussions having to do with many phases of horticulture should prove of more than usual interest:

"Production, Prices, Salesmanship and Credits," by Geo. C. Roeding, Fresno; "Horticultural Laws, Pomologists and Plantmen," by Geo. H. Hecke, Sacramento; "Transportation Freight Rates as Affecting the Development of California's Nursery Industry," by Chas. W. Ward, Eureka; "California Native Plants in Our Parks and Gardens," by Theodore Payne, Los Angeles; "The Orange and Lemon in an Art Atmosphere," by F. N. Renfro, San Bernardino; "Standardization of Commercial Nursery Products," by Wm. T. Kirkman, Jr., Fresno; "The Proposed California Pure Seed Law," by

Geo. Weldon, Sacramento; "Commercial Bulb Growing in California," by Colin H. McIsaac, Santa Barbara; "New Plants of Commercial Value to the Trade," by D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena; "The Latest in Avocados and Other Tropical Plants," by T. U. Barber, Los Angeles; "Plant Immigrants in Our Parks and Gardens," by Prof. R. T. Stevens, Berkeley; "The City Beautiful; its Parks and Boulevards," by Ernest Braunton, Los Angeles; "The House Beautiful," by Mrs. Myrtle Shepherd-Francis, Ventura; "Santa Barbara, a Mecca for Plant Lovers," by Frank Ball, Santa Barbara.

Following the close of the business session, the local reception committee, under direction of W. J. Pettingill, will escort the visitors on a tour of inspection of many of the beautiful gardens in the vicinity of Santa Barbara, followed by an automobile trip to mountain and seaside resorts and a banquet in the evening.

White Pine Blister.

State boards of agriculture of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island have issued appeals to citizens to destroy all currant bushes, gooseberry bushes and flowering currant shrubs, as otherwise white pine is doomed. White pine blister, a disease brought from Europe on white pine seedlings a few years ago, has already spread so rapidly as to endanger white pine growth all over New England and other eastern states, but needs leaves of the currant and gooseberry as a go-between for propagation.

Chrysanthemum Novelties my Specialty

Sewickley Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the above society took place in the Odd Fellow's Hall, Sewickley, Pa., Tuesday, October 10, President Wessenauer in the chair. Four new members were elected. Some fine dahlia exhibits were on hand from R. Taylor, T. Sturgis, J. Carman, H. Rapp, G. Wessenauer and M. Curran, which brought forth an interesting discussion on this favorite flower. A vote of thanks was accorded all the exhibitors. The flower and vegetable show, September 22-23, was voted a complete success and the thanks of the society was extended to the committee. Arrangements were gone into for the forthcoming chrysanthemum show, November 2-5, and final committees appointed. The classes for private gardeners are confined to Allegheny county, but the commercial classes are open. Schedules may be had from the Secretary, M. Curran, Sewickley, Pa. The ladies of the Allegheny County Garden Club are giving able assistance and a good show is looked for.

M. CURRAN, Sec'y.

PANSIES.THE BEST GIANT PANSIES.

Our pansies are the best the world produces. They combine the choicest large flowering sorts of both European and American growers. It has been our aim to make this the finest strain of this favorite flower in existence. Raised at an altitude of 5,721 ft. above sea level gives them lots of fibrous roots. They start quickly. They are not soft.

Los Angeles.

BUSINESS AHEAD OF 1915 PERIOD.

It really looks like an early season among the local florists. All dealers report a business far ahead of a year ago. Violets are now selling at 10 cents the bunch and all the street stands are supplied with them. A few for-get-me-nots are seen.

NOTES.

Redondo Floral Co. reports brisk business for the week, having several large funeral orders from out of town. Weddings are still coming their way. They have an abundance of stock with violets showing considerable improvement. So far October is running way ahead of a year ago.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., was busy decorating the Alexandria hotel for the Hughes demonstration. This firm still seems to have the bulk of the orchids and lily of the valley in the city, as well as the gardenias. Their American Beauties are really fine.

J. W. Wolters had a window of pompons in all shades and sizes from yellow through the browns and bronzes to dark red. He raised them and he says he is much interested in this class of chrysanthemums.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson are busy with funeral work. Albert Goldenson announces his engagement to Miss Jennie Jacobi, of this city. We extend our best wishes.

The Broadway Florists recently had orders for one funeral, calling for 22 floral pieces. They are confident of a big season's trade.

O. C. Saakes has a nice line of pot palms and aspidistras, which make a fine showing among his fancy cut flowers.

Our Flower Shop is the name of a new establishment at 651 South Hill street. Mrs. Burrows is the manager. G. H. H.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held October 12, at the residence of Henry Gaethje, Rock Island, Ill., President Stapp in the chair. J. M. Hassett, of Davenport, Ia., was elected to membership. Bulbs and flowering plants for Christmas was the topic presented for discussion by P. J. Pearson. C. J. Reardon will select the topic for the November meeting, which will be held at the residence of C. O. E. Boehm, Van Der Veer Park, where the members will view the chrysanthemum show. Wm. Goos, Sec'y.

Cast Iron Cannot Be Compared with Kroeschell

We bought a No. 2 Boiler in 1904. It takes care of 5000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water.

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down

Have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885, both steam and hot water. Yours suits me the best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together, and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprung a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Poinsettias.

The crucial period in the growth of poinsettias is now at hand, and if the plants are in good condition there should be no difficulty in bringing them through all right. Steady firing can now be depended upon to maintain the proper temperature. Until the bracts are well formed, keep an even temperature and while these are forming avoid all draughts as much as possible. If the house is kept uniform at 60° at night with a rise of 10° during the day there will be but little trouble with the leaves dropping, but a fluctuating temperature will surely result in plants with bare stems. As soon as the bracts form tie the plants to stakes so as to support the flowers and have the plants erect. As many of the plants are used for home decoration a neat green painted stick adds to the attractiveness. The early struck plants and those that are grown in benches for cut blooms will be greatly benefited by a watering with liquid manure. Do not make it too strong at first. Begin with a weak liquid once a week and increase the strength, but after the bracts are fully out discontinue the watering with liquid manure or the color will be affected. The small plants should be placed in pans at once, if this has not already been done. They can be easily sized up now to make a fine appearance—a taller one in the center and shorter ones on the outside of the pan make the best appearance.

Roman Hyacinths.

The early Roman hyacinths should be well enough rooted to bring them into the houses. These early bulbs will require a little more heat than those that are forced later, when more time is given them to form good roots. A plan often adopted by growers of early bulbs is to place them under the benches on the heating pipes when first brought into the house. When hot water circulation is in use the boxes can be placed directly on the pipes, but with steam pipes it will be necessary to place pieces of wood or other material on the pipes, at least two inches thick, to protect the roots from the intense heat radiated by the steam pipes, and the boxes carefully watched to see that they do not dry out at the bottom. Make weekly plantings of Roman hyacinths in order to keep up the supply of flowers. Place some of the bulbs in bulb pans—a few of these will prove very satisfactory for house decoration, and if not used for this purpose the flowers can be cut the same as from boxes. It entails but little more labor to grow them in pots and at times they are very useful as a pot plant.

Lilies.

The lily bulbs will soon be here and preparations should be made to handle them immediately upon their arrival. There is no time to waste in order to have this crop in the best of shape for Easter, especially with the bulbs that are imported from Japan. Whichever way the bulbs are to grow, whether in 4-inch or 6-inch pots, it is necessary to have pots enough on hand to pot them all up at once, and a pile of good, rich soil all ready, so that there will be no delay. The rapid potting of these bulbs by some growers is done as follows: The 6-inch pots are placed touching each other and then filled about half full of soil; the bulbs are then placed on the soil and the pot filled in nearly to the top and watered. This can be done in this manner very rapidly and there is but very little handling of either the pots or bulbs. After the bulbs are in the pots they should be buried outside until good, strong root growth has taken place; the success or failure of the crop will mainly depend on having the bulb make good roots early. A frame that can be covered during excessive wet weather is the best place for these plants until they are brought into the houses. If the weather becomes very cold and severe the frames should be covered with sash or the beds have straw or some other protection thrown over them. If kept cool the bulbs will make strong roots before the top starts to grow, yet the ground over them should not be allowed to freeze or damage will be done. The giganteums for Christmas should now be growing nicely and the buds should show about November 10. If they do not appear by that time a little extra heat will be necessary to have them in on time.

Imported Azaleas.

The imported plants of Azalea Indica are now here and the grower will do well to prepare for them by having his pots and compost all ready to give them attention without any delay. The plants do not apparently root deeply in the soil in which they are grown in Europe, the balls being wide rather than deep, and consisting of a mass of fine fibrous roots. For this reason special azalea pots are made wider than the ordinary pots of the same depth, and just allowing sufficient room for a little drainage and to take the plants easily. One good crock should be laid concave side down over the drainage hole and a little rough fibrous peat shaken out when preparing the compost should be placed over this to prevent the fine sandy particles of the soil being washed away by the continuous watering. The soil should consist largely of fine yet fibrous peat, with a little good loam to give it adhesiveness and allow of its being well firmed in the pots and a sprinkling of guano or dried cow manure. As soon as the plants arrive take them out of the packages and examine them carefully to see if any are dry at the roots. Often they have been transhipped several times before reaching the grower and each time renders them more liable to be dry. Have flat tubs if no tank is at hand and place the balls of roots in water deep enough to cover them, leaving them to soak for an hour or two; then take them out and allow the superfluous moisture to drain away before potting the plants. If there is the least suspicion of dryness in the majority of the plants soak them all, for it can do them no harm and if potted while the center of the ball is dry, it will be difficult to moisten it afterwards and the drought will likely cause the loss of some leaves. In potting, the old ball should be lightly covered, setting the plant in the pot so that the soil rounds a little to the center and making it very firm. When the plants come with the heads tied up it will be better to untie them before potting, as it is impossible to see the exact shape of the heads while these are tied and this it is necessary to do to pot the plants properly. Pot each so that it looks best according to the shape of the head, and after potting stand the plants level on a shed floor and thoroughly soak every particle of soil with water. The plants must be gone over several times to do this, taking especial care that those on the outside are well moistened. When they have run a little dry, place them in a cool house and spray the heads several times daily. If there is a quite cool house with an earth floor, such as is used in many places for starting newly imported stock, this is the best possible place for the azaleas, and they will recover more quickly from the journey in the cool, moist atmosphere of such a house than anywhere else.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

What My Business Has Taught Me.

The following is an abstract of an article by Max Schling, the well known retailer of 22 West Fifty-ninth street, New York, in System for November:

A flower store is just like any other business, and a man who runs a flower store in a businesslike manner, has to suit his methods to his surroundings and to the classes from which he draws his patrons. When a man opens a store he should try and open it where he comes among an element with which his education or his knowledge is most in keeping.

When one is a florist he has to be not only a florist for the sake of dollars and cents, to have success, but he has to be a florist because the business awakens sufficient interest in him so that he loves his work; he has to have an interest in the people whom he sells to and interest in the people he buys of.

Cheap stuff does not mean a poor quality of stock. Cheap stuff means a flower or plant of good stock at a cheap price; and if a florist buys cheap stock of the kind I think of, he will never take advantage to sell it otherwise than in accordance with the standard of honest business men—to sell it at a fair profit, regardless of petty expenses like packing, care and such.

To gain the confidence of people one not only has to keep a good quality of stock and charge fair prices. He has also to give good service. When a customer comes into a store and orders $5.00 worth of flowers and selects something which might have been in the store for three or four days and is not up to the standard, he should be told: "Do not buy this."

AMERICAN BEAUTY ROSES.

SMALL'S NEW YORK STORE IN AUTUMN DRESS.

I can not sell flowers that would cause dissatisfaction and that are utilized only for the store.

When a customer calls or phones for flowers which are scarce and rare or which are not in stock he should be told: "How long will you allow me to deliver the order? I shall try my utmost to have it delivered on time."

Do not say, "I will send out and try to get for you the flowers you want." That is a wrong expression. If we get something which we need for a patron in our store, we do not get it for him, we get it for ourselves, for our business. In serving our customer our answer should be: "We will try our utmost to deliver your order promptly. Kindly give us the best time limit?"

Where there is a will there is always a way to fill this kind of order, even if it is at times with a loss—that does not count. By making possible the impossibilities, we gain the confidence of customers, and through the fact that we are willing and that we never say "no" to them, we greatly strengthen this confidence.

He must be first of all a careful buyer. That does not mean to cut prices. That means to buy what is necessary to keep a good stock on hand in accordance with the amount of business he does. He should buy good stock which lasts well. He wants to make progress by selling his own stock at a fair profit and he should be willing to pay a fair price when his judgment tells him that the stock is justly worth it.

A busy man spends half of his life in his business. His successful business which, when small, was not too big to take all its motive power from him, grows to need besides himself strong support which he can not gain for a weekly salary. He can gain that added motive power only if he manages to awaken the interest of his employees to such an extent that they begin to look at him not only as an employer but as a co-worker. He must manage to arouse their ambition to such an extent that when they begin to talk of his business they will not say: "The place I am working in," but "Our place," or "Our business." That is the kind of ambition which will help them because they will respect themselves more in that they respect their work and their employer, and it will help the business in that customers will like to have dealings at a place where the employees seem to be heartily interested in seeing that people get the best kind of service.

Chrysanthemums.

Chrysanthemums, the showiest flowers of the year, are now seen in all their splendor. They fill a most important place in the round the season sequence, coming in just as the glories of the garden are fading away, keeping the market filled with their beauty of form and color until the winter crops of the greenhouses have rounded into shape and are ready to succeed them. They are a profitable flower to the grower, enabling him to fill the houses emptied by spring sales with a crop which can be marketed by early November, again providing space to finish the plants for the Christmas holidays. Of late years the quality and size of the early varieties has greatly improved. Golden Glow is now universally grown as the earliest variety, coming in as early as August. Unaka is the first pink of note and Smith's Advance the earliest white. After these scouts, the grand army arrives, bringing many new ones each year, all fighting for recognition.

These gorgeous long-stemmed flowers are great helps to the decorator. No function of importance, with more or less elaborate floral display, is now complete without them. They are especially effective in wedding decorations, both at church and house. Tall floor vases of choice flowers standing high among palms in the chancel, or platform, or by themselves add much in their bold beauty of form and color. Shorter stemmed, large-flowered blooms in clusters, tied with ribbons at the pew ends of the center aisle, or arranged on tall standards at intervals along this main passage, are a great help to the decorative scheme.

The kneeling stool, which should have a place at every ceremony; church or house, is very effectively decorated with white chrysanthemums in their varied sizes tied with the necessary ribbons.

At the dwelling, have a separate color for each room, shades of pink, yellow and white, where they will fit in best with the color scheme of the decorations. Their efficiency is greatly enhanced by a judicious use of autumn leaves.

As a cut flower for sale over the counter, the chrysanthemum will be found most profitable; they are so beautiful in form and color, so sturdy and lasting, as to make them general favorites with the public. Especially are they useful and valuable in window and store decoration, keeping up a decorative effect that has much to do in advancing the business of the season.

As a flower for the funeral spray, there is nothing that makes more show than the chrysanthemum. Long-stemmed, white blooms, arranged with autumn leaves tied with purple ribbon, with a good sized spot of violets at the ribbon, is very suitable for the funeral of an elderly person. In fact, all colors except the bright yellow are useful for funeral purposes.

Beautiful bunches are made for the fair debutantes; when artistically arranged by themselves or in combination with many other flowers of the season and tied with suitable duotoned ribbons, they hold their own with any other and more expensive creation. As a flower for baskets, they make up wonderfully well. Nothing could be more effective than well arranged selections of both the large and pompon varieties in the newer Japanese bamboo vases and baskets, these coming from the native habitat of the flower, seem especially fitted for the chrysanthemum and form a combination that always attracts attention.

Many beautiful varieties of the pompon family seem to have been grown for the decoration of the table; arranged in low bowls, or in sprays, with autumn leaves on the cloth, they are very acceptable, their brown and russet tints blending in so exactly with the autumn foliage. These miniature varieties are also suitable for the popular tumbler baskets—filled all of one color with a sprig or two of autumn leaf, and tied with a suitable ribbon, they are as dainty and pretty as anything in the shop, and when a number sufficient to fill the window are nicely displayed, they are sure to attract a crowd and move off like hot cakes.

As a corsage flower, for which one or two choice blooms are sufficient, they are in great demand, especially during the football season, when often thousands are sold on the days of the big college games.

As a pot plant, they are one of the most satisfactory. Florists, who keep a selected stock, are sure to find them in good demand, very often getting more for them as cut blooms when stock of medium sized flowers run low, than when sold as plants.

Careful attention in looking after the large long-stemmed flowers is necessary in order that they shall give the best results when in the warm rooms of the dwelling. Nothing should be sent out that has not stood over night in deep jars of water or at least a sufficient time for stem, foliage and flower to have taken up or become filled with water. All superfluous foliage should be removed and the hard cane-like bottoms of the stems cut off so that the softer part may more readily absorb the water. A drop or two of formaldehyde in the jar will prevent any fouling of the foliage or stems and should be added to all jars of water in which flowers are kept. K.

Morning Glory Heavenly Blue.

THE CARNATION.

Night Firing and Fall Care.

The plants, having become well established, are now making fine growth, and in spite of the trying time they had outside during the past summer, will shortly be in good crop. Owing to the plants being generally small when brought in from the field, a great many growers topped their plants later than usual, consequently carnation flowers are now very scarce on the market, but before the chrysanthemums are out of the way there ought to be a good supply to meet the demand.

The care of the plants while they are in such active growth during the next few weeks of fine autumn weather will have a very important effect on the success of the winter crop. The general routine of the work in the care of the plants should receive close attention. The necessity of night firing creates a changed condition for the plants; a more even night temperature can now be maintained, and it will be necessary to pay closer attention to the watering. Bright sunshine during the daytime, followed by cool nights, with a little firing, will cause the beds to dry out quickly, but these are also ideal conditions for the plants to make good growth.

It is assumed that all the plants are neatly supported ready for their winter's work by this time; if not, the work of putting on the rings and wires should be finished up without any further delay. The shoots of the plants already supported should be placed in the rings as they become in need of it; there is a lot of labor saved when this work is done on time. To allow the shoots to grow wild out over the benches means a great deal more trouble when putting them in, as well as causing many crooked and broken stems. As soon as the shoots commence to bud up, they should receive attention as regards disbudbing. Remove the side buds and growth far enough down to insure a nice stem to the flower, but do not carry it far enough to the extreme to also remove the lower shoots, which are the ones to be depended on to give size to the plant for winter flowering.

Do not allow insects of any kind to get a foothold; the only way to make sure of this, is to attend to the work of using the insecticide regularly. After it becomes necessary to use the steam, the men in charge of the temperature, either by day or night, are just about as important as anyone on the place, the success or failure of the crops depending to a great extent on how faithful they are at obeying instructions and attending to their duties. The temperature to be kept in each house should be plainly marked up at every thermometer, and the men should be thoroughly instructed in the airing and the use of the ventilators. It will be some time before it will be necessary to fire steadily with the ventilators closed down tight. At present, there are very few nights when it is necessary to use the steam all night; by leaving the ventilators open a little and using a single line of pipe, a more even temperature can be maintained. While the plants are making growth and not so heavy in flower, it is best to keep them a little cool. The night temperature best suited for them now is 48-50 degrees with a raise of six degrees in the daytime on cloudy days. On bright days the temperature must be regulated to a great extent by the ventilation. It is very important that the temperature be not allowed to reach a high degree early in the day before shutting off the steam and raising the ventilators. Carnations thrive in a cool temperature—heavy forcing is ruinous to them. Let this, therefore, be the guide in their care, particularly during the next few weeks.

Violets and Pansies for Spring.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise me as to the growing of Princess of Wales violets and pansies in cold frames, and whether it is too late to plant for the spring trade.

New Jersey.

W. V.

Princess of Wales violets can be grown in cold frames in New Jersey; the only drawback to the method is the picking of the flowers during severe weather, and while a nice cut of blooms can be had during the season, it does not pay compared with the plants grown in a greenhouse. The plants should be placed in the frames as soon as possible so as to get well established before severe winter weather comes on, but do not be in a hurry to put on the sash while the weather remains open and dry, but if heavy rains come on, the plants must be sheltered. Plenty of air should be given on every favorable occasion and every means taken to guard against closeness during mild weather.

As a protection during very cold periods, bank up the sides of the frames with leaves and straw litter and use straw mats for the sash covering. Early October is not too late to transplant pansies in cold frames for early spring trade, providing you have the young seedling plants on hand, but it is now getting late to sow seed.

C. W. JOHNSON.

THE ROSE.

Preparing for the Christmas Cut.

Too many roses at this season would not be proper, it seems, as the chrysanthemums must have a chance, so the rose grower can console himself, for the reign of the autumn queen is of short duration, and even during her reign the rose comes in for a small share of admiration, and this little rest-up we have always found very beneficial to the roses, as it gives one the opportunity to build up the plants and to get them into prime condition for the heavy strain they will be subjected to during the dark winter months. So we always suggest at this time pinching out all the short growths about the last of October, and also the pinching of any of the growths intended for the Christmas holidays. Usually any of the pinching done the three last days of October and the first two or three days in November will bring the cut about on time for Christmas, providing of course that one has ordinary good weather, and that the temperature has been maintained evenly. A latitude of nearly a week, or we will say a week, compensates for dark or cold weather that may be encountered during this time.

Of course there are other things besides an even temperature and allowances for the weather to be considered. The watering must be done carefully; also the feeding, and all this summed up means skillful handling at all times and a thought each day to the many details involved in handling the stock successfully. Following is a list, or, we might say, a partial list of the "Don'ts" that may be of some help to the beginner:

Don't syringe the plants when the temperature is less than 70 degrees in the rose houses.

Don't ventilate by putting a foot of air on the houses to cool them down quickly; increase the ventilation gradually and decrease it the same way.

Don't use any more artificial heat than is necessary; bank the fires as soon as practicable.

Don't syringe heavily or water heavily if the weather is threatening. If, after syringing, one gets caught with a cloudy sky, take a short piece of hose and go after each plant; a light tap will remove the surplus moisture and a crack of air with a little circulating heat will usually bring the plants through in good shape before night.

Don't wait until the plants show the red spider signs, but syringe for the "little devils" every day throughout the year—good and hard.

And, don't think of letting the green fly get a foothold; a light fumigating once a week will keep the plants absolutely free of them.

This list of "Don'ts" will be about all for this time. We will now add a few suggestions as to feeding. At this time the plants should be growing nicely, with perhaps here and there a bud that needs some extra feeding. If the plants are carrying good foliage, but the same has an over-ripened look, and the growths are very much shortened, this (as a rule) indicates a starved condition, and rather extreme. A good mulch on such beds should be applied at once, and watered in, using fairly well rotted cow manure, having the soil in a condition to take a good soaking. Only in treating roses in this condition would we suggest a mulch at this season, as we think the liquid manure offers the best, and by far the safest means of feeding during the winter months, especially if the grower is, through inexperience, a little afraid of over or under watering his plants. A grower with a knowledge gained by years of careful observation and experience will apply a mulch at most any time during the year, but the novice has all to lose and very little to gain by attempting on a very large scale anything in the feeding line beyond his actual experience. We say on a large scale, meaning, of course, trying out the experiment, for instance, on a whole house or a range of houses. We would suggest taking a section of a bed in each house and experimenting in a small way. One has quite a wide range of fertilizers to draw on, a great many of them being practically worthless in the rose houses. Among the best for roses will be found steamed bone meal, dried blood, tankage, shredded cow and sheep manure, and occasionally nitrate of soda. The above fertilizers are a few that we think are the most practical and useful to use in the rose houses; and at the same time, the safest. The nitrate of soda can be applied as a liquid, using one pound to 50 gallons of water. We have used one handful of dried blood to two square feet of surface; also, bone and tankage in the same quantity, with excellent results on other soils than ours. It may take more or less to get results, which brings us back to our suggestions of trying out a small section when experimenting. The shredded sheep and cow manure can be applied as a light top dressing to the beds at any time, in connection with the regular weekly application of the liquid manure.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Professor A. H. Nehrling announces that the annual flower show will be held November 11-13. Many new features are to be introduced. The design of the entire show is to be as nearly as possible that of a formal garden. At each end of the hall will be constructed a pergola. Water features are to be introduced also. Another feature will be an art exhibit of flowers in picture frames, such as were shown at the National Flower Show. Wedding decorations are to occupy a prominent position, and many other forms of bouquets to be worn on the person are to be exhibited. Competitions, one on the best arranged table decoration and another on the best flower basket, are open to the students, and there is to be keen competition for the prizes. A special class has also been arranged for the Northampton & Holyoke Gardeners' & Florists' Club.

John Coombs and family of Hartford were recent visitors at the college greenhouses.

The commission appointed by Governor McCall to investigate the work of the college, visited the department of horticulture recently and expressed themselves as well satisfied with the amount of practical work being given the students.

The class in flower baskets, open to the students of the agricultural college, at the Northampton & Holyoke Florists' & Gardeners' Club show, to be held at Northampton, has aroused keen interest among the students, and a close competition is expected.

WITH THE GROWERS

Elmer and Chas. Weaver, Ronks, Pa.

At Ronks, Elmer Weaver and his brother, Chas. M. Weaver, have large areas of glass so close together as to almost appear to be one establishment.

Elmer Weaver does several things very well, calendulas, sweet peas and carnations being his principal crops. The calendulas are from seed sown in ground beds about August 10 and are now (October 14) strong plants full of buds and from which some flowers have been cut. Side benches of this very wide house are filled with mignonette, which looked well. The strain is selections from Farquhar and Hoehl varieties. Carnations are given a large house, 45x230 feet; all are in ground beds. They were nice, bushy plants, having all the early shoots made in the house topped back, Mr. Weaver saying this strengthened the plants and insured better crops later. In a smaller house were new sorts being tried out. Miss Theo is well thought of here, there being plants with 24 shoots and one on which were counted 24 buds. They are also much pleased with Alice. In the large house the walks between the beds of carnations were quite wide and a row of sweet peas down the center of each were about a foot high. Mr. Weaver finds he can manage both crops in this way. A new cement wall and iron eave plates to replace a modern structure along one side of the large houses that had given way, was being put in.

At Chas. M. Weaver's range, sweet peas and mignonette are specialties. A house 18x325 contained three ground beds of mignonette, which would gladden the heart of any grower; every part of it was in splendid condition, all coming into bud. A new house 30x300 is in process of erection, about half completed. Sweet peas are to be the crop here and are up nearly a foot, the house being built over them. In an adjoining house, 40x300, sweet peas, sown July 20, were from three to four feet in height; they were blooming freely, cutting having commenced about October 1. They were all orchid varieties, and from their early start, should give a good account of themselves the coming season. The house is quite high and a pipe tie rod from one side to the other, about seven feet from the ground, affords support for boards on which the men stand when picking sweet peas later in the season when the vines attain their full size. Tobacco dust is frequently applied to keep down green fly, particularly when the vines are young. Mr. Weaver believes that striped or mottled sweet pea flowers are due to damage from green fly when the plants are young; the vines may later seem to attain vigor and grow, but the flowers are never as good. The system of staking here is the best the writer has ever seen. Roofing lath 2½-inch by 1-inch and 8 feet long, are driven into the ground crossways of the row, 20 feet apart, the length of the house; light galvanized wire is attached to each edge of the lath six inches apart with a matting tack which holds the wire to place but does not bind. When the season is over the wires are easily removed and wound up to be used again. The varieties are White Orchid, Pink and White, light sport of Rose Queen and a deep pink and blue sport of his own. The Skinner system of irrigation is installed in all but the carnation houses, the sweet pea houses having one pipe to two rows of plants. A 17-foot driven well in the bottom of the stoke hole gives a never failing supply of water. An electric motor operates the pump, current costing 4½ cents a kilowatt, being found much more economical and convenient than gasoline. A new and massive concrete chimney is said to be very efficient. About 55,000 feet of glass is the area here.

Both of these places are very interesting, all plants being grown on a large and yet economical scale. K.

Totty's Novelties.

Possibly there are many people who know Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., that never suspected that "Horticulture" is his middle name, but after many visits to his ranges, seeing his stock in many exhibitions, and hearing him talk on the various phases of the business, we have concluded that such must be the case. We will not call him a "wizard," for in the light of recent events, wizards are becoming obsolete. And again, in many minds, wizards are associated with hermits and with what some colored folks call "night doctors," and we are sure he is none of these.

As a grower and distributor of novelties in roses and chrysanthemums, he has an established reputation, which he not only sustains but in-

At the San Francisco exposition this rose was awarded the prize as being the best rose entered in competition with roses from all over the world. Primrose is a bronze-yellow variety that will also be disseminated in 1917. This also is a greenhouse rose.

In chrysanthemums, varieties that are this year being shown for the first time, are Golden Champion, and W. H. Waite, bronze. Golden Champion, as the name indicates, is a very attractive yellow. October King, an incurved variety, is not only a beautiful yellow, but also a very finely formed flower. As usual, he is very strong on pompons and single varieties. H. Marie Totty is a very handsome single crimson with an orange center.

Since the foregoing was written we have visited the Madison, N. J., flower show, where his new productions were exhibited, and find that we have omitted several new varieties. Ulster Standard is a fine single, for garden culture, red in color. Golden Spray is a yellow garden rose. Nellie Parker, Ophelia shade, may turn out to be a good greenhouse rose. For his collection of new roses he was awarded a special medal by the judges of the show, first prize for Hoosier Beauty and numerous prizes for exhibition and commercial chrysanthemums.

At his range, growing in the open, he has a large and fine stock of delphiniums or hardy larkspurs.

creases as the years go by. Cleveland, the latest pink rose which he introduced to the trade, is now reaching the market in considerable volume and is winning golden opinions. Tipperary is a promising yellow rose. Seedling F 16 is another yellow that looks very fine.

In garden roses he has a good selection of the Dickson productions that will be disseminated in 1917. Among them are Ethel Dickson, pink, and other promising varieties. There are also many seedlings under test. Lillian Moore, yellow, known as the "$1,000 trophy" rose, a greenhouse variety, will be disseminated in 1917.

Palm Smut.

False smut, a fungus which appears on palms in greenhouses, is not uncommon in tropical regions, especially on the date palm, according to the report of the botanist at the Connecticut agricultural experiment station, New Haven, for 1915. The fungus was collected in New Haven in 1914 on specimens imported from Ghent, Belgium. It was originally considered a smut and rupturing shows as small black cup-shaped receptacles, light in color, when on top and elevated above the surface of the leaf about one-half millimeter. When abundant it causes some damage to the leaves.

EXHIBITIONS.

Madison, N. J., Exhibition.

The twenty-first annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held in Assembly Hall, Madison, N. J., October 26-27. This society is known far and near for the fine stock exhibited at its shows, and this year it fully sustained its reputation. The competition did not seem to be as close as it has sometimes been in former years, but a large amount of fine stock, both in roses and chrysanthemums, was exhibited. Considering the season, no fault could be found with the carnation exhibit, but this is not the time of year when much can be expected of carnations, and all fall shows are primarily chrysanthemum shows.

It may be of interest to many to know what varieties are winning prizes this year, so we will mention a number that entered largely into the successful competition at this show. Some of the following are already well known to the trade: Bob Pulling, a very large yellow bloom; James Fraser, yellow; Pockett, crimson; Mrs. D. Syme, white; A. S. Baldwin, yellow; Glenview, bronze. To the writer's eye, Glenview seems to be the ideal bronze. William Turner, white, has been seen in exhibitions for a number of years and there are but few that, so to speak, can "put it out." Mary Mason, bronze, is well known as a fine flower. Lady Hopeton, lavender shade, is a very large bloom. Alice Day is a white of good appearance. Mrs. R. C. Pullen, a good yellow, and Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg is another yellow of large size. Golden Champion, October King and Marigold are yellows that look fine. C. H. Totty is a good bronze.

The rose exhibits seemed exceptionally fine for this time of year. C. H. Totty's exhibit of new varieties was most interesting. His new yellow rose, Lillian Moore, seems to justify all that has been said and written about it. American Beauty, Mrs. George Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Lady Alice Stanley, J. L. Mock, Prima Donna and other varieties were shown in excellent form.

The exhibits were very cleverly arranged, Arthur Herrington being superintendent of the exhibition. The stage was handsomely decorated by C. H. Totty, as a good-will offering, many fine exhibition, single and pompon varieties of chrysanthemums, being used with autumn foliage. The group in the center of the hall, arranged by Robert Tyson, superintendent for Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, which captured first prize, was a very attractive arrangement of chrysanthemums and crotons. Good fruit and vegetables were exhibited. The judges were: Frank Traendly, Peter Duff, John Downing, John Everett and John Dunn, who, after their labors were completed, were entertained by the society at a dinner at the Madison house.

The following were among the leading successful contestants in the cut flower competition: C. H. Totty, Madison, seven first and three second prizes; L. M. Noe estate, Madison, two first, one second and one third prizes; L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, two first and two second prizes; L. A. Noe, Madison, one first and one second prize; Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, and A. S. Baldwin, Madison, one first, one second and one third prize each; Noe & Ruzchika, one third prize; Geo. B. Schley, Far Hills (Wm. Hickvale, Gr.), eight first and three second prizes; J. C. Brady, Gladstone (J. G. Walker, Gr.), seven first and three second prizes; Ernest Wild, Madison, six first, one second and one third prize; O. H. Kahn, Morristown (Jas. Fraser, Gr.), three first and four second prizes; Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, Convent (R. Tyson, Gr.), three first and one second prizes; W. H. Dodge, Madison, N. J. (Wm. Duckham, Gr.); G. G. Fruylinghuysen, Morristown (Wm. Benning, Gr.); Kinnelon, Butler (Geo. Fisher, Gr.), and M. Macdonald, Summit, two first prizes each; "Wayside," Convent (S. Francis, Gr.), two first and two second prizes; Mrs. J. Crosby Brown, Orange (Peter Duff, Gr.), one first and two second prizes; New Jersey State Hospital (Otto Koch, Gr.), one first prize; J. Gordon Douglas, Morristown (A. Sailer, Gr.), one second and one third will not be room for anything else. One dahlia exhibit, that of Mr. Lowry, had probably 1,500 varieties, and Edwin H. Rust must have had as many, while in all cases it seemed that each variety was worthy of cultivation. The exhibit of chrysanthemums was likewise large and the individual flowers equal to anything the writer has ever seen. This was particularly true of the Wm. Turners. The exhibits of flowering and foliage plants and their arrangements were the best ever. Roses were scarce, only a few varieties being shown. The best were some Karl Druschki and Rayon d'Or. Some table decorations were introduced and showed up well. Henry A. Siebrecht, the new Maryland hotel florist, was the decorator.

prize; W. G. Castra, Bernardsville, one second prize; John R. Mitchell, Madison, two second prizes; L. A. Theben, Morristown (E. Regan, Gr.), one second prize. In the plant section, the awards were as follows: Mrs. H. McK. Twombly and S. W. and A. Colgate, Orange (W. Reid, Gr.), two first prizes each; David Francis, Convent; Chas. F. Bannott, Summit (S. Blendin, Gr.); Lager & Hurrell, Summit; C. B. Wittpen, Bernardsville, (L. Barkman, Gr.); P. H. B. Fruylinghuysen, Mrs. J. Crosby Brown, and O. H. Kahn, one first prize each; A. H. Fries, Morristown (T. Dorner, Gr.), and W. S. Thorne (J. R. Francis, Gr.), one second prize each, and G. B. Schley, one third prize. Special prizes were awarded to L. A. Noe, New Jersey State Hospital, J. C. Brady and J. L. Ruzicka. Chas. H. Totty received a medal for garden roses, also for chrysanthemums, and a special certificate of merit for Rose Lillian Moore. A. Pasadena, Calif., Fall Show.

The ninth annual fall flower show opened October 26 in the new palm garden of the Hotel Maryland. The setting was of the best and the exhibit as a whole was grand. To describe any individual exhibit would make it necessary to describe all, which would be impossible. If these dahlia experts do not quit business soon there

I must not forget the pompons, for they seem to be gaining in favor every year. There were thousands of them, and in all the range of colors. Another exhibit which was worthy of the big space given it was chrysanthemum plants in tubs and pots, some of these plants being simply wonderful in size and number of flowers and in their formation. The ninth annual fall show was certainly a credit not only to its sponsors, but to the city of Pasadena.

Lenox Flower Show.

The flower show of the Lenox Horticultural Society at Lenox, Mass., which opened October 26 was a successful affair and brought out quite a number of excellent displays. Orchids and chrysanthemums were seen at their best and the rose division was also a prominent feature. Arthur N. Cooley won the principal chrysanthemum prize, the Lenox Horticultural Society cup, for the best 10 blooms, distinct varieties. Giraud Foster was second; Mrs. Robert Winthrop, third, while Mrs. W. E. S. Griswold received honorable mention. Arthur Cooley also won the prize for the principal orchid display. In the smaller exhibit of orchids, William Hall Walker's showing took the honors. Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt also showed fine orchids and chrysanthemums. Other excellent displays were made by Mrs. William Douglas Sloane, Carlos M. de Heredia, Frederic E. Lewis, William E. Hoyt, Warren M. Salisbury, Chas. S. Mellen and Mrs. Charles Lanier. Mrs. Sloane won first prizes for the best scarlet, pink, yellow and bronze roses; also for the best begonia and specimen ferns.

New York Notes.

The florists' club entertainment committee for "ladies' night," November 13, has handed us the following announcement: To the ladies: "Reserve the night of November 13; that's the night we want to heartily greet you as the welcome guests of the New York Florists' Club, in their annual ladies' night entertainment. But, it will not be like any other 'ladies' night' we have ever celebrated. In addition to a clever entertainment by professional talent, there will be a happy, care-free dance in the spacious ball room of the Grand Opera House. The music will be no less than by celebrated talent of the Grand Opera House orchestra. The refreshments will be served by one of New York's most celebrated caterers. To make this event a complete success, you, the mothers, wives, daughters, sisters and sweethearts of members of the club, must be present."

The exterior decorations of the front of J. H. Small & Son's store, Madison avenue at 52d street, are attracting much attention. The many boxes have recently been filled with arbor vitae and English ivys. A very clever arrangement has been installed for watering these boxes. A perforated pipe has been run along the front of the store, and so arranged that when the water is turned on, each box is watered. This is done early in the morning, so that any drip may be washed off the sidewalk before there is much travel.

Harry Ramm's Flower Shop, recently opened on Madison avenue, near 45th street, is cleverly arranged. Though yet a young man, he has had 25 years' experience in the business, having started when he was a "kid" in knickerbockers. He has a thorough knowledge of the business and should be successful.

We have recently noticed at the store of Riedel & Myer, Inc., 49 West 28th street, fine stock of the new rose, Cleveland; also, Sunbursts, Wards, Marylands and the Killarneys, pink, white and Brilliant. Al. Bowker, a well-known and popular salesman, is now with this firm.

Hanft Brothers, Madison avenue and 62d street, are making great improvements in their store. During the summer they erected a nice conservatory in the rear and are now installing a number of large mirrors in the main store, and they advise us that they are just beginning.

Al. Rigo, who opened a retail store a year ago at 810 Madison avenue, has taken his brother Albert as a partner, the firm name now being Rigo Brothers. They have made a number of improvements in their store and deserve success because they are honest and clever.

Henry Hart, 1000 Madison avenue, who has been having his store rebuilt, has been somewhat delayed on account of the proper material being slow in arriving. However, he will open November 15 one of the finest retail stores in the city.

Our old friends, Christatos & Koster, 717 Madison avenue, have made great improvements in their store during the summer and are not worrying about business, for they feel sure they will get their share.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS LEADING FEATURE.

Trade is keeping up in a very satisfactory manner. Chrysanthemums, of course, overshadow everything else and are arriving in large quantities. Quality has rarely been surpassed. Many new aspirants for public favor have made their appearance, but none of them have leaped into such great favor as Marigold. For color, this variety has few, if any, equals, and bids fair to be largely planted next season. The heavy shipping keeps prices at higher levels than for some time and bids fair to keep up. The bright, sunny weather, which we are now having, is improving the quality of roses greatly. American Beauty and Russell, especially the latter, are none too plentiful and are moving at good figures. Carnations are improving rapidly, but as yet there has not been any material advance in prices, nor is there any likelihood of their doing so as long as chrysanthemums hold sway. Violets are in ample supply, with prices nominal. Owing to the absence of frosts, there is still a great abundance of dahlias and zinnias. The former are brought in in large quantities and good stock is bringing fairly remunerative prices. The supply of cattleyas is increasing daily, and it is hoped that there will soon be enough to go around. Lilies are in rather short supply with the demand limited. Pompon chrysanthemums are in now in great profusion and are being largely used in decorations. Lily of the valley remains scarce. Miniature roses, too, could be more largely used if the supply was more generous. A few sweet peas still hang on and are of inferior quality.

NOTES.

John A. Stewart, senior member of the Christopher Nursery Co., Christopher, Wash., who died October 19, was well known to the trade in this city and vicinity. He had been ill for several years from a stroke of paralysis and during that time had taken no active part in the business. He was a Scotchman by birth, had been trained from youth in the nursery business in the old country, and continued in the same line for more than a third of a century in this country. He was careful and painstaking in his work, prompt and fair in his dealings, and a man of strict integrity. His sons, who have charge of the Christopher Nursery, will continue to carry on the business as usual.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, arrived during the week to make final arrangements for the chrysanthemum show to be held in Sacramento on November 2-4. This is the first attempt on the part of the retail florists of that city to hold an exhibition and all are working untiringly to make it a success. Mr. Ebel has been the prime mover in this project. To further advertise the show it has been decided to donate the proceeds to charitable purposes. The show will be largely attended by the trade of this city and most of our prominent growers have promised exhibits. The Lynch Nursery Company is going to send a large display of chrysanthemum cut blooms.

E. M. McLellan & Co., of Burlingame, are experiencing quite an annoying matter with the board of trustees of that town at the present time. Some of the long haired residents of the town have had their sense of smell irritated by the fumes from the fertilizers used by that concern and have had the greenhouse establishment declared a nuisance. The last time we talked with Brother McLellan about the matter he wore his usual smile and did not seem in the least worried about the ultimate result of the investigations by the city fathers.

All is in readiness for the show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society. Owing to the fact that the society will hold no chrysanthemum show this fall, this exhibition looms up as the biggest attraction in the flower show line to be held this season. The list of entries received is a large one and no doubt the capacity of the hall will be heavily taxed. A full report of the show will appear next week.

Herbert Charles, an employee of C. C. Morse & Co., at their seed farm at Hollister, was killed by an unknown automobile driver on the state highway last week. The body was found on the road with the skull crushed. So far, no trace has been found of the party driving the car. Mr. Charles was very popular, both with his employers and fellow workman, and his death is deeply deplored.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been making a very beautiful window display of orchids during the week. This is the specialty of this enterprising firm and they always have something of unusual merit in the orchid family to show. We also noted some elegant chrysanthemums, especially Turners. They report trade as excellent.

The annual chrysanthemum and dahlia show of the city of Santa Rosa will be held November 2-3. Mrs. H. H. Moke has been chosen to direct the show and will be assisted by the trade members of the locality. Many valuable silver cups and cash prizes will be awarded and the exhibition promises to be the most interesting one ever held in the "City of Roses."

F. C. Ruggles, of the Santa Cruz Dahlia Gardens, was a visitor during the week, looking over the freesia bulb market. Neo Ruggles is one of the prominent freesia growers of Santa Cruz and reports nearly all large sized bulbs are sold out. He intends to increase his plantings largely next season.

John D. Meriweather, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Fresno, was in town during the week. He has recently returned from an extensive eastern trip. He reports trade in citrus trees in a very healthy condition, and has several cars of large orange trees on the way to Atlantic coast points.

Superintendent McLaren, of Golden Gate Park, has had a finely grown specimen chrysanthemum plant on view in the lobby of the Palace hotel during the week. The variety was a white and was greatly admired by thousands of visitors.

Hans Plath left during the week to attend the convention of the California Nurserymen's Association at Santa Barbara. Before returning home he intends to visit all the trade centers of the southern part of the state.

Manager Shellgrain, of the J. B. Boland Co., says he is well pleased with the way business is opening up. This firm's windows are always interesting and much skill is shown by the firm's decorator on all occasions.

H. Shibuya, a grower of Menlo Park, ran down a messenger boy in town last week with his new car. The boy refused to have Shibuya arrested as he promised to pay all the expenses for medical attendance. G. N.

Southern Floral Co. Formed.

A. E. Kutschbach, August Bering, Sr., and Walter Retzer, all engaged in the florist business at Houston, Tex., have formed the Southern Floral Co. with a capital stock of $100,000. They have acquired 25 acres of land near that city, six acres of which will be under glass. The balance will be devoted to growing outdoor stock.

Boston.

POOR MARKET AND PRICES SLUMP.

The market has been very poor during the past week. Prices on nearly every line of flowers have dropped as the big crop of chrysanthemums come in. Roses have suffered as much as anything, the price now being from 50 cents per 100 to $8 per 100 on the fancy varieties. Carnations, also, have decreased in value, the very best bringing only $2.50 per 100, while the average stock sells for $1.50 to $2 per 100. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and only the best of the crop bring good prices. A few Bonnaffons are coming now, but Chrysolora is more plentiful for a yellow. Pacific Supreme, Glory of the Pacific and October Frost also are plentiful. Pompons are in good supply, Mrs. Buckingham and Lillian Dotty being the most plentiful. Pot chrysanthemums are arriving and are the mainstay in the pot plant trade.

NOTES.

The Boston Flower Exchange held its annual banquet at Young's hotel October 28. The board of directors were unanimously re-elected for the coming year. A very fine collation was enjoyed, after which talks by James Methven, J. Farquhar and Wm. Elliot followed. J. Mahoney, from Thos. Galvin's, furnished the entertainment.

Raeder's, of Hyde Park, have started business after a lapse of eight years. They will grow sweet peas and chrysanthemums. Miss Raeder, who died a short time ago, was very well known at the Park street market. The new business will be carried on in the same establishment by her brother.

Thomas Pegler, Brunswick, Me., was visiting in Boston this week. He was quite at home among his many friends among the trade and all were glad to have him with them again.

Harry Ward is receiving from the Breck-Robinson Nursery Co. some very fine Alice Manning tuberous begonias.

Bert Sloan, of the New England Supply Co., is the happy father of an eight-pound girl.

The bowling league held a meeting October 26 at the Boston alleys and an enjoyable evening was spent. The teams are all bowling in good form and the competition promises to be keen for this season. The standing is as follows:

Flower Exchange	7	1
Mc & Mc.....	6	2

STOCK PLentiful AND TRADE BRISK.

Market conditions continue unchanged—plenty of good stock and a big volume of business. Chrysanthemums are plentiful and the quality is fairly good. This is also true of the pompon varieties. Roses continue plentiful but prices hold firm. Carnations are becoming more plentiful and fill in nicely where a cheaper flower is desired.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes has been busy with funeral work and decorations. He has a number of orders booked for the future. He is cutting a good crop of chrysanthemums, but the quantity is not sufficient to meet the demand. Carnations here are showing improvement.

H. Kusik & Co. is handling a good line of Ophelia, Sunburst, Russell, Milady, Ward and Killarney roses. Carnations are also on hand as well as a plentiful supply of chrysanthemums. Another ice box has been installed at their store.

Arthur Newell reports plenty of business. He says he is "busier than a cranberry merchant" but is taking care of all of the orders with ease. He has several good orders for decorations booked ahead.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting heavily on chrysanthemums and roses and carnations are in fine form. Decorations and funeral work are both big items in the volume of business at this establishment.

A. F. Barbe has a great rose crop. His cut of chrysanthemum is heavy and carnations are coming along nicely. Funeral work has been very heavy during the past week.

T. J. Noll & Co. are well supplied with a fine line of roses and chrysanthemums. Supplies are moving better. A big shipment of magnolia has just been received.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports stock plentiful and improved in quality. Business has been very good here, especially in orders for funeral designs and decorations.

The Elmhurst Nursery Co. has completed its new building which will be used as office, salesrooms and storage at Mill Creek and Forty-seventh street.

Miss Lou E. Boggess reports good business, especially in funeral orders, chrysanthemums being used in large numbers.

Fred Fromholdt, formerly connected with the Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. has purchased the Larkin store. E. J. B.

Madison, N. J.

A. S. Baldwin, formerly with C. H. Totty, has leased a neat range and is growing a variety of good stock. He took a number of prizes for chrysanthemums at the late show, and has reached that stage in the business where a chrysanthemum has been named for him. New chrysanthemums are coming so fast that "ye scribe" expects to have one named for him pretty soon.

The ranges of Madison are largely devoted to cut owers, but in Frank N. Eskensen we found a very clever plantsman. He grows tens of thousands of ferns, largely of the table varieties, and raises much of his own seed. As there is always a demand for table ferns he is doing a nice business. He also grows poinsettias and a variety of other plants.

Our old friend, Robert M. Schultz, formerly a well-known rose grower, has been laid up with an attack of rheumatism. On account of poor health, he sold his growing business several years ago to C. H. Totty. As he is, to use an old-fashioned phrase, "a handy man with a pen," he has since held a clerical position in the borough hall.

At Edward Behre's range we found a very fine crop of roses, noteworthy being Florence Behre, his sport of My Maryland, which he continues to grow with great success. About a year ago Mr. Behre was very ill, having spent a month in a hospital. We are pleased to state that he has now completely regained his health.

The D. Willis James estate has been bought and taken possession of by W. H. Dodge, who we are informed, is connected with the Remington Arms Company. William Duckham remains with the new proprietor as superintendent.

William Kleinheinz, of Philadelphia and Ogontz, Pa., visited the flower show October 26, and was cheerful and happy as usual. Any show, within a reasonable distance of his home, that he does not attend has either been poorly advertised or is not much of a show. He expects that Philadelphia, November 8, will excel all previous efforts in showing fine chrysanthemums.

E. B. Shepardson, of Short Hills, N. J., is making a specialty of dahlias and had quite an exhibit at the show.

A. F. F.

Horticultural Society of New York.

It is only a short time now to the fall exhibition of this society, which will be held at the American Museum of Natural History, November 9-12. Do not forget to make your entries early, thus enabling the manager to make a better display and the secretary to have things in such shape that the manager may work intelligently. Everything points to a large show. Prizes are offered for bush chrysanthemum plants, and other prizes for cut chrysanthemum blooms of all kinds, both for commercial and non-commercial growers. Prizes are also offered for roses and carnations, and for orchid plants and flowers.

The society's silver cup, valued at $100, is offered as part of the first prize for a group of greenhouse foliage and flowering plants and in addition a cash prize of $50. Prizes are also provided for bay trees, collections of conifers, begonias, palms and ferns.

Schedules are now ready for distribution, and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, Mansion, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

GEORGE V. NASH, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

Henry Schwarz.

Henry Schwarz, who has been very prominent in florist circles in and about Cincinnati, O., for the past quarter of a century, died at his home Saturday, October 28th, after an illness lasting several months. He was in his fifty-second year.

In 1882 he came to the United States from Germany, the land of his birth, and for eight years worked in places at Knightstown, Anderson and Richmond, Ind. In 1890 he located in Cincinnati and went into business on Price Hill. In 1901 he moved his business to Norwood, where he has been located ever since.

Both his business and his social relations with others were always pleasant, due to his excellent character that influenced his life. His business was very successful and he made many friends. During his residence in Cincinnati he occupied prominent offices in the Cincinnati Florists' Society, including that of president.

A widow, Mrs. Ophelia Schwarz, and a son, Edward Schwarz, survive him.

H.

George L. Huscroft.

The trade was much shocked to hear of the death of George L. Huscroft, of Steubenville, O., who passed away October 21, aged 54 years. He had been suffering from a tumor at the base of the brain for more than four months.

For many years Mr. Huscroft had conducted the retail florist business established by his father. He had also traveled for Hageman of New York as a seed and bulb salesman and for a number of years occupied the position of landscape gardener for the Pennsylvania railroad in charge of all the planting between Pittsburgh, Pa., and Columbus, O. He had a host of friends among both florists and railroad men. Some years ago he disposed of his range at Steubenville to E. E. McCauslen. He is survived by two brothers, Chauncey, sheriff of Columbia county, and W. R. Huscroft, deputy sheriff, and two sisters, Mrs. McCune and Mrs. McCauslen, all of Steubenville.

Azalea Imports.

GUDE'S EFFORTS SUCCESSFUL.

The following communications received from Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, tell their own story:

Washington, D. C., October 30, 1916.
EDITOR, THE AMERICAN FLORIST,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:—I am enclosing herewith copy of letter received from the State Department this morning which explains itself. This letter, you will note, is in reply to my communication to the Honorable Secretary of State under date of September 15 last. Since then we have not heard a word.

We note the azaleas are coming, and are pleased to feel that our efforts seem to have been fruitful.

With best wishes, I remain,

Very truly yours,

WM. F. GUDE.

Department of State, Washington,
October 27, 1916.

Mr. Wm. F. Gude,

Washington, D. C.

Sir:—Referring to your personally expressed desire for information relative to the importation of azaleas and similar goods of Belgian origin, you are informed that the department has received a report by cablegram dated October 25, 1916, from the American embassy at Berlin stating, in substance, that the German foreign office has received a statement from the governor general in Belgium that no objection exists to the exportation to the United States of horticultural products. Only a small quantity remains for shipment this year as, according to a report from economic committee at Ghent, several hundred thousand francs worth of flowers were shipped to this country some six weeks ago.

The statement that this year's exportation was not allowed by German authorities is reported to be due to a misunderstanding. This year's exportation was effected through individual applicants and not through the intervention of the Syndicate des Horticulture Belges.

Very truly yours,

MARION LETCHER.

Acting Foreign Trade Advisor.

[Mr. Gude is not to blame for the delay in giving this news to the trade, which we presume must be attributed to official red tape. The information that azaleas were on the way was published in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of October 7, page 608.—ED.]

Chicago to Bloomington.

The fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at the Coliseum, Bloomington, November 9-10. Treasurer Frank L. Washburn of the state organization advises that the Chicago & Alton gives the best service between that city and Chicago. The train schedule from Chicago to Bloomington is as follows:

Leave—	Due—
Chicago 9:00 A. M.	Bloomington 12:55 P. M.
Chicago 10:15 A. M.	Bloomington 1:20 P. M.
Chicago 12:01 P. M.	Bloomington 3:15 P. M.
Chicago 1:15 P. M.	Bloomington 5:15 P. M.
Chicago 6:30 P. M.	Bloomington 9:40 P. M.
Chicago 9:00 P. M.	Bloomington 12:55 A. M.
Chicago 10:20 P. M.	Bloomington 1:10 A. M.

The fare from Chicago to Bloomington is $2.54, round trip $5.08. This is the flat two-cent rate and there is no party or other reduced rate between these points. The train leaving the Union station at 10:15 a. m., Thursday, November 9, has been selected for the Chicago delegation and it is hoped our city and club will be well represented, the Bloomington show being the only one of importance in the state this year.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club has been postponed to November 16, especially to permit members to attend the Bloomington exhibition and meeting of the state association.

Luncheon will be served at Bloomington, Thursday evening, November 9, at seven p. m.

Coming Exhibitions.

Chicago Flower Show.

F. Lautenschlager, in charge of publicity, has issued the following circular with regard to the Floral Art and Novelty Show, to be held under the auspices of the Chicago Florists' Club in the grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle, Sunday afternoon and evening, November 12, 1916:

Several thousand invitations have been sent to flower lovers of Chicago and vicinity by the Hotel LaSalle Horticultural Society of Chicago, Chicago Florists' Club, the retail florists of Chicago, and a large attendance of the right people is assured. The retailers of Chicago are invited by the Chicago Florists' Club to make an exhibit; there will be absolutely no charge for space—no prizes—no awards, no exhibits for competition. This is to be strictly an art show to give the retailer an opportunity to display to the public novelties in flowers and plants, and feature their adaptability for dainty and charming floral arrangements for all social occasions. The grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle is an admirable place to hold this exhibition. The room is 46 feet wide by 140 feet long, decorated in ivory, gold and old rose. The lighting effect is superb. The flower show management has arranged to locate all retail exhibits in the center of the grand ballroom, which will afford the exhibitor every advantage to display his art. Let's make this show an overwhelming success—it is the retailers' opportunity to show what is possible with flowers and plants—only natural flowers and plants are to be used—all kinds of accessories will be permissible. By the way, why not make this the occasion to name new varieties of cut flowers and plants for the newly elected president and the first lady of this grand land, the United States of America? Growers of novelty plants and cut flowers, send us your exhibits, and we will have artists on hand to arrange same. The Chicago examining committee of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be on hand to score new chrysanthemums. Growers sending flowers for this purpose should address them to N. J. Wietor, chairman. Novelties of other flowers and plants should be addressed to C. W. Johnson. Have all shipments for exhibits arrive Saturday afternoon, November 11, or Sunday morning, November 12, sending all shipments express prepaid to the gentlemen mentioned above, care of the Floral Art and Novelty Display, grand ballroom, Hotel La Salle, Chicago, Ill. Our representative will be on hand to take charge of all shipments upon arrival.

MARKET IS GLUTTED.

Stock of all kinds is very plentiful and is glutting the market. The demand for stock, while steady, is only fair. Chrysanthemums are extremely plentiful and are not selling as fast as they come into the wholesale houses. The same is true of roses. Carnations are sufficient in quantity to take care of all present requirements. Lily of the valley and orchids have been selling well. Easter lilies are plentiful, but do not have a very active market. Callas come into the market regularly. A few dahlias and cosmos that were spared by the recent heavy frost are also offered.

NOTES.

Fred Gear and Wm. Gear have the sympathy of their friends in their bereavement over the death of their father last week.

The Wm. Murphy Co. reports the best chrysanthemum season it has ever had, both in respect to quantity and sales.

C. E. Critchell has been finding a good market for his orchids and lily of the valley.

Visitors: Monroe Frankl and Sam M. Rosenfeld, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; A. W. Herre, representing Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Emil Uhl, Greenfield, O., and Miss Fannie White, Lexington, Ky. H.

Providence, R. I.

COAL SHORTAGE BOOSTS PRICES.

Stock of all kinds, while apparently plentiful, is high in price, much above normal, and the growers attribute this to the high price of coal. Orders for floral work keep coming in a steady stream and cut flower sales are pleasing. Carnations and roses are both in fair crop and the demand is brisk enough to clean up everything offered. Large chrysanthemums are also selling well. Several large weddings have kept a number of the stores busy.

NOTES.

The annual flower show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, to be held in the ball room of the Narragansett hotel, November 14-15, is looked forward to and promises to be a great success.

Hallowe'en windows predominated during the past week and a number of the stores had very novel arrangements.

The Padien Greenhouse has been started on Calla street and will be devoted to pot plants this winter.

DES MOINES, IA.—The J. S. Wilson Floral Co. has acquired the business of the Alpha Floral Co., said to occupy the best location in the city. This business will be operated separately from the very successful establishment of the Wilson concern on Thirty-fifth and Ingersoll streets.

SATISFACTORY SALES AT GOOD PRICES.

With the return of cool weather, the market is again assuming an active appearance, but the few days of warm weather last week, left a brand on the stock, which, with exceptions, is of quite inferior quality. The drop in night temperature was followed by a decided decrease in the supply of roses, with the result, that they have been clearing in a highly satisfactory manner. A comparison would reveal the fact that roses have recovered from the effects of the heat wave with a far greater degree of rapidity than any other stock. Russell is looking especially good for a flower that has been plunged from one extreme of temperature into another. American Beauties are scarce, but are selling at moderate prices. The supply of carnations is steadily increasing, but the quality is not very good. Most of them are quoted at $1.50 to $2 per 100. Chrysanthemums are taking a prominent position in the market. They are not at their best, but some are very good and have a satisfactory sale locally. White Townsend and Chrysolora are in the lead, but some very fine Poehlmann and Pacific are coming in. Lily of the valley, though by no means plentiful, is almost striking a balance between the supply and demand. Orchids are plentiful and they are in good demand. Smilax is scarce and asparagus comes in very poor in quality.

NOTES.

The retail trade, especially Chas. Young & Co., have lost a very good friend and sincere employee in the death of James Adaro. "Jim", as all know him, was in the employ of Young's for the past 25 years, and during this time he always was an example of a true business man. He was only 44 years old and died of a complication of diseases. The funeral was conducted by an Italian fraternal organization and was attended by many of his friends in the trade.

F. X. Gorly superintended the Hermann wedding decoration, which so far was the largest one in this city.

Over 15,000 Ophelia roses and 2,000 lily of the valley and an equally large amount of Townsend chrysanthemums were used. George Wagner was the artist.

The flower show committee is very busy. The subcommittees report everything is in good shape and the retailers and growers are waiting to see the triumph and glory of the old St. Louis Florists' Club.

H. G. Berning has quite a few orders for next week for long American beauties. Gullett & Sons, of Lincoln, are shipping a large quantity of stock to him daily.

The chrysanthemum show of the Missouri Botanical Garden will open November 5 with approximately 2,000 plants, representing the various types.

Weber Bros., of the Weber Nurseries, are sending in some fine chrysanthemums. This firm consigns to the Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

George H. Angermueller received a few shipments of good white chrysanthemums and disposed of them at once.

St. Louis Cut Flower Co. is doing nice business. Their auto is busy all day. Their motto is "Service."

Cass Avenue Florist had quite a few weddings last week. He reports business very good.

Miss Newman, on Olive street, reports business good, especially in social entertainments.

Miss Rose Schoenle is always busy. She is a daily visitor to the market and buys heavily. X. Y. Z.

Washington, D. C.

Stock of all kinds is abundant—in fact the supply is greater than the demand. Chrysanthemums of all kinds are very plentiful, prices ranging from $3 to $15 per 100. Dahlias, of course, help to kill the sale of good stock, but the recent frosts have about put an end to them, as well as cosmos. Carnations are plentiful at from $2 to $3 per 100. Single violets are exceptionally good for the season. Orchids and gardenias are plentiful. G. C. D.

Detroit.

TRADE CONDITIONS MOST FAVORABLE.

Detroit florists have now entered the fall season of business in full force, and aided by most favorable conditions that now prevail, expect to exceed in volume the trade of any year in the past. During the summer and early fall some apprehension was felt by the retailers concerning the supply of cut flowers this fall, due to the unfavorable weather conditions the growers had to contend with, and still further aggravated by the shortage of help, which in some cases was serious. Carnations made but little growth in the field, and the excessive heat made the growing of chrysanthemums a hardship that was very unusual and the rose growers too had their troubles increased. Now, however, it is apparent that much of the reported trouble was magnified, the actual difficulties surmounted, and the growers are emerging with good prospects of bountiful crops of all kinds, with the possible exception of carnations, the shortage of which is but little felt yet, owing to the unusually heavy cuts of roses and chrysanthemums the growers are having at present.

NOTES.

The ladies auxiliary of the florists' club gave their fourth annual dancing party at the Hotel Statler, Thursday evening, October 26. The ball room was beautifully decorated for the event by E. A. Feters, who carried out Hallowe'en features, which were most unique and elicited much praise. The affair was a great success in all respects, and as in the past the proceeds will be given to worthy local charities.

A. J. Stahelin and wife accompanied A. Miller to Chicago, October 27. Mr. Miller, while here, accompanied a party consisting of Philip Breitmeyer, Jos. Streit, Walter Taepke and Robt. Rahaley, to Mt. Clemens, where all the growers were visited.

The Largest Horticultural Salesrooms in the World

Germantown, Pa.

Henry A. Miller, at Chew street and Washington lane has a very well arranged suburban business with store and greenhouses combined. Being in a residential district, he has a good family trade, retailing most of his stock. His whole place gives evidence of careful and scientific management. At this time, there are several houses of well flowered chrysanthemums in variety—a pompon called Western Beauty, a bright, rosy pink, looked very saleable. A table of single flowered was striking. Half a house of mignonette, growing with chrysanthemums, which latter were to be followed with primulas in pots coming in in another house, looked very promising. Several houses of carnations, superfine stock, planted out of four-inch pots in July, had been grown inside all summer—nothing could look better than these. Several tables of snapdragons were in full flower; these had been planted out of two-inch pots in August and flowers were cut in middle October. There will now be a continuation of bloom until spring. Mr. Miller says: "I grow my stock from seed; plants from cuttings are subject to rust, but not seedlings." A ground bed of sweet peas in several stages of growth, the first of which were just coming in, looked promising and useful. Provision had been made for the holidays in the blocks of flowering plants coming on and waiting for the room to spread out when the chrysanthemums were out of the way; of these poinsettias were a feature. The Boston fern family was well represented, together with other house plants. There was a fine show of cut chrysanthemums in the store. Four Lord & Burnham houses, each 25x96 feet, heated by one of their large boilers, had, Mr. Miller said, been very satisfactory. Two of these were planted with roses, the varieties being Kaiserin and Prima Donna.

One of the enthusiasts in the business is Ernest Zeiger, of Zeiger & Sons, on East Washington lane. With him nothing is too much trouble to get as near as possible to 100 per cent results. Roses are a feature. Mrs. Ward has produced wonderfully, and yet Thora, the light cream colored sport of My Maryland, which originated here, is said to produce four flowers to its one. Some bloomer this Thora, which is now being grown by George Burton, who bought the stock. A house of Ophelia and another of Mock are giving splendid results. Chrysanthemums are also a feature. A house of Golden Glow had turned in a splendid card. Care must be taken in the selection of the proper shoots to insure perfect blooms of this variety. Not satisfied with the first growth, Mr. Zeiger had cut the plants all back and found the shoots he wanted in the new wood. He was able to do this as he had planted early in May. The flowers produced early were wonderfully fine and commanded the top market price. Quite a lot of Asparagus plumosus for sprays and strings fills several houses. Mr. Zeiger strives to keep up a close rotation of crops; two of these in a house pays expenses, the third and possible fourth being velvet. In one house lupines were to be the winter crop, to be followed by Easter stock, after which summer asters, and these replaced later with chrysanthemums from the field. Hydrangeas for Easter, a specialty here, are a feature. Yellow callas, quite a block, are never completely dried off and in consequence come into flower much earlier than those given complete rest. They seem to do just as well. Double Pink bouvardia was one of the best producers of last season. In addition to its fine and profitable crop of flowers, 100,000 rooted cuttings were also marketed through the classified ad columns of the trade papers at good prices, a valuable side line, possible with a number of new and staple plants that many growers do not take advantage of. To help keep the houses going in winter, outside frames were being filled with clumps of herbaceous stock, such as digitalis, campanulas and other garden favorites, which will be brought in after the Christmas holidays and furnish flowers that are not common in the market. Numerous improvements in additions to several houses have kept them busy all summer, but are now about completed. This is a very interesting place to visit, one being always sure to see something better or just a little out of the ordinary.

K.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Weather almost of the mid-summer variety has forced in a heavy supply, with chrysanthemums the ruling feature. Roses are also more abundant and carnations are of good size and in fine supply. Calla lilies have made their first appearance and sweet peas are also to be seen. Plants are enjoying a good sale, especially chrysanthemums, Jerusalem cherries and begonias. The supply of smilax is limited.

NOTES.

The next meeting of the newly organized florists' club, in which much interest is being taken, will be held at the Flick Floral Co.'s store, November 6. In addition to election of officers, an executive committee will be appointed. It is intended that the club shall be of both an educational and social nature and many subjects of interest to retailer and grower will be discussed from time to time.

The Flick Floral Co. had an elaborate store decoration last week in which quantities of chrysanthemums and beech foliage were used in addition to many ferns and palms.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report brisk business in their landscape department. This firm is cutting some excellent cat-tleas in variety; also fine chrysanthemums.

A. J. Lanternier is showing fine chrysanthemum stock in yellow and pink from his greenhouses. His chrysanthemum plants are exceptionally good.

Messrs. Leitz and Herman, of the New Haven Floral Co., were recent visitors in attendance at the meeting of the florists' club.

CHOICE SHIPPING ROSES

RUSSELLS—We are growing the finest Russells arriving in this market. All visitors to the greenhouses in the Chicago district say that our Russell are the best here.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade. The roses which we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

TRADE WAS RATHER QUIET LAST WEEK.

Trade was rather quiet last week especially the shipping demand, which could have been much better. Stock of all kinds is plentiful with the exception of lily of the valley, which cleans up at an early hour each day at high prices. Chrysanthemums and pompons are reaching the market in large quantities and are selling well, considering the heavy shipments that are being received regularly from California and are being sold at figures that have a tendency to hold the price down on the local grown stock. American Beauty roses are in good supply, especially in the longer stemmed grades, and very choice stock is obtainable in large lots at reasonable prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are plentiful enough to supply the demand, but there is no great surplus to speak of. Killarney, Killarney Brilliant and White Killarney are arriving in splendid condition, and same holds good for all the roses in general, especially Mrs. Aaron Ward and Ophelia. Milady, Richmond, Hadley and Hoosier Beauty are having a good call and are all in good supply with the possible exception of Milady, which at times are found to be scarce. Carnations are more numerous and are steadily improving in quality and while there are enough to go around, they are cleaning up quite well at satisfactory prices, considering the large supply of other stock offered. Orchids are seen in large numbers and there are always plenty on hand to fill all the orders. Sweet peas are more numerous, but sell quickly at good prices. Daisies, calendulas, mignonette, violets, forget-me-nots and snapdragons are included in the offerings. Lilies are in better supply, but are not moving as freely as they have been. Strawflowers, both local and California grown stock, are offered in large quantities, but are disposed of quickly at prices ranging from 25 to 35 cents per bunch. The sales for October have been very large and in nearly every instance are much ahead of those of the corresponding month of last year. The All Saint's day business did not amount to much this year, and while there was some call in this market for short roses and chrysanthemums, it was nothing to speak of. Reports from outside markets are to the effect that they are all handling large quantities of stock especially chrysanthemums, both local and California grown which accounts to some extent for the falling off in the demand in this market. The city trade was also rather quiet last week, but taken as a whole, business has been good and much better than in former years. No one usually looks for brisk business just before a presidential election, but everyone is enthusiastic over the outlook for the coming season, consequently very few complaints are being heard in regard to poor business. The supply houses are all busy pushing Thanksgiving and Christmas goods.

NOTES.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a large regular supply of choice orchids, particularly cattleyas, vandas, dendrobiums and oncidiums. Fancy American Beauty and Ophelia roses, besides a large quantity of chrysanthemums and pompons are attracting the attention of the many buyers at this establishment.

CHICAGO

H. N. Bruns is making a fine store display of seasonable plants and intends to have a regular chrysanthemum show early in November. The lily of the valley benches are filled to their capacity with pips, affording a heavy cut of the choicest flowers daily. Herman, the proprietor's eldest son, who spent some time in the floricultural department of the Illinois State University, is now employed here and has made a good start in the practical storage and forcing of lily of the valley as well as in flower shop work.

J. A. Budlong's force worked all day Sunday, October 29, getting out orders for All Saints' day. The demand, according to Manager Schupp, was mostly for roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, although the latter were not as popular as in previous years. Budlong's enlarged store is attracting much attention and will be second to none when the alterations are completed.

Andrew Chronis reports that the Alpha Floral Co. has sold its Des Moines, Ia., store, operated under the same name, and which has been in charge of Gust. Pappas, to the J. S. Wilson Floral Co., who have already taken possession. Mr. Pappas has been in poor health for some time and will now be able to enjoy a well earned rest. He is expected here this week.

Wietor Bros. are cutting a large quantity of Marigold, Col. D. Appleton, white and pink Chieftain and a large number of other varieties of chrysanthemums, in addition to a heavy supply of pompoms. They report a brisk demand for miniature chrysanthemums, which they are growing in quantity this season. American Beauty roses are in good crop with them.

Bassett & Washburn report a busy week with a good demand for roses and chrysanthemums. Their new carnation, Belle Washburn, is looking fine as usual and always commands top market prices. Orders are now being booked for rooted cuttings of this variety for December and later delivery.

Chas. W. McKellar is having a good call for pumpkins which are arriving from his own farm in Niles township. Frank Schleiden has been carving the likenesses of several of the leading politicians on them, many of which are being featured in the window displays of some of the loop florists.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a large supply of local grown strawflowers and other seasonable stock, especially carnations, which are arriving in larger quantities. Roses and chrysanthemums are their leaders.

W. F. Duntemann of Bensenville has recovered sufficiently from his recent accident to be about with the aid of crutches. He surprised his many friends in the wholesale market by paying them a visit this week.

Miss L. A. Tonner is expected home from Bacocton, Ga., next week. O. A. Tonner is looking after both the supply and cut flower departments at O. A. & L. A. Tonner's during her absence.

Weiland & Risch are pleased with the demand they are having for their new rose, Champ Weiland, and are growing it on a large scale this season.

Carl Vaughan, formerly at Vaughan's Seed Store, now in the automobile business at Tulsa, Okla., has been calling on friends in the city this week.

M. C. Gunterberg is handling a large supply of home-grown chrysanthemums and pompoms and reports a good demand for same.

H. B. Kennicott says that Kennicott Bros. Co. received its first shipment of Bonnaffon chrysanthemums October 30.

E. C. Pruner is making a western and A. W. Herre a southern trip in the interests of Poehlmann Bros. Co.

George Reinberg is still cutting a good supply of roses from one of the best crops he ever had.

The John Kruchten Co.'s daily shipments now include a good supply of cattleyas.

Peter Reinberg has a beautiful new pompon that looks like a winner and is on exhibition at the store. It is a sport of Acto and greatly resembles the rose Ophelia in color. Emil Reichling, superintendent of the Reinberg greenhouses, is enthusiastic over this variety and says that it is the best pompon now being grown at their establishment. It will be registered this week and in all likelihood be offered for sale in 1917.

At Erne & Klingel's store chrysanthemums and pompons are arriving in large quantities in addition to everything else in seasonable cut flowers. Choice boxwood is seen in good supply here.

Miller & Musser sold large quantities of Michigan red winter berries last week and will have them in quantity all through the season.

The Atlas Floral Co.'s Hallowe'en window was good and attracted much attention.

The E. C. Amling Co. is making city deliveries with a new Ford.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a fancy grade of roses, particularly Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty, which they are growing in quantity. Chrysanthemum pot plants and cyclamen are in good demand and all the visitors to Morton Grove are complimenting the firm on the fine lot of stock that it has to offer this year. The supply department is busy as can be and Manager Waters and his assistants are kept continually on the jump filling the many orders received.

Julian Jegen, sole owner of the Jegen Floral Co., 1155 North State street, although only 21 years of age, enjoys one of the best patronages in this city's exclusive district and bids fair to be a big factor in the retail trade in a few years. He has a splendidly equipped store which he takes great pride in keeping in the best possible condition at all times. The interior of his store is reproduced in miniature and in natural colors on the back of his business card.

Percy Jones is showing a fancy grade of carnations, which are in good demand and clean up nicely every day. Chrysanthemums and pompons are seen in large supply here in all the seasonal varieties. This firm is seriously considering adding a couple of Fords to its city delivery service in the near future.

Pyfer & Olsem are shipping a splendid supply of carnations to A. T. Pyfer & Co., from their new range on Murphy avenue in Rogers Park. Mr. Pyfer says that Pyfer & Olsem will be back as strong as ever in the carnation game next season, when they will have several new varieties to offer to the trade.

Kyle & Foerster are pleasing their trade with a splendid grade of gardenias, which they are handling in quantity, in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock. Trade at this establishment has been splendid right along, with the sales the past year the largest in the history of the firm.

A. Vanderpoel, 4013 Colorado avenue, is back from Quincy, where he represented the local Gardeners' and Florists' Union, No. 10615, at the annual convention of the State Federation of Labor.

Wm. Winterson paid his son, E. F. Winterson, a visit at the store this week, which was the first time he has been down to the wholesale market for almost a year.

Paul Nanzie's place at Wilmette was visited by fire October 30, when considerable damage was done to the packing shed. His loss is estimated to be about $800.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are busy as can be in the wire department and keep Raymond and his Ford on the jump at all times making city deliveries.

The Boston store has been selling fancy long stemmed Killarney roses for 15 cents per dozen and chrysanthemums for 7½ cents each this week.

Chris Pedersen, 58 East Randolph street, is able to be about again after being confined to his home with rheumatism for two months.

William Lorman, of the A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department, is happy as can be over the arrival of a baby girl at his home last week.

Chas. H. Zapfe, 424 East Sixty-first street, reports business as good and is very optimistic in regard to the approaching season.

Guy W. Reburn is making his headquarters at 160 North Wabash avenue and will have an announcement to make in the near future.

Victor Young & Co., 1239 North Clark street, had a big wedding order November 2, which called for a large amount of stock.

Hoerber Bros.' principal offerings this week are a fancy grade of chrysanthemums and roses, particularly Killarney and Ophelia.

Fritz Bahr, Jr., is home from the Mexican border, where he was on duty with the California troops for several months.

The Central Floral Co., 132 North State street, is featuring table decorations in its window displays.

H. C. Neubrand, representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., called on the trade here this week.

Chrysanthemum plants are unusually fine at Vaughan's Greenhouses this year and moving fast.

The Leveson Floral Co. is doing a nice business at its new store at 2101 Lincoln avenue.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., is back from a business trip to Detroit, Mich.

Visitors: Frank Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, Mo.; C. Brunner, Price Hill, Cincinnati, O.; Miss M. Ziegler, Bellevue, O.; Chas. Barcher and wife, Denison, Ia.; E. R. Sackett, Fostoria, O.; James Cole, Peoria; C. A. Forsberg, with J. C. Rennison Co. (Inc.), Sioux City, Ia.

Strasburg, Pa.

A trolley ride of an hour from Lancaster, Pa., through a splendid farming and scenic country, brings one to Strasburg, where there are several carnation growers. Chas. B. Herr is noted for his model place. While the establishment is not extensive, everything is of the best. The houses of Lord & Burnham construction, have been up 16 years and look as good as new. About 11,000 carnations are housed and they are now in fine shape; not many flowers, but Mr. Herr says it is a mistake to let them flower early, as it takes too much from their vitality. For red spider he advocates a spraying of salt water, a pint and a quarter of salt to a gallon of water, put on with an atomizer. The plants take kindly to it. He prepares his soil outside in the field by ploughing in manure in the fall and also a good quantity ploughed in again in the spring. His varieties are Matchless, Beacon, Pink Ward, Alice, Alice Coombs and Enchantress Supreme. Mr. Hess' office is a model. A visitors' book in which all are invited to sign their names, is a happy feature. J. Wade Gayley is also a carnation specialist, housing about the same as Mr. Hess. His stock is doing very well and looks very promising. A new house 35x140 feet has been added this summer.

Amos N. Rohrer & Son, also growers of carnations exclusively, have a splendid stock in their very light and practical houses. They are growing more than 11,000 plants, which are now in a forward state, being filled with buds. Quite a number of flowers have been marketed this fall. The whole place looks very promising.

Dallas, Tex.

H. S. Ely of Neosho, Mo., has been selected to act as judge at the flower show of the Texas State Florists' Association to be held in this city, November 15-17.

Business is beginning to pick up, and from a tour of the state, all indications point to excellent trade this fall.

Retailers and growers are well satisfied with trade conditions. The chrysanthemum crop is being moved rapidly at very favorable prices and plenty of the early and mid-season varieties are seen. Carnations and rose sales have not been affected as yet, the former selling at from two and one-half to three cents for good quality stock, while the latter are quoted at from two and one-half to eight cents, with a few extra selects moving at 10 cents. The market for orchids, violets and sweet peas has shown signs of greater activity, due to numerous social functions. Good short snapdragons also had a place and a few calendulas and pansies have made their appearance but meet with light demand. A generous supply of Sprengeri and plumosus cleans up daily and good smilax can be had at 15 cents per string. Yellow chrysanthemums in pots have had quite a run for Hallowe'en decorations, which have surpassed those of former years, especially for parties and dances.

NOTES.

The city has erected a new greenhouse, 25x100 feet, which makes a total of 10. The entire range is of steel construction and was erected by the Lord & Burnham Co. On the occasion of the formal opening, October 29, about 12,000 visitors inspected the houses and the sunken gardens, which will be permanently planted next year.

The Benson-Oilar store was a bower of cut flowers and pot plants artistically arranged for their opening November 2. During the afternoon and evening souvenirs were presented to visitors, who were entertained with music.

The Claypool Florist recently had a novel decoration for the University of Indiana banquet and reception in the form of a huge foot-ball 48 inches in diameter, made of white chrysanthemums tied with red ribbons.

John Rieman, who recently put in a fine new display window and redecorated his store, now has one of the most attractive establishments in this city.

A three day session of the Indiana Teachers' Association and a foot ball game caused a flurry in counter trade during the week.

Henry Rieman and John Grande, Jr., are showing some of the finest pot chrysanthemums in the city.

Bertermann Bros. Co. arranged an especially attractive Hallowe'en window.

RUSSELL AND OPHELIA SHORT ITEMS.

The cloudy and cool weather during the past week did not affect the supply of cut flowers to such an extent as to cause any inconvenience in filling all orders with the exception of Russell and Ophelia roses. Carnations were more plentiful, but have still held their own thus far. The chrysanthemum is again the queen of the market and undoubtedly will remain so until Thanksgiving is over. Everybody is now cutting them and they also grace all windows to good advantage.

NOTES.

Chas. Meckenhauer, who belonged to the pioneers in the landscape gardening of Milwaukee, passed away, October 28, at the ripe age of 81 years. For many years he was private gardener for the Uihlein Bros., who own the Schlitz brewery, but of late years he has been following the landscape business with the help of his son. He resided at 1200 Richard street. Interment was at Forest Home cemetery, October 31.

Julius Neudeck, who was a familiar person in the wholesale district, having done the buying every morning for the M. A. McKenney Co. for the past seven years, severed his connection with that firm October 25. He always was on hand early, consequently getting the cream of the stock before a good many others saw it.

In the midst of a profusion of plants and cut flowers, Frank A. Sylvester, of the J. M. Fox & Son firm, was, October 25, united in marriage to Miss Althea Anschuetz. The announcements state that they will be at home after December 1 at 1087 Fortieth street. We extend our best wishes for a long and happy future.

The writer saw a vase of the new rose, Gorgeous, at the Milwaukee street store of the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., which, in regard to substance and color, made a very favorable impression.

Archie McDonald, manager of the Gimbel Bros. cut flower department, is spending a few days with his folks, "somewhere in Indiana."

Some fine cyclamens seen on display at several retailers are said to have been the product of the Holton & Hunkel Co.

Most of the retailers used pumpkins and oak leaves to good effect in making the Hallowe'en window decorations.

E. F. Kurowski, president of the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, was a visitor last week.

HEAVY ROSE DEMAND.

Roses have been more plentiful this week, and although chrysanthemums are in good supply and in good demand, the call for roses has been wonderful. Pompons are most in demand, some beautiful pink, yellow and bronze arriving daily. White are still scarce. Some very good Francis King gladioli arrive and clean up daily; also, a few Augusta. Violets are in better demand as the weather turns cooler. Carnations with some of the growers are still very scarce, and all orders are filled short. A few sweet peas are on the market. Boxwood, which arrived this week, is much sought. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Two new classes have been added to the premium list for the flower show, November 10-12, as follows: Non-commercial—for the best group of Orchid plants in variety, to cover space three feet by eight feet, accessories and greens allowed, 1st prize, $50; 2nd, $25; 3rd, $10. For commercial growers—a vase of 50 American Beauties arranged for effect, 1st prize, $50; 2nd, $30; 3rd, $20.

Walter Priest, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., had his touring car stolen from in front of his store October 19. The police found it near Toledo, Ohio, where it had been abandoned by the thieves. Peter Nichols' chauffeur also skipped to Toledo with Nichols' touring car, but in both cases the autos were recovered and the thieves arrested.

The J. M. Gasser Co. retail store is undergoing extensive repairs. The Westman & Getz Co., on Euclid avenue, has just completed remodeling and refurnishing their store and the Jones-

Russell Co. also has added space by remodeling part of the basement, converting same into an exhibition and salesroom.

Mrs. John Henninger, nee Heide-man, formerly with the Cleveland Florist Exchange and member of the Women's Florist Club, gave birth to a fine baby boy, weight 8 pounds, October 24. Mrs. Al Wilhelmy gave birth to a baby boy on Saturday, Oct. 28. "A million in 1920," our slogan.

BUSINESS BELOW NORMAL.

Business has not been up to standard the last few days, excepting for funeral work and weddings. Roses are very plentiful and sell at reasonable prices for the first time this fall. American Beauties have no call at all as chrysanthemums are being used instead; they have to be sold at a low price to get rid of them. Carnations are more plentiful and improve in quality each day. Lilies are a glut on the market. Violets are coming now and clean up each day. Lily of the valley is still very scarce, but sweet peas and swainsonas are used extensively in their stead. Greens are still very scarce; the demand seems to be greater this year than ever before. Yellow daisies are improving each day.

NOTES.

The McCallum Co. are now cutting their new yellow chrysanthemum, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, but not enough to meet the demand.

The football game between Pitt and Penn created quite a demand for yellow chrysanthemums October 28.

The Sewickley flower show will be held November 3-5. All florists are earnestly requested to attend this show. The florists' club will hold its banquet early in November.

INCREASING SUPPLY DEMORALIZES PRICES.

Bright autumn weather, all growers expectant, large shipments increasing in size with each consignment, market stationary, no extra demand, hurry calls for more pots and tubs to hold the stock, and additional quarters hired for the time being to store it in; result, —demoralization of prices, with dealers working overtime in their efforts to get something for their consignors. Such is the situation in this Quaker City. Chrysanthemums that would ordinarily bring $12 to $15 per hundred go for $6.00, and fine long stemmed Ophelia roses sell as low as $2, with much other stock in proportion. The whole assortment now offered is equal to the best seen at this season. American Beauty and tea roses from some growers are almost up to their winter standard. There is a much larger assortment of the polyantha type, which in their various forms and colorings, should prove as popular as the Sweetheart and George Elgar. Chrysanthemums are everywhere; we can hardly get into some of the houses without brushing against them and the quality is fine. White and pink Chieftain, Chrysolara, Marigold, Golden Queen, Halliday, Razer, Oconto, Pacific Supreme, Strafford, Florence Harris and others, together with some very good pompons, give great variety. Sweet peas are increasing in quantity as are carnations, although most growers are trying to hold back until the chrysanthemums are out of the way. Easter lilies appear to be holding up against the chrysanthemums very well. Cattleyas and lily of the valley are equal to the demand at fair prices. Mignonette, pansies, violets, daisies, yellow and white and snapdragons are all bidders for favor. How best to get rid of the surplus, or so organize the business that this overstocked condition shall be promptly met and turned to good account, is worth the attention of the bright minds in all branches of the craft. The wholesale merchants in all the large centers have made great strides in recent years by perfecting their shipping facilities and by other good business methods greatly widened their market. The growers' section is, however, gaining faster than that of any other, and at times of favorable weather, more stock is produced than, with the present methods of interesting the public, can be profitably handled. The retailer is the final medium through which all the stock must be handled; gluts or overstocked markets do not affect him, as when business is dull he generally plays safe, carries a small stock, buying only as this needs replenishing. While supplying the actual needs of the people is the main feature of the department stores of our large cities, yet much of their business comes from goods handled which are not strictly necessities or needed by the people, but who are attracted by the clever way in which they are advertised and displayed and buy because of the interest created in this way. Plants and flowers handled in these large stores and on the streets, are sold to people who had no intention of buying, but do so because the opportunity is presented; they see the flowers, they are inviting, and the sale is made. Immense quantities of flowers are sold in this way, and much greater results could be secured through the regular retail channels if the great majority of store keepers could be made to see the possibilities along this line in selling campaigns when there is a full market. Growers and wholesalers may say this is none of our business, but selling campaigns and exploitations of manufactured specialties, and even standard articles, are now the order of the day and largely profitable—they are educational, put new ideas and pep into slow going minds, and worth much more than the money and energy expended.

NOTES.

The chrysanthemum exhibition of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society bids fair to be distinctly better than any held in recent years. The impetus of the national show of last spring should be a great factor, while the prestige that the Chrysanthemum Society of America, whose annual display is held November 8, in conjunction with theirs, will add, should make this one of the best fall shows in the country.

President S. S. Pennock, of the American Rose Society, has called a meeting for November 8, to arrange plans for the grand rose show to be held in Horticultural hall, this city, March 20-23, 1917. A special guarantee fund of $5,000 is now being subscribed; over $1,200 was offered almost at once and additional names are coming in daily. This will be much the finest rose show ever held in this country.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange had a sale last week of 1,000 pot plants of chrysanthemums, Chrysolara chrysanthemums and Ophelia roses are features here.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., says that many florists stand in their own light in not keeping up their staple stocks. When some special thing is wanted they oftentimes find it sold out and are put to inconvenience and expense to get it. Preparedness for every opportunity is his motto. The call for this firm's fall catalogue was so great that a new edition has been ordered.

The Lord & Burnham Co. are busy supplying boilers for steam and hot water. Otto Thomas, Ridgewood, Md., and Chas. C. Lassohn, Belair, Md., being recent purchasers. The company has now so much work on hand that they have had to refuse orders that required immediate delivery.

The new garage of the S. S. Pen-nock-Meehan Co., on Ludlow street, opposite the store, is almost finished. This will greatly increase the efficiency of their cars. Chrysanthemums in quantity in all the popular varieties are a feature. Cattleyas and lily of the valley are also headliners.

J. Wm. Colflesh Sons are adding three 75-foot King houses to their plant at Fifty-third and Woodland avenue. One of the largest stocks of English ivy is seen here, they making a specialty of this plant. It is sold mostly to retail florists for window box and other decorative work.

About 50 employees are now required to handle the stock of customers of the Leo Niessen Co. Every courtesy is shown the patrons, while five automobiles in addition to express company trucks, which call hourly for shipments, manage the deliveries.

M. J. Callahan of West Market street is recovering from the recent fire, which only temporarily interfered with business. His trade is opening splendidly. W. J. Baker, is adding a new ice box. Splendid gladioli and snapdragons are features.

Care Korts, of the Joseph Heacock Co., has added to the wholesale florists' vocabulary a new selling phrase. In speaking of last week's business he said they "disposed of everything and commenced on Monday with a clean ice box."

Jack Berger says the handling of flowers at times of overproduction is entirely up to the retailer. Quantity and quality tell the story of the chrysanthemums here, additional quarters having been obtained to hold them.

Charles W. Moorby, of Germantown, is putting on a Ford delivery car. Business is increasing so that he finds this necessary. He is right in the thick of things and has a fine transient trade.

A box of crotons for California was shipped by the Robert Craig Co. the past week. Their sample stock of filled baskets for the Christmas holidays should suit most fastidious buyers.

Edward Reid's special chrysanthemums are fine stock. Cattleyas and high grade lily of the valley, of which latter he makes a specialty, are seen in quantity.

Herman Zimmer is handling autumn leaves by the carload (Ford car). He is a welcome visitor everywhere, as his stock is fine.

The windows of the London Flower Shop are gay with choice chrysanthemums and the latest up-to-date vases and pottery.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNSATISFACTORY.

There has been no improvement in the condition of the cut flower market since our last notes were written—if there is any change it is for the worse. A week of clear sunshine brought in stocks in great volume with no perceptible increase in the demand. At this time of year fine weather not only increases the supply of stock, but also keeps many of the best customers of the retailers away from their city homes.

There has been a slump in the prices of nearly all stocks. American Beauties, though not very plentiful, have been affected by the surplus of chrysanthemums. About 10 days ago, special American Beauties brought 30 and 35 cents each, wholesale, but now it is doing well to sell them for 25 cents and it is only the best stock that brings that figure. There are so-called specials on the market that are hard to move at 15 cents. As the supply of lily of the valley is seldom heavy, it keeps around six cents, but a month ago it was selling for eight cents. Easter lilies have fallen off and are now going for four cents; carnations one and two cents, with three cents for fancies and novelties. Violets have been greatly improved by the clear days and cool nights, but they are very slow, ranging from 15 to 35 cents per 100, according to quality. Excellent stock of tea roses is on the market but it does not clean up. In the mornings, a few are sold for six and eight cents, with higher prices for the best varieties, but what goes over has to take "pot luck." But it is the chrysanthemums that are the hoodoos. For the common run of stock, $1 to $3 per dozen is the best that can be realized for what is fresh, but we will not pretend to say what the surplus brings when it is hauled away by the truck load. There are some fancies and novelties on the market that bring $4 to $6 per dozen, but compared with the same total the quantity is small.

October 30.—The condition of the market is not encouraging. Stock keeps pouring in with no perceptible increase in the demand. No relief is in sight until the chrysanthemum crop is thinned out.

NOTES.

"Lest we forget," the Horticultural Society of New York will hold its fall exhibition in the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park West and 77th street, November 9-12. The exhibition will be open on the evening of the first day from 7 to 10 o'clock, for the members of the society, the museum and affiliated organizations. On Friday and Saturday, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and from 7 to 10 p. m. On Sunday, from 1 to 5 p. m.

We recently had occasion to note the window box work at the Hotel Seville, 29th street near Madison square, which at the beginning of summer was planted and arranged by Frank Lorraine, the florist, of 17 East 28th street. The rubber plants and English ivies with which the boxes were filled, made such a luxuriant growth that they attracted general attention. He has now planted them with boxwood.

George J. Polykranas has sold his retail store at 665 Columbus avenue to John Flessas, and will hereafter devote his entire attention to his wholesale business at 104 West 28th street, in which he will be assisted by five of his family, Mrs. Polykranas and three sons and a nephew. He has recently put on another new Studebaker automobile for delivery.

John Young & Co., 53 West 28th street, are receiving from S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., exceptionally fine stock of the yellow chrysanthemum, Marigold. In appearance, it is one of the very finest yellows reaching this market. From the same growers they are receiving two other new ones, Acto and Fairy Queen, both of which look promising.

Johnson & Millany, Inc., the plantmen of the Coogan building, advise us that they are expecting a heavy shipment of bulbs and plants on the Noor-dam, due this week. Noteworthy in their stock are hyacinth collections, put up in packages, the name being with each bulb. There is an increasing demand for bulbs, and they report business improving.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Eighth avenue and 23d street, on the evening of November 13. This being "ladies' night," a fine entertainment and a large attendance is expected.

H. W. Thomas, secretary of D. C. Arnold & Co., 112 West 28th Street, has returned to his desk, much improved in health, after a summer spent in the country. This firm is handling fine chrysanthemum stock from their own range at Babylon, L. I.

Joseph Martin, 976 Eighth avenue, is one of the retailers who does not talk much about himself, but is a very busy little worker. During the summer he, with his own hands, built a nice ice box and otherwise renovated and brightened up his store.

James G. Carlaftes, Southern boulevard and Simpson street, has what is doubtless the most attractive store in Bronx borough. At the present time his show windows are particularly noteworthy.

David Clark's Sons have recently sent out a very large amount of funeral work. In one week they made up six casket covers, all being largely of white roses, and in addition, they had many designs.

Armstrong & Mackie, who opened a retail store about two years ago at 671 Eighth avenue, have now a nice business, and during the past week were very busy with funeral work.

William P. Ford, 107 West 28th street, is handling fine stock of Moorehead, McNeill, Chrysolora and other chrysanthemums, also a good stock of roses and carnations.

Badgley & Bishop, Inc., 34 West 28th street, are receiving exceptionally fine blooms of the chrysanthemums, Lady Hopeton, Ramapo, Col. Appleton and Marigold.

28th street, received the first Major Bonnaffon chrysanthemums October 27, and are also well stocked with other varieties.

G. Leventrys, Westchester and Prospect avenues, calls himself the "Little Florist;" nevertheless, he has a very attractive corner and employs a shrewd buyer.

At Traendly & Schenck's we have noticed excellent stock of the chrysanthemums, Broomhead, Turner, Poehlmann and McNeill; also all the best roses.

We learn that the Essex County, New Jersey, Florists' Club, will hold a show November 13-15, in Palace hall, Washington and Bleecker streets, Newark.

John J. Curley, 532 Eighth avenue, though not old in years, has quite a period to his credit as a West Side florist, and we always find him busy.

Miss Alura M. Beardsley, 903 Seventh avenue, who closes her store during the summer months, has reopened and is showing attractive features.

George J. Bayerle, Jr., who opened a store at 1728 Second avenue, a year ago, has been very successful and we always find him busy.

The Olympia Florist, 686 Westchester avenue, has a very fine store and is a constant buyer in the wholesale district.

OCTOBER MAKES SPLENDID SHOWING.

October business was far in excess of the corresponding period in 1915. The visit of President Wilson, October 5, created a lively demand for flowers, and the annual ball of Ak Sar Ben, October 7, called for many corsage bouquets, cattleyas and lily of the valley leading in popularity. Several large funerals of out-of-town personages of prominence called for quantities of especially fine stock. Early chrysanthemums enjoyed a good demand and the late varieties are now arriving in heavy supply. Roses and carnations are also plentiful and of good quality. The home grown flowers will now be ample to meet all local requirements. The final shipments of Dutch bulbs are now in and the condition is good.

NOTES.

Hess & Swoboda supplied 350 cattleyas for the Ak Sar Ben ball. Arrangements for weddings and teas, in addition to several large funeral orders, have kept their force busy.

Theodore Wirth and wife of Minneapolis were the guests of J. J. Hess and wife for a few days on their way home from St. Louis.

WICHITA, KAN.—The Ross Bros. Seed Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $50,000. The directors are M. C. and L. A. Ross and Jesse D. Wall.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Rudy-Patrick Seed Co. of this city has secured a license to operate in Kansas. Frank Rudy will act as director for the firm in that state.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The Chas. H. Lilly Seed Company, of this city and Seattle, Wash., has purchased the warehouses of W. W. Robinson at Ellensburg and Wapato, Wash.

FRED BARTEDES, of the Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kans., had a big party at the Merchant's Club of that city, celebrating the sixty-fourth anniversary of his birthday, October 28, from 8 P. M. to ??? A. M.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., returning from Saskatchewan, Canada; O. L. Coulter and Thos. M. Landrum, representing C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif.

FEARING a large loss of grass seed as the result of the war, the Austrian ministry of agriculture has urged preserving and saving seed during the coming year. School boys will aid in carrying out the plan.

It is understood that certain importers have been selling Paper White Narcissus Grandiflora to florists on a basis of 50/50 on sales, jobber supplying the bulbs and procuring 50 per cent of the proceeds from the cut flower sales.

NEW YORK.—Frederick W. Wagenföhr, who for several years has been connected with Hermann's Seed Store on East 34th street, announces that he has bought Quade's Seed Store, 65 South Fourth avenue, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and will hereafter conduct the business, carrying a full line of seeds, bulbs and plants. He is well and favorably known in this city and vicinity.

Cabbage Suits.

Rochester, N. Y., October 27.—Two cabbage suits for breach of contract were settled the past week, one in favor of the kraut company that brought it and the other in favor of the producers. In the first case the Empire State Pickling Co. of Phelps, attached the property of Burton Allen, of Manchester, on the ground that Allen had failed to deliver cabbage to the Phelps concern in accordance with a contract, and Allen settled the affair in Justice Cornford's court by making a cash payment to the pickling company to cover the damages claimed.

Louis Hollenback, who was sued by the Empire State Pickling Co. for alleged breach of contract, won his suit, as did R. M. Knickerbocker, who was named in the suit. Hollenback, the plaintiffs claimed, entered into an agreement to grow cabbage for the kraut factory, but instead of raising it on the land specified in the contract planted it on the farm of R. M. Knickerbocker and failed to make delivery. Through his attorneys Knickerbocker succeeded in having set aside the injunction obtained by the pickling company restraining him from selling or delivering the cabbage and also restraining Hollenback from selling and delivering any of the cabbage. The vacation of the injunction enables Hollenback and Knickerbocker to dispose of the cabbage as they see fit.

Trade Mark Infringement.

In the action for infringement of trade mark and unfair competition in the district court of the United States, Southern district of Ohio, Western Division, Opinion No. 19, E. W. Conklin & Son, Inc., plaintiff, versus the J. Chas. McCullough Seed Co., defendant, Jollister, J., the court handed down decision as follows October 30:

"At the close of the argument, the court expressed the opinion that the defendant's claim of prior use of the word 'Acme' and the letters 'J. C. McC.' in connection therewith upon bags and other receptacles in which timothy seed had been sold by J. Chas. McCullough, whose rights in 1913 were transferred to the defendant, was clearly established. A decree for defendant would have been entered then, but counsel for plaintiff urged earnestly the point that the use by defendant and its predecessor of the word 'Acme' and the initials 'J. C. McC.' was shown by the testimony to indicate merely grade or quality.

"There was much testimony on the part of defendant's witnesses that the word and the initials did indicate the best quality and grade of timothy seed. If the evidence disclosed nothing else than that, the plaintiff would be entitled to a decree. But it discloses a great deal more. The use of the word 'Acme' and the initials of 'J. C. McC.' indicated also source of origin, as well as excellence, and they were known to the trade as indicating both quality and origin. This being so, the plaintiff's case can not be successfully maintained and the bill will be dismissed at plaintiff's costs.

"The respondent used 'Acme' and the initials 'J. C. McC.' for all kinds of grass seeds, while the plaintiff used 'Acme' and the initials 'E. W. C.' only as a trademark for timothy.

"In view of the conclusion reached on the merits of the case it will not be necessary to decide the question whether or not the allegation in the bill that plaintiff used 'Acme' with the initials 'E. W. C.' for all kinds of grass seeds, since it is untrue, would warrant a dismissal of the bill for that cause."

Demurrage Rates Advance Sought.

The American Railway Association has recommended to all railroads in the United States some very radical increases in demurrage rates for detention of freight cars by consignees or shippers and that the conditions connected with applying these rates be made much more severe. Present demurrage rates are $1 per car per day after 48 hours' free time. The charge as proposed is $2 for the first day after the free time, $3 for the next, $4 for the next and $5 per day thereafter.

Imports at New York.

The steamer Zyldyk, from Rotterdam, was entered at the port October 28, having horticultural goods as follows:

Chas. Schwake & Co., five cases shrubs.
Ralph M. Ward & Co., 11 cases bulbs.
W. E. Marshall & Co., five cases bulbs.
Wm. Elliott & Sons, two cases bulbs.
A. T. Boddington Co., six cases bulbs.
Stump & Walter Co., five cases bulbs.
Johnson & Millang, Inc., five cases bulbs.
Julius Rochers Co., 83 cases shrubs, etc.
M. Van Waveren's Sons, 108 cases bulbs.
C. F. Meyer, one case bulbs.
Elliott Auction Co., 15 cases bulbs.
Vaughan's Seed Store, nine cases bulbs.
McHutchison & Co., 177 packages shrubs, etc.
Peter Henderson & Co., one case bulbs.
To others and to order, 309 cases bulbs, 310 cases and packages shrubs, etc., 11 cases roots, 35 bags seed.

POTATO prices, now so abnormally high, have been advanced by reason of the scarcity of cars to move them rather than on account of any shortage of the crop.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Mushrooms, home grown, 35 to 40 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 4 to 7 cents; radishes, $1.50 per 100 bunches; celery, 75 to 95 cents open crate; tomatoes, 10-lb. baskets, $1.00 to $1.40; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $2.25.

New York, Oct. 31.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.75 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per package, 25 cents to $1.25; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.50.

Potato Prices at New York.

The New York Central railroad's embargo on potato shipments to this city was raised the latter part of last week and more up-state potatoes are expected for this week. Nevertheless prices continue high and buyers are holding off, expecting "something to turn up." Long Island, 180 pounds, $5 to $5.75; Maine, 165-pound bags, $5; Maine, in bulk, 180 pounds, $5 to $5.25; New York state in bulk, 180 pounds, $4.75 to $5; Jersey, 165-pound bags, $4.25 to $4.50; Southern sweet potatoes, per barrel, $2.50 to $3.

IN MAINE.

Aroostook potatoes reached record price of $4 a barrel October 27, highest ever known. Farmers have thousands of barrels in storage, waiting for higher prices. Potato sales are for cash and bank deposits throughout Aroostook are heaviest on record.

Potato Importation Regulations.

Those who contemplate importing potatoes from foreign countries into the United States are notified by the United States department of agriculture that they should give consideration to the regulations regarding entry of potatoes from Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Ireland, and Wales; Germany; Austria Hungary; New Foundland, and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, on account of the presence in those countries and islands of a serious plant disease known as potato wart or black scab. The following countries, in which this disease is not known to occur and which have complied with the regulations of the United States requiring examination and certification prior to shipment, have the privilege of exporting potatoes to this country, namely, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, Bermuda, Cuba and the Dominion of Canada.

Potatoes can be imported only under permit issued by the federal horticultural board, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C. Permits are issued to the importers in the United States, and not to the foreign shippers. Copies of the regulations governing the importation of potatoes into the United States and any information relating thereto may be obtained from the federal horticultural board, United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Toronto.

SUPPLY VERY LIMITED.

Owing to shortage of stock it is often impossible to fill orders, and these conditions have prevailed for months. Assters were a failure, and dahlias, which generally arrive in lots of thousands in the fall, have this year been conspicuous by their absence. While there is not a large volume of business being done, this scarcity many times gives the wrong impression when there is a general hunt for stock. Roses are the only flowers that are being cut at present in quantities and the quality of these is favorable with other seasons. American Beauty, Ophelia, Shawyer, Sunburst, Richmond and Double White Killarney are all in good shape and the new September Morn, excepting for the name, is a splendid addition. Much criticism is found among the better class of customers with the naming of the rose. Carnations are very limited in number and the quality is not as good as might be expected for the time of year; the hot, dry summer was hard on the plants, and at present the outlook for a good Christmas crop is not very propitious. Chrysanthemums are another disappointment, the earlier varieties, with few exceptions, being very poor, but the later arrivals look better and show more promise. Violets, owing to mild weather, are backward in their growth. Cattleys are plentiful and green goods abundant. The labor conditions among the florists are not as acute now, as many of the men who worked outside during the summer, have returned to the greenhouses, though the wage scale has in many cases doubled up.

NOTES.

W. Wilson, of Woodstock, a recent visitor, says his stock is in fine shape, but not nearly plentiful enough to fill orders. Chrysanthemums and carnations comprise most of the stock and violets are coming along. He is contemplating building a range for roses, but the price of glass is holding him back. He is also worried about his coal supply, which he contracted for in June, but to date none has been received and it looks as if some of the operators are going to fall down on their orders.

R. Jennings, of Brampton, has been ill, and at present his condition is serious, he having suffered from two strokes lately. Bert is looking after the business and getting out his shipments with the usual promptness for which they have been noted.

Wm. Hamilton, of the West Floral Co., London, called in to see us and was on the hunt for stock and supplies. He has renovated the store and shipping room, and enlarged his garage ready for the fall trade.

Owing to the embargo placed on Toronto freight, much difficulty is being experienced with bulb and other shipments. Goods which left New York October 1, up to the time of writing, have not reached here.

The next meeting of the gardeners and florists is for the election of officers; all members are expected to be present and put a little more pep in the meetings.

Dunlop's are featuring autumn foliage and chrysanthemums. Their roses are in fine shape and the stock coming into the wholesale department is clean and good.

J. S. Simmons & Son, in their new location, have an attractive store, always up to date. Their windows are always attractive.

H. G. D.

Pasadena, Calif.

The Campbell Seed Co. have enjoyed a good October trade in seeds and plants. They are anticipating a very good season.

The Orchid Shop has its usual good trade. They had an artistic display of orchids at the flower show.

Eldred's Flower Store have had an exceptionally good fall trade in cut flowers and decorations for weddings, etc. They have added gold fish and pet dogs and kittens to their business, and are doing well in that line.

The "Rosebud" is a new store at 286 East Colorado, handling cut flowers and pot plants.

Henry A. Siebrecht, from New York City, will open a flower store in the hotel Maryland annex about November 1. Mr. Siebrecht is also a landscape designer and planter.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

PAWTUCKET, R. I. — The city has appropriated $8,500 for Slater Memorial park.

FRANKFORT, KY.—Arbor day, November 10, will be observed at the capitol grounds with appropriate ceremonies.

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I.—James Hacking has been re-elected superintendent of Moshassuck cemetery and green-houses.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The Rosebank Nursery will open an up-to-date retail store in the St. Charles hotel early in November.

EDMONTON, KY.—The Golden Rule Orchard & Nursery Co. has been incorporated by P. W. Bushong, J. P. Van Zant and others; capital, $6,000.

CHRISTOPHER, WASH.—John A. Stewart, senior member of the Christopher Nursery Co., and active in the trade for more than a third of a century, died here October 19. He had been in poor health for several years.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—The Tuxedo Land Co., whose holdings comprise about 2,000 acres at Sewickley Heights, have engaged Bernard Frosch, formerly connected with the bureau of parks of this city, to take charge of the landscape features.

California Association of Nurserymen.

The sixth annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen, preliminary announcement of which, together with the programme of interesting papers and discussions, appeared in our issue of October 28, page 794, was held in the Civic Recreation building, Santa Barbara, October 26-28, and proved to be one of the most successful meetings in the history of the organization, the attendance numbering about 1,500. The visitors were welcomed to the city by Benjamin Bakewell, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Edward J. Wickson of San Francisco responding on behalf of the association. Among the many excellent topics embodied in the programme, all of which were received with much interest, were the following: "Horticultural Laws," by Geo. H. Hecke, state horticultural commissioner, Sacramento; "Production, Prices, Salesmanship and Credits," by Geo. C. Roeding, Fresno; "Standardization of Commercial Nursery Products," by Wm. T. Kirkman, Jr., Fresno; "Freight Rates as affecting California's Nursery Interests," by Chas. W. Ward, Eureka; California Native Plants," by Theo. Payne, Los Angeles; "Proposed California Seed Law," by Geo. P. Weldon, Sacramento; "Commercial Bulb Growing in California" by Colin H. McIsaac, Santa Barbara; "New Plants of Commercial Value to the Trade," by D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena; "Plant Immigrants in our Parks and Gardens," by Prof. R. T. Stevens, Berkeley; "The City Beautiful; its Parks and Boulevards," by Ernest Branton, Los Angeles. Each paper was in turn followed by a discussion.

At the business session Friday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Leonard Coates, president; Edward H. Rust, John Valance, Max J. Crow, Chas. Howard and Geo. F. Otto, vice-presidents; Henry W. Kruckeberg, 237 Franklin street, Los Angeles, secretary-treasurer. The 1917 meeting will be held at San Jose, October 11-13.

On Saturday the visitors were entertained with auto rides to points of interest in the city and its environs, followed by the annual banquet in the evening.

Euonymus Bungeana.

Euonymus Bungeana, which has been an inhabitant of the arboretum for 30 years, deserves more general cultivation than it has yet received in this country. It is a tree or tree-like shrub with slender, rather pendulous branches and narrow, pointed, yellow-green leaves, which are now turning yellow or yellow and red. The great beauty of this plant is in the rose-colored fruit which is produced in large clusters near the ends of the branches on which it remains for several weeks after the leaves have fallen. This is one of the handsomest of the Asiatic species in the late autumn and a plant which should be better known.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, October 19, 1916.

British Military Service Act.

At Preston Tribunal on Tuesday, Colonel Jolly, the military representative, read the following telegram received from the War Office:

"Cancel all calling-up papers issued to men employed in agriculture, dairy farming, market gardening, and small holdings. No men so employed are to be called up pending further instructions."—British Nurseryman and Seedsman, October 7.

Manheim, Pa.

At Manheim, an hour's trolley ride from Lancaster, there are three firms of Hostetters, all related. M. H. Hostetter, whose range comprises about 50,000 feet of glass, specializes in carnations and sweet peas. Mignonette and snapdragons are also quite a feature of his stock. Paper White narcissi are forced by the hundred thousand. Yellow daisies are grown between chrysanthemums, with sweet peas to follow the chrysanthemums. It takes maneuvering to do it, but Mr. Hostetter says it works out all right.

P. S. Hostetter's specialty is callas. These are grown in ground beds; the quantity may be inferred from shipments of 4,000 flowers a week when at their height. All the stock planted here has been grown on from one large plant or corm, which is still growing and guarded with great care. Two beds, about 200 feet in length, are filled with thousands of small corms coming along, all of which had been taken from the large bulbs when lifted last summer. Large quantities of the bulbs are sold to the trade in a dry state. Sweet peas are planted along the edges of all the calla beds, they furnishing a good crop and seeming not to interfere with the callas.

E. P. Hostetter has a number of mammoth houses, each 42x400 feet, in which he grows carnations, chrysanthemums and sweet peas. The latter appear to be almost everywhere. Some were just beginning to bud, but the majority were about 12 inches in height. Some especially fine Golden Glow chrysanthemums were seen; many other varieties, early and late, looked very well. A feature was several long beds of Primula Forbesii for cutting. This was claimed to be a good crop; a new white that originated here looks like a good thing. Several houses of yellow daisies, great plants four to five feet high, two and three years old, growing in the ground, were covered with buds and flowers. They looked like very good stock. All cut flowers are shipped to Pittsburgh. An arched wire carnation support was simplicity itself and appeared very efficient. A six-foot length of stout galvanized wire was doubled into a long U shape, about three inches across. The ends are stuck into the ground

THE BEST GIANT PANSIES.

Our pansies are the best the world produces. They combine the choicest large flowering sorts of both European and American growers. It has been our aim to make this the finest strain of this favorite flower in existence. Raised at an altitude of 5,721 ft. above sea level gives them lots of fibrous roots. They start quickly. They are not soft.

Selecting Correct Sash Operating Device and Greenhouse Fittings

Is just like calling a doctor. You call a doctor in case of sickness, and not a musician, because a doctor makes his work a specialty. For this reason you should use in your house throughout, for our middle name is specialty in this line. If it were possible to make our material better, we are the concern who would do it. It is time to investigate and see if you do not need a special doctor in this line. Our catalog, with full illustrations and descriptions, will explain all. Free from ADVANCE CO., Richmond, Ind.

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass easily removed without breaking of other glass, as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

EXCELLENT FALL TRADE OPENS.

Business has shown considerable improvement during the past week and the fall trade is now in full swing. Chrysanthemums are the leaders in popularity and are fast gaining in perfection in form and size of flowers. Next in favor are roses of all kinds, which are also excellent. Carnations also are fine and pompons are arriving in large numbers and meet with a strong demand. Violets are unusually good, but are not very popular. Lily of the valley is excellent as are orchids.

NOTES.

The handy vest-pocket judging scales which are being distributed by THE AMERICAN FLORIST are proving invaluable to those who are planning to compete at the various exhibitions.

J. B. Keller Sons had a splendid display of immense vases of yellow

King Greenhouses

Keep Summer With You The Whole Year Round.

On account of their sturdy special construction which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the results of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King. Write today for Bulletin No. 43. See how beautiful and productive a greenhouse can be erected for the price you want to pay.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Violets.

The temperature of both night and day have now become settled enough to keep the violet houses in the best growing condition, and the plants should have made a strong, healthy growth, and be producing blooms of good quality. The first sign of disease will sometimes make its appearance as early as the first of November, yet it ordinarily does not show up until later in the year during the dark, dull weather. All leaves which show disease should be picked off at once, and if there should be any great amount making its appearance, run the plant a little dry, and under no circumstances allow moisture to remain on the foliage over night. Water only on bright days and then early in the morning. Give all the air possible during the day, and if the disease continues raise the temperature a little at night and do not open the houses quite as much or as early in the morning. A little warmer temperature will induce a new root action, and if this takes place the plant will begin to make a new growth and the disease will disappear. The disease only makes any great headway while the plants are not growing, for when "the elegant spring," as one grower always used to express it, comes, the plants take on new vigor and the disease is no more. As soon as the plants begin to grow the temperature can be dropped to normal for the culture of these plants, which should be about 40° at night. Be careful in removing the leaves not to disturb the plants any more than necessary. Do not pull them off carelessly, but pinch them off with the thumb and forefinger.

Rambler Roses.

The wood of the several Rambler roses that are to be forced should be well ripened up. Those that have been grown in the open ground should be lifted and potted. The pot-grown stock should be subjected to some freezing weather, but they should not be left out until the weather becomes severe enough to freeze the ground so that the pots become broken. A covering of leaves may be placed over the pots if the wood has not been thoroughly ripened, but they are better stored in deep pits or sheds, where the temperature may be kept just above the freezing point. The small twiggy wood should be cut out, leaving the strong canes, and these should be tied to a stake and kept erect. This will greatly reduce the labor when moving them and allow for closer packing when they are packed away and besides prevent the branches from lying on the ground and becoming soft or perhaps causing rot, if too damp. The stock that is lifted and potted should be given a rich rose soil and potted firmly, ramming the soil down hard with a wooden stick. All roses require a firm soil to get the best results. The Baby Ramblers can be carried into the houses and brought into bloom for Christmas. A temperature of 60 degrees to 65 degrees should produce plants with bloom if started at once.

Ferns.

A good stock of small ferns is a necessity at this season of the year to the florist having a retail trade, for the fern dishes will now be coming in to be refilled and this has become quite a feature of the business. While this branch of the trade is in many cases very unsatisfactory, yet it is greatly the fault of the dealer that it is so, and with a little care and method can be made very remunerative and satisfactory to himself and his customers. In the first place a book should be kept giving the date when such customer's dish was filled, and above all things do not endeavor to buoy the customer up with any false hopes as to how long the dish will keep in good condition. In many cases the dish is placed on the center of the table 15 to 20 feet away from any light, the care left to domestics, and it may never be watered from the time it reaches the house until it is returned to be filled, and oftentimes the customers will say it was only a week or two since it was filled, when by reference to the book it will be found to have been two months. When the dish is returned make a note as to what varieties seem to have succeeded the best and use these in refilling. It is wonderful to note the effect on the different varieties in different houses. What will live and thrive in one house will often be the first to die in another. Have a few dishes put up ready for sale. It is often possible to make a sale when the customer sees them all ready, though he might not wait to have one made up or would never think of it unless his attention was drawn to it. Besides the ferns, have a good stock of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri in small pots; these will often grow where ferns will not live at all. And also a fine lot of small palms, cocos and kentias, and small dracenas for the centers of the fern dishes.

Outside Tulips.

The tulips should be planted in the beds as soon as possible from now on. It will do them no good to remain out of the soil, for they will lose some of their vitality. While we do not like to plant them out when the soil and weather are warm, yet October and early November is the proper time to get them in. There is danger now of the ground becoming frozen at any time and they should all be planted while the ground can be worked, for it is very difficult to set them even after a thin crust has formed on the soil. The covering can, however, be left until freezing weather sets in, and, in fact, is better, for if the ground becomes frozen the bulbs will not make any top growth, which is likely to occur if covered now and kept too warm. Do not cover too deeply. The object of the covering is not to prevent the soil from freezing, but to prevent the alternate thawing and freezing that often occurs and which will in some cases throw the bulbs out of the soil altogether. Leaves three or four inches thick make the best covering, with boughs or boards laid across to prevent the winter winds from blowing them away.

Gladiolus Colvillei.

The winter blooming gladioli make a valuable addition to the late winter and spring flowers and are very useful as a cut flower or in all kinds of floral work. The blooms are much smaller than the Gladiolus Gandavensis and kindred kinds and can be artistically employed. The varieties grown are The Bride, white; Blushing Bride, white, tinged with pink, and Peach Blossom, light pink. The culture of these is very easy and by a succession of plantings the flowers may be had all through early spring up to June. The bulbs can be procured all at once and kept dry and cool, but do not leave them standing around in the room over the boiler or they will rapidly lose their vitality. They can be planted in deep flats and placed in an out-of-the-way place until they begin to grow, when they should be given a light location in a house with a temperature similar to that in which carnations are grown. The flowers will be larger and have more substance if grown cool, but it will take considerably longer to get them into bloom. Some growers plant these bulbs between the rows of the carnations or the violets, but our experience has been that it is far better to grow them in boxes by themselves, for the carnations will need all the nourishment in the soil if growing well, and if not, they as well as the violets when through blooming had better be cleaned out and some other crop planted and not have a crop mixed in which would delay the planting or occupying of the space. These gladioli will be found very useful and well appreciated by the best trade.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Store Economics.

From being $3,000 "in the hole," and in a period of 11 years being the proud possessor of a business worth $50,000 is the record of Frank Ross, of Philadelphia, Pa. Mr. Ross did this with his retail business now conducted in three stores, entirely through his personal efforts and with the assistance of Mrs. Ross, who is also blessed with a good business instinct. Buying and selling for cash only are his business corner stones, and to this system he attributes his success. He bears the distinction of being the best buyer in the Philadelphia market; his business is so large that his trade is valued and sought for by all the dealers. His motto is "Spot Cash." He has long ago learned that "money down" means prices down to the lowest level. To settle at the end of the day is gilt edge, but his plan is "How much for this lot, cash now?" He believes that he can save 20 per cent as compared with the man who orders over the phone and pays in 30 days, and this of itself is a very large item in the course of a year. Another feature is that all stock purchased by him must be fresh, no job lots of yesterday's flowers being considered.

He keeps closely in touch with his three stores by phone, buying in bulk and distributes the stock according to their requirements. When the stock is received it is sorted, superfluous leaves removed from ends of stems, graded and placed in jars for the case. A rubber band around each jar holds a card on which the price per dozen of the contents is boldly apparent. There is no asking "How much are these?" as the figures are so plainly displayed. This pricing system is carried out on everything carried in stock. Plants, baskets, bulbs, grass seed and other packages all are so plainly marked that customers can wait on themselves.

Keeping down overhead expenses is one of Mr. Ross' hobbies. He believes that handling flowers is a woman's business, or at least he has found them as efficient as men and the majority of them much more to be depended on; he claims to be able to make a good, bright girl so proficient in eight weeks that she can put up boxes of flowers, arrange sprays and make up designs with the best of them. Those who are willing will soon learn and the careless kind are soon let go to be replaced by others who look promising. He finds they are also very good at waiting on customers, taking orders and making sales. The department stores use women help to great advantage and at much lower salaries than for men. With a competent manager in each store his force, he says, is complete in every way. He is systematic in the hours of labor, all after regular hours' work being paid for by the hour; there is then no grumbling at having to stay, and on the other hand all hours of absence except vacations are at the expense of the employee. The only objection to female help is that they leave him to get married. Mr. Ross takes this philosophically, however, and is glad to see them better themselves in this way.

Mr. Ross watches his stock very carefully; if for any reason a line of goods is not moving it is featured and then if it does not go, down goes the price. Plants that become a little passe are lowered and sold in small lots together, so as to quickly clean them out. He is a great believer in advertising, and all through the season except the summer months, prepares illustrated circulars that are splendidly gotten up, calling attention to the best plants and flowers of the season with a special price for everything. Keeping the price to the front is a great feature with him, not that everything he offers is cheap, but it is there and the probable customers can not but see it and judge for themselves if it suits their purse. These price lists are always placed in large envelopes addressed to the flower lovers of the house and are hand distributed in selected sections in the territory covered by all of his stores. The parent or original store is at 212 East Girard avenue in the uptown district, in a building erected by him for the business. The other two are in West Philadelphia, one at 13 South 60th street, below Market, and the other, the Ross Flower Shop, No. 3, at 136 South 52nd street, just above Walnut. Orders received in any of the stores that can be better or more economically handled by the others are telephoned and receive the same attention as where taken. One active auto makes the heavier deliveries, traveling about 75 miles a day during the busy season. Mr. Ross is a great believer in autos, but to be economical they must be kept busy; having one standing on the street or in the garage half the time does not pay. He has had several light machines that work very well, but is now trying out a heavier one. Funeral work is one of his specialties and he makes great quantities of it, sending out very good literature soliciting the orders.

Cash registers in all his stores are features; for each sale of $1.00 the customer is entitled to a 10-cent discounts of the country of the groom, formed a path, beautiful in its coloring, the effect being further enhanced by asparagus and southern smilax, studded with white chrysanthemums and American Beauties which faced the balconies and marked the approach to the stairway. Farleyense, arranged with cattleyas, embellished the mantels in the hall and drawing room, while splendid specimen ferns filled every corner, and formed a beautiful background for the white

WITH THE GROWERS

Joseph Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa.

Wyncote is synonymous with the name Heacock. Joseph Heacock carried on an important rose growing business here for a number of years when Bride and Mermet headed the list of teas. Later the place was devoted almost entirely to American Beauty to be succeeded by Killarney. Now the roses have been moved to the extensive houses at Roelefs and the entire range here is given over to kentias—the famous kentias of Wyncote—with a few cocuses and Phoenix Roebelenii. Cibotium Schiedeii is grown quite largely and there are also a few beds of Scottii fern. With the establishing of the new place at Roelefs, the business was incorporated and is now called the Joseph Heacock Co. Mr. Heacock, assisted by his son James, is as active as ever and is the guiding spirit in directing the policy of the company.

All the kentias from the seed bed, on up to the made-up plants in 12 and 14-inch tubs, are grown here, nothing ever being imported. Strength, vigor and a healthy lustrous appearance mark all the stock from two-inch pots up. Kentia seed is sown as soon as it arrives, generally in August, in beds of peat; in from four to six months the strongest young plants are lifted and placed about one inch apart in shallow boxes of peat, stood over though some distance from the steam pipes under the eaves or gutters of the houses, where they stay for about 12 months. Many of the houses are built on the ridge and furrow plan with no division between, and this foot of space under the eave plate is nicely utilized in this way. From these boxes they go into two-inch pots and from these to three and four-inch pots. In this stage they are grown, plunged in ashes on tables, so that they can be well syringed and their feet kept warmer.

The next shift is into a six and they are from this time grown on cement bordered ground beds covered with ashes. All sizes above six-inch pots are grown in cedar tubs. The smallest count check, which is worth its face value in future purchases. Mr. Ross thinks they are of great value in bringing new business or holding his trade and also relieve the tension of the spot-cash payment. All the stores in which his business is conducted are owned by him, he being a great believer in the good will that attaches to a location. All are fitted up in the most modern manner with every facility for the rapid transaction of the business. No old, unsaleable, or otherwise shopworn goods are ever to be seen; everything is bright, seasonable and saleable and displayed to the best advantage, both in the store and show windows, which latter, by the way, are always in good taste, and nearly always contain very attractive features. Wedding Decoration by Gude Bros. Co.

The recent wedding of Miss Margaret Preston Draper, prominent in social circles at Washington, D. C., to Prince Andrea Boncompagni, of Rome, Italy, was marked by the transformation of the residence, at which the ceremony was performed, into a veritable bower of flowers, the arrangement being by Gude Bros. Co., well-known florists of the national capital, with the usual excellence which has gained for this firm a countrywide reputation.

From the entrance to the ball room on the floor above, where the ceremony was performed, palms, ferns, large white chrysanthemums and American Beauty roses in profusion, arranged to reproduce the national marble altar and the white prie dieux. Ferns and American Beauties banked the front of the altar and the platform on which Cardinal Gibbons' throne stood. Roses in high standards graced the former at each side, the prie dieux being sprayed with ferns. An anteroom, which had been transformed into a bower of ferns, made a charming setting for the organ and the orchestra.

CIBOTIUMS AND PALMS AT THE JOSEPH HEACOCK CO.'S, WYNCOTE, PA.

made-up plants are in 7-inch tubs, having a strong six-inch Forsteriana for the center with three bushy fours around. In from nine to 12 months they are ready for sale. Larger sizes of made-up plants contain stronger and older stock. These are grown in eight, nine, ten, eleven and twelve inch tubs, which take about a year to finish. A number are also grown on as single specimens. Insects are guarded against by frequent fumigation with liquid Nico-Fume, evaporated in the "Lonsdale" pans on the steam pipes. Sharp syringing is also a good preventative.

In these houses every inch of room is utilized. The outside wall of the largest palm house supports a 12-inch board or hanging shelf, which, running the length of the house, carries 5,000 two-inch pot kentias. While this is not as good as a more valuable table space, the plants looked very well and added that much to the efficiency of the houses.

Cibotiums are seen here in splendid form; they are called the velvet plants because they take up no room as all are grown suspended from the roof pipes, where they have an abundance of light and air, their slender fronds not interfering in the slightest with the palms on the ground beneath. Specimens in 10-inch tubs are finished on iron pedestals which stand above the palms. Scottii ferns are grown in much the same way. Several beds are planted in the spring from which every other plant is taken in the early fall, potted, and suspended from the roof to be finished. The balance in the beds are grown on, providing young plants from runners. The old plants are lifted finally and finished for the late winter demand when the market is generally bare of such stock.

Cattleyas are one of the specialties being done as well here as anywhere in the country. J. Gould, who has charge of this department, has crossed a number of plants and has some 8,000 seedlings in various stages of growth; it takes about six years to bring along a plant to the point of profitable bearing. Seed is best sown early in the spring and will start to show life in three weeks. Dowiana and labiata make a good cross. The seed pods take about a year to mature. Orchids will not force like many other plants; too much heat will start them into growth at the expense of the flowers, but by careful coaxing the various varieties can be made to hit certain seasons when they are most in demand. Plants from seed, if well crossed, generally produce blooms of good size and quality, while only about 40 per cent of the imported stock bear high grade flowers. The seedling plants also hold out much longer than the imported. By not allowing weak plants to flower they are greatly strengthened for next season's growth. It takes about a year to establish newly imported stock. A fairly good crop of flowers is obtained the second season, which increases until the fifth year, when they begin to go back. This applies to the general run of the stock, there being some exceptions. A house of labiata was flowering freely. Cattleyas can be held a month on the plants, which is quite a feature in an overstocked market.

Intensive culture and efficiency in every department is the feature of this very well managed establishment. Theodore Shober, who has charge of the palms and ferns, appears to understand their every requirement. Since August he and his force have been busy all the time selecting and packing orders, large quantities being selected daily with many more yet to go before the present orders are filled.

Alfred M. Campbell, Strafford, Pa.

E. A. Stroud, the former proprietor of the Strafford Flower Farms, kept his establishment well to the front, his specialty being carnations and chrysanthemums. Alfred M. Campbell, who is now the proprietor, bids fair to be a worthy successor, as all the stock is fully up to the high standard set by Mr. Stroud. A house containing 20,000 blooms of the new orange yellow chrysanthemum, Strafford, is a wonderful sight. This variety is surely destined to be universally grown. It is of medium size, about 5 inches in diameter, reflex, with an abundance of petals whose regularity gives the flower a most perfect form. In color it is a bright bronzy orange yellow, a most pleasing shade, that almost glistens in its intensity. The stem and foliage could not be better. A look over this house creates a lasting impression. There are several other houses filled with standard sorts, the envy of most growers. A house 50x350 feet contains 30,000 carnation plants, which are in a great state of preparedness for the winter campaign; there are not many finer blocks anywhere. Formosum lilies are to be a feature, a number of tables in various stages being filled with them. Quite a retail business has been done here and a fine stock of poinsettias, begonias, cyclamens, ferns and palms are being groomed for the holidays. The range contains 60,000 feet of glass. The houses are of Hitching's best iron construction, heated with a battery of their boilers. Mr. Campbell is a hustling young man, well versed in the business. In addition to this large place, he has another at Collingdale and a wholesale cut-flower store in Philadelphia.

W. K. Harris, Philadelphia, Pa.

There are few places where florists plants are the specialty, where one will find such general excellence as at the W. K. Harris establishment, Fifty-fifth and Springfield avenue, Philadelphia.

This is the home of many successes. The Harris lily was a discovery of Mr. Harris and named for him. Ficus were first grown here in quantity and the largest stock of Pandanus Veitchii, before the southern grown cuttings became a feature, was always to be found here, Mr. Harris having found that by destroying the center of the plant it would sucker much more freely from the bottom, a secret which he retained for a long time. Hosea Waterer's first importation of chrysanthemums from Japan were given him to grow on to determine their worth, and he crossed many of the varieties, almost the entire stock of the country being direct descendants of these original plants and crosses sent out at that time. Ivory is about the only variety, of the original imported set, that is still in cultivation.

One of Mr. Harris' best contributions is the broad, long, crinkley-leaved sport of the Boston fern, named after himself. When displayed on a pedestal it makes one of the most beautiful of this large family, which have been such a boon to the florist. We cannot understand why its cultivation has not been taken up by others.

For the most part this is a firm whose business is of specialties. House after house is filled with Harrisi and Scottii ferns in medium and large sizes. A house is given to Ficus elastica and altissima. The latter might be called a refined elastica, having a similar leaf, which grows much closer on the stem. It is seen at its best in branched or bush form. Many of the elastica are branching plants set in the ground outside during the summer. They make stocky plants, lift well and soon recover after potting, in the house. A house of Pandanus Veitchii and another of crotons looked well. Six to eight houses are planted with chrysanthemums for cut flowers, grown three to a plant, and are up to the standard required here. They are quite as good as many seen flowered, only one stem to a plant. They are able to get this quantity by early planting, all before May 30. This insures a vigorous growth, which breaks strongly when plants are topped.

An interesting feature is the houses of Asplenium nidus avis, the bird's nest fern; there are many thousands in the two houses given up to them. One contains plants in from four to eight-inch pots; the other is the nursery, where they are cared for from the seed pan up to two-inch pots, for delivery before the holidays. All the large stock is marked sold, except a few in four-inch pots, which gives some idea of its popularity. In all this great block there is not one diseased or discolored frond, which is remarkable, as many growers have to discard it on account of black spot. Seed is sown every two weeks, which is necessary to keep up a supply, as it is in almost constant demand in all stages of growth, the three-inch being one of the most popular sizes.

Christmas and Easter are climaxes here, for which great preparations are made. Some 24 cases of azaleas, for early forcing, had just arrived. These would follow some of the chrysanthemums. Houses of cyclamen and poinsettias were features, while in another large house were the assorted tubs, pans and pots made up of variegated foliage plants for the Christmas trade.

Outside, the rambler and other roses for Easter forcing, had just been potted and stored for the winter. They are plunged in manure, close together on the ground, from which they were dug and covered with salt hay, which is worked down among the branches

EXHIBITIONS.

The Philadelphia Show.

The annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, in conjunction with the show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was opened at Philadelphia, Pa., under most favorable auspices. Tuesday evening, November 7. The show was complete in all departments, particularly that of the cut bloom section, in which the C. S. A. entries formed an important part. In these it was the largest and most varied exhibition ever seen in that city. Large flowers and great excellence had been expected but the growers fairly outdid themselves, the blooms being truly wonderful in size, form and color. Among the other strong features of the show were the orchid displays. Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa., had a group of plants in flower arranged in a bank at the first landing of the grand staircase extending from the main balcony of the upper hall which was most artistic in its natural woods-like beauty. Two large standing mirrors, between which was a fountain, gave the appearance of a cascade. Cibotium and other ferns, together with cork and birch bark and mosses, gave the group a most natural forest habitat appearance. Well flowered cattleyas were prominent, as well as oncidiums and many other choice genera of this family. The arrangement was in charge of John Kuhn.

Louis Burke's display was up to his usual standard, and better. The large electrically lighted case was filled with the choicest of his large collection. Magnificent cattleyas, oncidiums, laelias, odontoglossums, stanhopias, phalaenopsis and rare varieties of cypripediums, all in full flower, made an exceptionally fine showing. A smaller case contained a specimen of Vanda Sanderiana with a seven flowered spike of superb blooms. This was flanked by two pots of very well flowered cypripediums. An enclosed gilded frame contained a magnificent Brassia-Cattleya Heatonsense with two flowers, the lips of which, heavily fringed, were over three inches in depth.

until the appearance is that of a long, low, hay rick. They winter splendidly here and are easily gotten out when wanted for early forcing.

Mr. Prince, the foreman, is a thoroughly practical plantsman, the whole stock reflecting his careful management. W. K. Harris and Mark Mills are still in the harness, but now find more time to get about among their fellow craftsmen, put pep and business management into flower shows, and lend their valued business counsel in similar channels.

What is an amateur at horticultural exhibitions? What general classes of amateurs could be made to advantage?

An amateur at horticultural exhibitions is one who grows his own flowers, fruits or vegetables. Amateurs are usually divided into two classes, namely, amateurs proper, who have no assistants in their work and amateurs who keep a gardener.

What is a professional exhibitor at horticultural exhibitions?

Gardeners who care for the green-houses or gardens of private individuals as distinguished from commercial florists and nurserymen.

Can a person employing skilled help produce is grown for his own table and pleasure?

No.

Can head gardener or his assistants on estate not growing produce for sale, exhibit as amateurs either in his own name or in his employer's name from the produce grown on the estate?

No.

NEPHROLEPIS HARRISII.

Fourteen Inch Tub; Spread Eight Feet.

The pot plants occupied the center of the main hall, as usual, and were quite up to the standard of recent years. The shorter, bushy stock, flowered well down to the pot, were more effective than the taller larger plants on which the flowers, no more numerous, seemed farther apart and did not give the color effect as in those kept lower. They were also much harder to transport.

The center of the hall, under the large chandeliers, contained a group of fine specimen crotons, six to eight feet in height, very bushy and well colored, staged by John Hobson. H. A. Dreer, Inc., filled the tables bordering the stage with well grown, medium sized plants of crotons, variegated pineapples, Phoenix Roebelenii and other choice plants, backed with fine kentias. At the opposite end of the hall the group of foliage and flowering plants staged by John Dodds, gardener to John Wanamaker, was a feature. Splendid plants of antirrhinum, rich with color, cattleyas in full flower, Pandanus Lindenhurst, and other choice foliage plants made a most interesting and monumental grouping. Thomas Long, gardener for G. W. Childs Drexel, staged his usual fine collection of ferns. Wonderful perfection and growth is exemplified in these plants, which are not duplicated anywhere.

In the foyer was staged the variegated and other fancy foliage plants. These were brilliant in their coloring and wonderful in the vigor and finish, the selections of the very best collections from the private establishments in the neighborhood. The front foyer was occupied by interesting trade exhibits. H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, displayed garden requisites, insecticides and bird boxes, nicely arranged with appropriate plants. The exhibit of H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, was an enclosed garden effect. A high pole fence, with a wide entrance and a grapevine covered pergola was very effective. Chrysanthemums in the border and a well arranged center bed of spring blooming bulbs represented by artificial flowers was very artistic. This was another of Philip Freund's successes. A table of choice varieties of hardy chrysanthemums by the H. F. Michell Co., from which orders were taken for spring delivery, was in charge of C. A. Gowdrey.

There were two large exhibits of fancy fish. One in the lower hall by the gold fish exhibitors of Philadelphia, a combination of 12 fish fanciers, and another in the main foyer, by Franklin Barrett, were very interesting features, surrounded at all times by the visitors.

Wm. Kleinheinz staged a wonderfully well flowered set of a new winter flowering tuberous begonia. The plants were 18 inches in height and covered with flowers, one inch to three inches in diameter. The colors were red and shades of pink—a real novelty, apparently of great value.

The King Construction Co., North Tonawanda, N. Y., had a nicely arranged latticed booth, hung with pictures of their greenhouses and a sample movable frame for the garden. Fred Cowperthwaite was in charge. The Lord & Burnham Co. also made an exhibit of cold frames and sash, also literature. D. T. Connor was exploiting the virtues of the exhibit.

H. Waterer, Philadelphia, exhibited bulbs and garden requisites, tools, etc. Thos. Meehan & Sons staged hardy chrysanthemums in front of an elaborate latticed background of evergreens, berries and autumn leaves. This was an artistic display.

Wednesday noon the important exhibitors from out-of-town points were still busy unpacking their large shipping cases and the cry went forth for additional vases. The Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association of Chicago had an excellent exhibit and Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., were represented with a display of immense blooms. Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., made a fine exhibit of more than 100, while W. H. Duckham's showing comprised 75 wonderful flowers. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., with 50 vases of superb pompons and the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., with more than 100 immense blooms, including several new varieties, also made splendid displays. The local growers staged stock of extraordinary size and finish. Many of the flowers measured nine inches in diameter and the same in depth.

The Boston Show.

The autumn exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was held at Horticultural hall, Boston, November 4-6. The show was not as large as usual, but the flowers shown were of very good quality. The groups of flowering plants were especially good this year and made the best showing in the exhibition. A. N. Davenport had a very fine display—a great variety of plants. Wm. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass., also showed some very fine specimens in its group. For commercial plants, Wm. Elliot, Boston, had some of the finest ever staged at the hall, all being very fine varieties, well flowered and perfect in shape. The specimen plants were not unusual this year with the exception of a large plant of Garza shown by Galen Stone. The retail exhibits were very much "off" this year, there being but one entry—Caplen, The Florist, showing uses of flowers in the home.

The competition for all blooms of chrysanthemums was not very keen as the flowers shown by Galen Stone surpassed all others by a large margin.

Wm. Rust, gardener for the Weld estate, had a nice showing of winter flowering hybrid begonias which won a great deal of admiration. Wm. Down also had some very fine specimens of Begonia Optima, which won a silver medal. A table of crotons and camellias from Thomas Roland, of Nahant, were exceptionally good.

There were good showings of pom-pons and single chrysanthemums from Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. The fruits and vegetables were more extensively shown this year than usual, Thos. I. Grey Co. having a very fine display.

The carnations were very fine this year. Strouts, of Biddeford, Me., won in the six vase class with some very fine flowers.

Tarrytown Hort. Society Show.

The eighteenth annual exhibition of the Tarrytown, N. Y., Horticultural Society was held in Music hall, Tarrytown, November 1-3. This society has an established reputation for good exhibitions, which was admirably sustained at this last event.

The exhibits in the competition for Mrs. Frederic E. Lewis' prize, silver cup and $25, for the most effectively arranged group of palms and flowering and foliage plants, space of 100 square feet, 1st, silver cup, value $25; 2nd, $15; 3rd, $10, added greatly to the decorative features of the hall. W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y. (R. M. Johnston, Gr.), won the cup; Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard, Tarrytown (C. R. Russell, Gr.), won second and D. G. Reid, Tarrytown, third. Chrysanthemums were largely used in the Thompson exhibit which occupied the stage. The Shepard exhibit was a fine arrangement of crotons and other foliage plants and chrysanthemum plants, around tall palms.

The stage was handsomely decorated with foliage and flowering plants and cut flowers. Noteworthy in the stage decorations were baskets and bowls of roses by F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, which were not in competition. Another effective decorative feature was the vases of long-stemmed chrysanthemums with autumn foliage, arranged along the balcony.

The exhibition chrysanthemums, as a matter of course, were very noteworthy. F. R. Pierson's prize, $15, for the best vase of 25 blooms Lillian Doty chrysanthemums disbudded, grown to single stem, stems 24 inches in length; 1st, $8; 2nd, $5; 3rd, $2, was awarded as follows: Mrs. S. Neustadt, Tarrytown, first; D. L. Luke, Tarrytown (John Elliott, Gr.), second; Paul M. Warburg, Hartsdale (Frank C. Luckenbach, Gr.), third. Charles Vanderbilt's prize ($5) for the largest chrysanthemum bloom, selected from all the exhibits, was won by Mrs. F. E. Lewis, Ridgfield, Conn. (J. W. Smith, Gr.), with William Turner.

In the various classes for exhibition chrysanthemums, numerous prizes were won by W. B. Thompson, Mrs. F. E. Lewis, Mrs. Carl Victor, Irvington, (Thos. Lee, Gr.), and Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard. Noteworthy varieties exhibited were: Mary Farnsworth, William Turner, Mary Mason, Odessa, Elberon, Queen Mary, W. Woodmason, Rose Pockett, Hon. Mrs. Lapes, Mrs. G. Drabble, C. H. Totty, Nerissa, Nakota and Boggs. There were fine exhibits of pompons and singles. Mrs. Carl Victor took first and Dr. C. C. Brace (Geo. McIntosh, Gr.) second for Mrs. H. Darlington's prize, $5, for the best six vases, six varieties, five sprays each of pompon chrysanthemums; 1st, $3; 2nd, $2. There was a clever display of pompons in competition by Scott Brothers, Elmsford, N. Y..

Edgemont Nurseries' (Julian F. Detmer, prop.) prize, silver cup and $25, for most effectively arranged display of orchids, covering a space of 25 square feet, for private gardeners only; 1st, silver cup; 2nd, $15; 3rd, $10, was awarded to Samuel Untermeyer, Grey-stone (Arthur Griffin, Supt.; Geo. H. James, Gr.), first; Mrs. Shepard, second. Both these exhibits were very fine.

Adolph Lewisohn's silver cup for best vase of roses, 50 blooms, was won by Richard Delafield, Tuxedo Park, N. Y. (Wm. Brock, Gr.), who also took first for 12 pink, 12 white and 12 yellow.

In the commercial class, F. R. Pierson took first prize for 25 blooms one variety.

The Lord & Burnham Co.'s gold medal for 18 roses, other than American Beauty, was won by W. B. Thompson, who also took other rose prizes. Carnation prizes were taken by Mrs. S. Hermann, Mrs. Shepard, W. B. Thompson, D. G. Reid and Mrs. E. S. Bayer.

The table decorations were largely of single chrysanthemums. A. W. Golding, gardener to D. G. Reid, Irvington, was first; Wm. Brock, gardener to Richard Delafield, second, and Wm. G. Ellis, gardener to E. L. Myers, Huntington, N. Y., third. Mrs. James Speyer's table decoration, not in competition, was a very elaborate arrangement. A mirrored centerpiece, a statuette fountain, miniature swans, with a vase of pink bouvardia at each plate—all combined, it was a great attraction.

Marie Bowman, of White Plains, took first prize for the best arranged bridal bouquet.

Prize winners not previously mentioned were S. M. Lehman, Henry Sidersberg, Mrs. S. Neustadt, Emil Berolsheimer, J. F. Detmer (G. H. Chisholm, Gr.), Mrs. I. N. Seligman, D. E. Oppenheimer, all with chrysanthemums; Mrs. J. B. Trevor, Mrs. Moses Taylor and Richard Langle, with violets. A. F. F.

Westchester and Fairfield Society.

The sixth annual autumn exhibition of this society was held in Drinkwater's hall, Greenwich, Conn., October 31-November 1. The manager was J. B. McArdle, who was ably assisted by Thos. Ryan, to whom the society is indebted for the staging of a magnificent display of flowers, fruits and vegetables. The handsome and valuable prizes offered for the entire schedule of 121 classes brought out keen competition, the quality of the exhibits throughout being of a very high order. Noteworthy features were the scarcity of the "big blooms" and the increasing popularity of the more decorative types of single and pompon varieties of chrysanthemums, the increasing interest displayed in the classes for groups of plants and of cut flowers, decorative work and table decoration. It is gratifying to note the interest taken in the exhibition by the amateurs—those who do not employ paid assistants. Owing to the unusually mild season, there was a splendid display of outdoor flowers; over 50 varieties were seen in the five groups in this class. Among the novelties noted was the new yellow rose exhibited by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Mme. Collette Martinet, of remarkable fragrance, good form, and which is said to be a good grower and producer. Some fine varieties of anemone flowered chrysanthemum seedlings exhibited by Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y., attracted a lot of attention. A vase of the new double flowered form of cosmos was exhibited by J. B. McArdle; the neat flowers should be very useful to the florist as well as a good subject for the garden. The sweepstakes prize for the best chrysanthemum bush plant went to W. J. Sealey, gardener for Chas. Mallory. The prize for the most meritorious exhibit, a display of orchid plants, went to Robt. Allen, gardener for E. C. Benedict. The award for table decoration went to Wm. Whitton, gardener for Mrs. H. M. Flagler, who also won the prize for the largest chrysanthemum bloom in the show. First prize for outdoor flowers went to P. W. Popp, gardener for Mrs. H. Darlington; second, Wm. Smith, gardener for Robt. Mallory, who also was first for a specimen orange tree.

In the chrysanthemum plant classes, the honors were divided by Chas. Mallory, John Downey (Thos. Ryan, Gr.), John Orr, Mrs. W. G. Nichols (G. D. Sullivan, Gr.), A. G. Smith (C. Hankanson, Gr.), Mrs. L. C. Bruce (John Andrew, Gr.), Mrs. H. M. Flagler, Mrs. A. M. Zabriskie (Fred Metzler, Gr.), F. A. Topping (Fred Lagerstam, Gr.).

In the cut chrysanthemum classes the most successful were Mrs. H. M. Flagler, Mrs. E. C. Converse (Wm. Graham, Gr.), Mrs. Ernest Iselin (Duncan McIntyre, Gr.), Mrs. J. D. Barron (James Linane, Gr.), A. G. Smith, G. Lowther (Emil Johnson, Gr.).

In the pompon classes the honors were divided by Adrian Iselin, Jr. (Jos. Tiernan, Gr.), Mrs. H. Darlington, Mrs. E. C. Converse, Mrs. F. A. Constable (Jas. Stuart, Gr.).

In the single classes, honors were shared by Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mrs. H. Darlington, Adrian Iselin, A. G. Smith and Mrs. E. C. Converse. For vase of pompons, one variety, Mrs. H. Darlington was first; Chas. Mallory, second. For six blooms yellow, 1915 introduction, P. W. Popp was first.

In the carnation classes the principal winners were Mrs. E. C. Converse (Robt. Grunnert, Gr.), Mrs. Nathan Strauss (Thos. Aitchison, Gr.), J. B. Cobb (A. Alius, Gr.), W. Brunny and Geo. Lowther.

In the rose classes the honors went to Chas. Smith (Anton Pederson, Gr.), Mrs. H. M. Flagler, Mrs. E. C. Converse, Mrs. Oliver Hoyt (Jas. Foster, Gr.). First prize for violets went to Miss M. Valentine (A. Carver, Gr.); second to Mrs. Oliver Hoyt. Robt. Grunnert was first for lily of the valley.

Honors in the orchid classes were divided between Mrs. Oliver Hoyt, E. C. Benedict, Mrs. E. Croncheth, J. B. Cobb, Mrs. H. Darlington and Mrs. F. A. Constable.

In the vegetable classes honors were shared by Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mrs. L. C. Bruce, John Downey, Mrs. A. A. Anderson, J. B. Barron, Geo. Lowther, Mrs. Nathan Strauss, Ernest Iselin, Mrs. Oliver Hoyt, Miss Valentine, D. Millbank, A. Higgins, Mrs. E. C. Converse and J. B. Cobb.

In the amateur classes, J. Merritt Smith and Oscar Addor, Jr., were the most successful.

In the ladies' garden club class, Mrs. W. M. Bennett and Mrs. W. M. Ladd were the winners. The judges were: Wm. Turner, Oceanic, N. J.; Jas. Blair, Staatsburg, N. Y.; Ernest Wild, Morristown, N. J., and Geo. Middleton, Tarrytown, N. Y.

A certificate of merit was awarded to Alex. Geddes for display of single type seedling chrysanthemums; cultural certificate to Wm. Morrow for Eucharis Amazonica, who was also awarded a certificate for Cypas Rumphii; special prize to P. W. Popp for basket of pompon type chrysanthemums.

Eight fine trade exhibits were in evidence. J. B. McArdle, Greenwich, Conn., was highly commended for exhibit of roses, palms and cosmos; Stamford Seed Co., Stamford, Conn., was highly commended for exhibit of sundries. Certificates were awarded to Mills & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., for display of dahlias; Geo. E. Baldwin & Co., Mamaroneck, N. Y., display of orchids; Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., display of orchids; Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y., display of chrysanthemums; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., display of chrysanthemums; Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., for display of chrysanthemums. P. W. Popp, Cor. Sec'y.

Texas State Flower Show.

As the dates for the third annual flower show to be conducted by the Texas State Florists' Association draw near, interest in the event increases. A number of florists from over the state have reported that they will be present with exhibits, and several large florists out of the state will be represented. The premium list has been completed and mailed. It covers a wide range of subjects and entries in all classes, and competition for the prizes is expected to be sharp. Those out of the state who have reserved space for exhibits, not previously reported, are: Joy Floral Company, Nashville, Tenn.; Denver Wholesale Florists' Company, Denver, Colo.; Stuppy Floral Company, St. Joseph, Mo.; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago; Furrow & Co., Guthrie, Okla.; Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill.; H. S. Ely & Company, Neosho, Mo.

The following firms have made donations of the items mentioned, for the benefit of the association in conducting the show. These items, to be used as premiums, will be placed on exhibition during the show: E. C. Amling Company, Chicago, flowers; Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, case of Lilium Giganteum bulbs; Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Company, Chicago, 12 sash; Sefton Manufacturing Company, Chicago, flower boxes; Denver Wholesale Florists' Company, Denver, Colo., flowers; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, 12 baskets; Baker Bros., Fort Worth, Tex., $12 worth of shrubs; H. Kaden, Gainesville, Tex., 12 two-year-old roses; Texas Nursery Company, Sherman, Tex., 25 new roses valued at $10. A cash donation has been made by Kroeschell Bros. Company, Chicago.

There is yet room for several more exhibits and florists in every section of the state are urged to send their flowers and plants for exhibition even if they cannot attend in person. All flowers or plants that may be sent will receive the closest attention. Florists out of the state are also invited to send flowers and plants, and everyone far and near is invited to attend the show. Any information will be gladly given by Henry Greve, Dallas, Tex., chairman of the flower show committee. Ample publicity is being given this show in Dallas and surrounding territory and a very large attendance is expected. L. J. TACKETT, Sec'y.

Sewickley Horticultural Society Show.

The chrysanthemum show of the Sewickley Horticultural Society, held in the school pavilion, November 2-4, was a great success in every way, being favored with splendid weather. The attendance taxed the capacity of the hall to the utmost for the three days of the show, and a larger hall would have shown off the exhibits to better advantage.

Chas. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., staged a fine exhibit of chrysanthemums, including White Doty, fine flowers of Wm. H. Waite, a fine gold and reddish flower similar to Mary Mason, but larger, Louise Pockett, a large incurved white, and Golden Champion, an immense flower on the Rose Pockett color, altogether a well named flower. E. D. Smith & Co., of Adrian, Mich., also sent a fine display, including some novelties, with fine flowers of Miss Wright, Calumet and Smith's Sensation. The exhibit of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. was a great attraction, outstanding being five vases of Ophelia, J. L. Mock, Richmond and My Maryland roses. They also showed a fine collection of singles and pompons. The Valley Greenhouses exhibited fine specimens of Snapdragon Helen Walker. Mr. Allen, of Homewood cemetery, had on view a brownish sport of Lillian Doty. The judges were Jas. Wiseman, Fred Burki and A. C. Davidson and their work was beyond criticism. Farm-hill estate displayed stove and flowering plants.

The following were among the principal prize winners: Mrs. E. M. Horne (M. Curran, Gr.), H. L. Mason (J. Murphy, Gr.), H. J. Heinz (A. A. Leach, Gr.), Dixman Hospital (Carl Becherer, Gr.), Mrs. W. P. Snyder (Wm. Thomson, Gr.), R. B. Mellon (Ernest Guter, Gr.), Mrs. A. Laughlin, Jr. (T. Sturgis, Gr.), Mrs. Wm. Thaw (John Jones, Gr.), R. N. Boggs (R. Taylor, Gr.), H. C. Frick (Jas. Fraser, Gr.), Watson estate (Herman Rapp, Gr.), C. D. Armstrong (T. E. Tyler, Gr.), Mrs. J. F. Byers (A. E. Bonsey, Gr.), T. B. Oliver (John Reis, Gr.).

Menlo Park Hort. Society's Show.

FINE EXHIBITION ATTRACTS CROWDS.

The fall flower show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society was held in Foresters' hall, Redwood City, Calif., October 27-29. Owing to the fact that the society did not have a suitable exhibition hall at Menlo Park, it was deemed advisable to hold the show in Redwood City. The society surpassed all its former efforts and the feature proved an unqualified success—socially, artistically and financially. Even the hall, large as it was, hardly filled the bill, and a few of the exhibits were a bit crowded. David W. Slade was the manager of the show and directed everything in a very able manner. Percy Ellings was a very busy secretary. They were both assisted by the following exhibition committee: John M. Daly, G. Nunn, Henry L. Gortzhain, Arthur Bearsby and Percy Copp.

The center of the large hall was devoted to pot plants—palms, crotons, orchids, ferns and flowering plants. The cut blooms of chrysanthemums were arranged on benches, which ran the entire length of the hall. The rose and carnation exhibits were on benches against the wall of the building. On the second and third days and evenings, the hall on the second floor was given over to the table decorations, baskets, bouquets and other floral arrangements. The hall was splendidly lighted and ventilated. The judges were Frank D. Pelicano, of San Francisco; Sidney Clack, of Mayfield; M. Hopkins, of Woodside; J. Clark and Wm. Eldred, of San Mateo, and their work met with the approval of all and was highly praised.

Frank R. Mills, of Palo Alto, had a very attractive group of ferns and decorative plants near the entrance. This splendid display was the work of Arthur Bearsby. It was not for competition and was greatly admired. As usual, David Bassett, gardener to Louis Stern, carried off first prize with his great showing of decorative plants arranged for effect. This group captured the Lord & Burnham silver cup. He also won the society's silver cup for the best collection of 24 blooms of chrysanthemums and also the gold medal offered by the Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, for a collection of chrysanthemums. He also won the National Association of Gardeners' medal for 12 blooms,—all of which is some record for one show.

The Lynch Nursery Company was first for a collection of nephrolepis in variety and adiantums. The Fleishacker collection of orchids was a splendid one and reflects great credit on the grower, Walter Ellington, who in such a short space of time has worked up such a grand lot of plants. Some remarkable specimens of vandas in variety were shown. The cattleyas also were superb. We expect to hear a great deal more of this collection in the future as it is being constantly added to.

Chrysanthemums, of course, overshadowed everything else in the cut bloom exhibits. It has never been the writer's privilege to see such a uniformly good group staged in every class at a single exhibition as was done at this one. In the commercial class the Lynch Nursery Company upheld its reputation of former years and captured every prize but one. This stock was all grown by Secretary Ellings, who, besides his duty as secretary, found time to get away with these prizes as well. The Hillsborough Nurseries made elegant displays of cut chrysanthemums, as did Frank R. Mills, of Palo Alto.

Kenneth Murray, of Redwood City, took most of the firsts in the rose classes, but was closely pressed by the Hillsborough Nurseries. Nels Peterson showed grand carnations and was a large prize winner. The Lynch Nursery Company and Frank Mills also showed a fine lot in the carnation section.

There was a very large entry in the dahlia section and seldom is such a grand lot of stock shown. The Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms were represented by a very large exhibit of prizes for that popular flower.

John M. Daly, gardener to J. Leroy Nickel, was easily first with fruit grown under glass; his grapes, figs and pears being wonderful. This exhibit, as usual, was one of the most attractive displays in the hall.

Percy Copp won the silver cup for the best miniature garden. Dave Patterson was a close second. A. M. McDonald showed a splendid garden but it was not for competition, having arrived too late for judging. The silver cup offered for the best table decoration went to Percy Copp with a beautiful arrangement of Primula Forbesii. Following is a complete list of the awards:

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The twelfth annual chrysanthemum show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, which was held in Glen Cove, N. Y., November 2-3, was one of the finest exhibitions this society has ever held. The cut blooms exhibited were of the largest size and finest finish, while the various specimen plants and plant groups showed an acme of perfection that reflected the greatest credit on the skill of their growers. The roses, carnations and vegetables were of an equally high quality and competition in practically all of the classes was of the keenest. The various exhibits were most artistically arranged under the capable direction of Show Manager James Gladstone, ably assisted by James Holloway and Harry Goodband.

There were two groups of plants exhibited, each of which showed the most tasteful arrangement and brought forth many favorable comments. One was a group of chrysanthemum plants staged by Robert Jones, gardener for Percy Chubb; the other, a group of foliage and flowering plants entered by Robert Marshall, gardener for J. R. Delamar.

The classes for the double chrysanthemum standard and bush plants were both won by Robert Marshall, with James McCarthy, gardener for W. E. Kimball, second. The prizes for single chrysanthemums, standard and bush plants, were each won by James McCarthy, with Henry Gaut, gardener for Herbert S. Pratt, second. For six chrysanthemums in 6-inch pots, Robert Marshall was first and Robert Jones, second. For six chrysanthemum plants as grown for market, George Ferguson, gardener for Payne Whitney, first, and Robert Jones, second.

The prize for the largest bloom in the show was captured by Robert Jones with a massive William Turner. Mr. Jones also led in the number of prizes won, taking 17 firsts and six seconds. The classes for single and hardy chrysanthemums were well contested and many exceptionally fine varieties were exhibited. For 50 varieties of hardy pompons, Henry Gaut was first, with John Everett, gardener for John J. Pratt, second. The same exhibitors finished in the same order for the class of 12 varieties of hardy chrysanthemums.

Among others who were prominent in the list of prize winners were the following: W. A. Coe (Jos. Robinson, Gr.), J. H. Ottley (Thos. Flynn, Gr.), Frank Petroccia, William Noonan, George Ford and James McCarthy. The judges were Walter Angus, Ewen MacKenzie and Howard Nichols.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

On November 11-13, will be staged the biggest flower show ever seen at the college. Besides the 60 or more classes exhibited by the college, there will be 20 classes open to the local florists, and keen competition is looked for. Several of the Boston florists, among whom are H. M. Robinson, William Penn, and Thomas Galvin, have volunteered to send exhibits.

The department extends a most cordial invitation to the florists to visit the exhibition. Last year's attendance was over 3,000, and judging from the amount of interest already being shown in the show, this will be very much increased.

A joint meeting of the M. A. C. Club and the Northampton and Holyoke Club will be held Monday evening, and will be followed by a snappy social.

The junior classes have completed the work of reglazing and are now being given practice work in the potting of cuttings and bulbs. The violet house has just been planted by the senior classes.

MARKET SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

The market has advanced a slight degree as the large crop of early chrysanthemums is going off. Roses have been selling better, prices ranging from $1 to $16 per 100, according to quality and grade. Carnations also have advanced in price, $3 being received for some. On Monday, November 6, $2.50 per 100 was the average price for good blooms, although it is expected that the price will continue to rise. Chrysanthemums are coming better in quality, as the culls of the early crop have been practically cleaned up and the beginning of the late crop comes in. Bonnaffon, Chieftain and Razor are the three mainstays, the price being from $1 to $2 per dozen. Pompons and singles are selling better, three bunches for $1 being about the average price. A few Paper White narcissi are seen and sell readily for $2.50 per 100. Violets are rather slow sellers but the quality as yet is rather poor. The market, as a whole, seems to be growing stronger and it is expected that prices will be back to a satisfactory standard before long.

NOTES.

George Cartwright passed away at his home in Roxbury, November 2. He was the oldest salesman in the city market. He was born in England in 1854 and came to this country when nine years of age. He was in business growing flowers in Dedham for 25 years. Upon giving up his business he became a commission salesman of flowers, which he has been until his death. He was treasurer of the Boston Flower Exchange for 24 years. His sudden death was a great shock to his numerous friends as he was so well liked and respected by everyone. The market was draped in his memory, and a beautiful floral tribute was sent as a last expression of regard.

Wm. Elliot has the sympathy of his many friends in the death of his sister, Mrs. L. M. Miller, of New London, Conn.

Albany, N. Y.

CLUB MEETING.

When the members of the florists' club gathered at their meeting place for the November session they found the room adorned with two long tables on which were vases of chrysanthemums and roses. It had been announced that an exhibition would be held at this meeting, but, nevertheless, the members were surprised at the array that the growers had sent in. From A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., came two samples of the Yellow William Turner, which attracted much attention. For a commercial variety it has form and size hard to surpass and the comments upon it were most favorable. This firm also sent samples of Golden Gleam, Josephine Foley (white, incurved), and a few other better known varieties. From the conservatories of George C. Hawley, 994 Madison avenue, (Earl Shaw, superintendent), came a large vase of several varieties, among which were included: Mrs. Louise Rousseau (lavender); William Turner, (white); Nerissa, (lavender); Rayonarte, (lavender, reflex); William Vert, (red); Mrs. G. Kelly, (red); Glenview, (bronze); Mrs. Paul Moore, (yellow); Daily Mail, (yellow); Mrs. N. Stevens, (variegated), and Nakota, (yellow, in-curved). Frederick A. Danker furnished some vases of roses including: Richmond, Ward, Ophelia, Pink Killarney, Mock, Francis Scott Key, Sunburst, and Double White Killarney. From Geo. C. Hawley's houses there were on exhibition: Red Radiance, Hoosier Beauty, Francis Scott Key, Hadley and Russell roses. Holmes Brothers (William Newport, Gr.), sent in three varieties of commercial chrysanthemums: Charles Razer, (white); Roman Gold and Chieftain, (white). Fred Golding, Slingerland, showed a vase of the new pink orchid sweet pea, Yarrowa.

For the annual election to be held December 7, the following nominations were made by two special committees named by President Thomas F. Tracey: Regular—For president, Charles Sanders; for vice president, John J. Haggerty; for secretary-treasurer, Robert Davidson; for trustees, two years, Albert Jenkins, R. W. Bilson and Harry Nelson. Opposition—For president, Edward P. Tracey; for vice president, Earl Shaw; for secretary-treasurer, Robert Davidson; for trustees, two years, John A. Murnane, William Christie and Frank Williams.

President Tracey reported on a meeting of the retailers, held October 30, at which 14 were present. The retailers discussed discounts granted to undertakers, advertising, the marketing of surplus stock and other problems that confront the storemen. F. A. Danker was chairman of this meeting. The retailers adjourned after deciding to meet again at the call of Chairman Danker.

For the opening week in November Thomas F. Tracey, manager of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, wholesale, reported a surplus of chrysanthemums, roses and carnations. This condition, he said, is a temporary one at this time of the year. R. D.

New York Notes.

At the store of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. we have recently noticed fine stock of the new red rose, Montrose. The excavations under this firm's store are completed and they now have a fine moisture proof basement with a concrete floor, which gives them twice as much room, which was greatly needed. Manager Rigby is not a very large man, but he has the brains.

The finest Hadley roses reaching this market are at William P. Ford's, 107 West 28th street. Some of the stems are more than three feet in length and they are equal, if not superior, to American Beauties. He is also handling a particularly fine line of pompons.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. continues to be very successful with its auctions and is also doing a good counter trade. On the Noordam, which arrived from Rotterdam last week, they had a heavy consignment of box, rhododendrons and rose bushes.

The Late Charles R. Panter.

Charles R. Panter, a well-known florist of New Orleans, La., correspondent for THE AMERICAN FLORIST, in that city, for nearly a third of a century secretary of the New Orleans Horticultural Society, and at the time of his death inspector of local markets, died at his home, 2320 Calhoun street, October 23. He was born in England 54 years ago. On coming to this country, after being honorably discharged from the British army, having served in India, he first located in Texas, but settled in New Orleans over 30 years ago. He is survived by a widow and six children.

American Rose Society.

The rose here described has been offered for registration by Fred Breitmeyer, Mount Clemens, Mich.

Rose Pink Ophelia.—Color a beautiful shade of rose pink. A sport from Ophelia, but a stronger and more vigorous grower than the parent. Originated with us two years ago.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Personal.

E. O. Orpet is leaving Lake Forest, Ill., for a much needed rest, planning to go to the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Orpet goes also and they take with them the good wishes of the many acquaintances made while at Lake Forest, where Mr. Orpet has been for six years the superintendent of the property of Cyrus H. McCormick.

Frederic W. Taylor is now supervising an engineering project at Tucson, Ariz.

Johnson's Chrysanthemums.

C. W. Johnson, the well known Chicago specialist, has secured a marvelous crop of new seedling chrysanthemums of the large flowering types this season, more than a dozen of which will take rank with the best show in commercial varieties. In addition Mr. Johnson has a goodly array of high-grade novelties in singles and pompons. Some of these productions are on exhibition at the Philadelphia show of the national society this week.

Coal Prices Soar.

It was predicted in New York, October 30, by men in touch with the situation that anthracite coal would be selling at from $12 to $15 a ton within a short time. Frederick W. Saward, general manager of the "Coal Trade Journal," said the only relief in sight was likely to come in December, when some 300,000 tons that are carried over the Great Lakes probably will come to New York when weather conditions divert that amount to the east. Under the caption "The Coal Shortage in 1916 Outstrips 1902" the "Black Diamond" says:

"A coal shortage east of the Indiana-Ohio line is far greater than that experienced even in 1902. Prices are rising. They have now sustained a high level for a longer period than in 1902. They are just about as high as they were then. Further, the situation is operated upon by far more complex conditions today than was the case 14 years ago. As a result, the present situation is altogether far worse than it was then.

"Frantic efforts are now being made on the part of coal users, transportation companies and coal mines to meet the present situation. These efforts are not making much, if any, headway against what is growing to be a national calamity."

Retail prices for anthracite are now quoted at between $8 and $9 per ton for stove, nut and egg coal, pea coal $7 and buckwheat $5.50 per ton. These show an advance of from $1 to $2 per ton in the last few weeks. Soft coal from $3.40 per ton in September has doubled in price. On October 31, hard coal in domestic sizes sold for $12 a ton and it was stated that it may go to $20 a ton.

It is stated from Montreal that on account of the high price of coal, owners of Canadian peat beds are preparing to put it on the market as fuel.

As a sidelight on the coal situation, Dr. Albert Hale, American attache at Buenos Ayres, writes that the Argentines are paying from $20 to $40 per ton for coal, much of which comes from the United States, and they can not get all they want at these prices. Before the war most of their coal came from Great Britain and Australia.

Chicago to Bloomington.

The fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at the Coliseum, Bloomington, November 9-10. Treasurer Frank L. Washburn of the state organization advises that the Chicago & Alton gives the best service between that city and Chicago. The train schedule from Chicago to Bloomington is as follows:

Leave—	Due—
Chicago 9:00 A. M.	Bloomington 12:55 P. M.
Chicago 10:15 A. M.	Bloomington 1:20 P. M.
Chicago 12:01 P. M.	Bloomington 3:15 P. M.
Chicago 1:15 P. M.	Bloomington 5:15 P. M.
Chicago 6:30 P. M.	Bloomington 9:40 P. M.
Chicago 9:00 P. M.	Bloomington 12:55 A. M.
Chicago 10:20 P. M.	Bloomington 1:10 A. M.

The fare from Chicago to Bloomington is $2.54, round trip $5.08. This is the flat two-cent rate and there is no party or other reduced rate between these points. The train leaving the Union Station at 10:15 a. m., Thursday, November 9, has been selected for the Chicago delegation and it is hoped our city and club will be well represented, the Bloomington show being the only one of importance in the state this year.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club has been postponed to November 16, especially to permit members to attend the Bloomington exhibition and meeting of the state association.

Luncheon will be served at Bloomington, Thursday evening, November 9, at seven p. m.

Cook's New Rose.

The following item has been going the rounds of the daily papers, the subjoined being taken from the New York World of November 4:

Harrisburg, Pa., November 2.—Search is being made for a name for a new rose, developed by John Cook, aged eighty-two, of Baltimore, and brought here to be photographed by J. Horace McFarland, editor of the American Rose Annual.

Cook values the rose at $15,000. Specimens have a diameter of more than five inches. The color is pink. McFarland speaks of the rose as a sort of "glorified La France."

Experts say the Cook rose ranks with any rose produced in America and may stand ahead of all.

HEAVY SUPPLY AND PRICES LOW.

The market during the past week was in excellent condition. All flowers—with chrysanthemums in the lead—are to be had at a low price. The weather was very warm, a little too warm for November, and the market is overloaded with stock. The chrysanthemums are arriving in big quantities from local and out-of-town growers. The best are sold at $10 per hundred, with inferior grades quoted as low as $3. Roses are offered at buyers' prices. The best, of course, are in good demand and are bringing moderate figures. The best Russell brought $15 per hundred. American Beauties are popular too and are bringing the usual price. The best $4 per dozen—and other grades as low as $5 per hundred. Carnations are arriving in big quantities with few buyers. The best, which for this time of the year, are of very good quality, brought $1.50 per hundred; the inferior grades as low as $4 per 1,000. All varieties of pompons are in demand and the prices are fair. Violets are in demand for a low price. The quality is fairly good. Lilies and rubrums cleaned up fairly well at $8 per hundred. Lily of the valley is scarce with a big demand, the best bringing $6 per hundred. All kinds of greens cleaned up very well at the usual prices.

NOTES.

The spring flower show committee is busy with all chairmen of different sub-committees on the job. One philanthropist, who did not wish to mention his name, has taken up the matter with the trustees of the show, to have all school children attend the show, is willing to pay a gross admission for the same. The United Railway Co. has offered free transportation to all children.

The talk of the city for last week was the wedding of Miss Marie Busch, daughter of August Busch, of Anheuser-Busch brewery. The daily press reported the price of the decorations as $20,000, but Vincent J. Gorly did not want to say how many times the said sum had to be divided. About 4,000 lily of the valley and same amount of white roses with 500 long stemmed American Beauties and Shawyers were used.

At the establishment of H. G. Berning everybody is busy. Henry is smiling, although the stock fails to bring the price it ought to. Russells from Gullett & Sons' range, Lincoln, Ill., are to be had here in quantities.

Koenig Floral Co. has opened a branch store at 800 North Grand avenue. On the opening day, besides cut flowers, they had a special sale of Boston ferns—selling a good 7-inch fern for 50 cents. They did well.

C. A. Kuehn has a fine supply of all seasonable stock, especially of chrysanthemums, roses, lilies and lily of the valley. His house is known to retailers as headquarters for the last named.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has arranged for an annex, where it has a fine stock of chrysanthemums, plants out of the greenhouses in St. Louis county.

The windows at Mullanphy Florists' downtown store were splendidly decorated in national colors, with pictures of both presidential candidates in the center.

Foster, The Florist, had his fall opening October 30-31. He gave away 23,000 flowers, but the business was so good, that Fred claims it paid him.

Windler's flower shop on South Grand avenue, is very attractive in new fall decorations. Joe Windler reports a good trade.

G. H. Angermueller is receiving shipments of fine chrysanthemums from Indiana growers.

Al. Gumz, with Windler & Co., seems always to be busy. They report business good.

Andrew Meyer, Jr., has a good business, especially in funeral work.

TRADE GOOD IN ALL BRANCHES.

The social season is now in full swing and the florists are happy, if slightly overworked. The annual dance of the Joi de Vie club was held October 27, and the big football game between Missouri and Oklahoma was played here on October 28. Storemen say that business is very good all round. Not only is there a good call for flowers, but decorative and flowering plants are selling well, as also are bulbs for fall planting.

NOTES.

The decorations for the Joi de Vie dance were placed by the Stiles Co. The principal feature of the decoration was a garden scene with rustic arbors and real flower beds. Of course, every one who attended wore flowers, the best obtainable, and the retailers had about all the business they could attend to on that day. For the football game, chrysanthemums were in great demand; in fact, there was not enough of the large flowers to meet it; the Missourians carried a yellow flower with a black bow; the Oklahomans carried a white flower with a red bow, and all the flowers suitable for the purpose were disposed of.

Some of the florists are contemplating going to Dallas, Tex., to attend the flower show, November 15-17.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

Members of the State Florists' Association of Indiana spent a most enjoyable day November 2, the occasion being a visit to their fellow craftsmen at Richmond, Ind. After an inspection of the E. G. Hill Co.'s range, where new chrysanthemum varieties, both large and small, together with about 10,000 rose seedlings were seen in fine form, the Jos. Hill Co. and the Graves establishments, which is now under the management of the former, were visited. The main crops here are roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, but there is also a fine line of miscellaneous stock also grown here specially for this firm's Cincinnati store. Other places of interest visited were: Advance Co., the John A. Evans Co., Fulle Bros., Edward Ruch, Fred. H. Lemon & Co., and Edward Ruch.

Assembling at the Knights of Pythias hall, a straw vote was taken which resulted in the election of Hughes, New, Watson and Goodrich by a large majority, followed by a splendid dinner, E. G. Hill presiding in the absence of President Vesey and both vice-presidents of the association. Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., upon request of the chairman, spoke of his work and told of the new creations in chrysanthemums, encouraging others to strive for new varieties. Mr. Davis, of Des Moines, Ia., told many interesting things in regard to cucumber growing at his ranges. Other speakers were John Frees, Ed. Forder and J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.; John Hartje, Indianapolis, Ind.; Fred Hinnel, Terre Haute, Ind., and Robt. Newcomb, Chicago, the latter speaking in glowing terms of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery and the things accomplished at the recent meeting in Chicago.

After electing Frank Ball of Indianapolis and Mr. Snyder of Greencastle, upon motion of A. F. J. Baur, Professors Sayre and Woodberry of Purdue University were elected unanimously to honorary membership in the association. Professor Sayre was then called upon to talk on the experimental work being conducted at the university.

Mr. Baur urged all of the guests from out of the state to encourage a Z. von Hartin of Holland, gave a short talk on the contrast between the goodfellowship of the American florists and the jealousy existing between those of the old country. A short address by Mr. Hill closed the session.

Visitors from out of the state included the following: J. A. Peterson and wife, Roger W. Peterson, E. G. Gullett, John Frees, Frank Volz, Ed. Forder, Ed. Schumann, Wm. Schumann, D. Rusconi, Ed. CHRYSANTHEMUMS GLUT MARKET.

A chrysanthemum glut of unprecedented proportions, with unseasonably warm weather and slow demand, are the striking features of the market situation now and during the past ten days. The mild weather has advanced the main crop of medium and even late varieties from 10 days to two weeks or longer, and the result is paralyzing business. Saturday, November 4, many retailers had special sales of chrysanthemums at greatly reduced prices in an effort to stimulate trade and move the constantly increasing supply. This was successful in reducing the stock, but the growers complained of the returns, although realizing the fact that no blame attaches to the retailers. They are hopeful for colder weather, the end of the local election disturbance and the restoration of normal business. Roses, too, are arriving daily in increasing numbers and the quality is fully up to the standard, but they meet the same fate as the "autumn queen." Carnations are scarce, but their scarcity is not felt so keenly when the other items are so plentiful. Violets are fine for such warm weather and they meet with fair sale in the face of the unfavorable situation. The short supply of snapdragons is easily disposed of, as the stock is good and particularly attractive. Some of the florists are disposing of many bulbs for fall planting, and this, too, in spite of the fact that the department stores as well as the 5 and 10-cent stores are offering the same varieties for less than half the prices asked by florists. J. F. S.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS FLOOD MARKET.

Somebody predicted there would be a glut of flowers, and it has come—all seasonable varieties are flooding the market, especially chrysanthemums. It seems as if they were all coming in at once and as there is small demand prices have dropped out of sight. Business has been very poor, but it seems a shame to sell stock at the figures it brought last week and all growers will be disappointed with their returns. However, the wholesale houses were loaded and sales had to be made as the morrow would bring in additional heavy consignments. Roses sold at the lowest prices, the very best Killarneys being quoted at $4 per 100; $30 per 1,000. Very few thousand lots were sold, we might add. American Beauty could not be moved at all except for some special occasion, and then at bottom figures. Carnations sold as low as $15 per 1,000. When they were to be had, nobody wanted them. This is the first time this year that they were plentiful, but chrysanthemums were as cheap and go further. Pompons are plentiful and sell as low as 15 cents per bunch. There has been no good Chrysolora on the market this year. What few are seen are soft with very small flowers that fall even with the most careful handling. Some good Mrs. M. R. Morgan and Bonnaffon are to be had and command good prices, especially the former, the stock being the finest seen here this year. They sell at $40 per 100 and the supply is short of the demand.

NOTES.

The Sewickley flower show closed November 5. The managers report it a very successful affair and it will become an annual feature in the Beaver valley. A complete list of the prize winners will be published next week. The new chrysanthemum, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, won first prize at this show.

This city celebrated its one-hundredth charter anniversary last week. Nearly all of the florists, as well as the city parks, had decorated floats in the parade, and their work received many compliments.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Co. won first prize for the finest decorated float in the Hallowe'en celebration of the North Side Chamber of Commerce; also first prize in the charter centennial parade.

The McCallum Co. will send exhibits of Chrysanthemum, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, to the Lancaster, Philadelphia and Bloomington flower shows.

Randolph & McClements are cutting excellent Chieftain and Yellow Bonnaffon chrysanthemums at their Stanton avenue range.

DeForest Ludwig, who is in California on his honeymoon, has been appointed secretary of the Los Angeles flower show.

STEADY IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

Business is good and keeps on the up-hill climb. The supply is getting larger daily, and while prices are somewhat lower, stock keeps moving and little is wasted. Chrysanthemums are to be had in large quantities and the quality is good. Roses continue plentiful, but seem to hold back at present owing to the chrysanthemum season. Carnations are used quite freely in the cheaper classes of work. Violets and lily of the valley have a good call and pot chrysanthemums are in good demand.

NOTES.

The Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. has secured a restraining order to prevent further blasting near their greenhouses on Troost avenue. They have lost so far more than 1,640 panes broken, over 1,000 lights cracked, in addition to the damage to stock from falling glass, to say nothing of the dust. They have had to keep a glazer continually at work replacing the shattered lights.

W. J. Barnes has a heavy crop of chrysanthemums, but they move out as fast as they are cut. Pot plants are also in good demand. The call for funeral work is fair, while decorating is good, with several good orders in view.

A. Newell finds a ready sale for all the pot chrysanthemums he can get hold of. Orders for funeral work and decorations have been heavy and business in general is moving along in fine shape here.

H. Kusik & Co. report trade both local and out-of-town showing nice improvement. A fine line of chrysanthemums, carnations, roses, violets and lily of the valley are features of the stock here.

Samuel Murray has a window display of pot and cut chrysanthemums, arranged with the usual good taste that always attracts attention to his handsome store. He reports very good business.

Peterson Floral Co. reports a fine business in shrubs which they are handling this year for the first time. Business on the whole is very good, with a heavy sale in chrysanthemums.

The Col. Appleton chrysanthemums, which are being sent to this market by Jacob Hepting, are the best in the city.

Ed. Humfeld has a big showing of chrysanthemums of the finest quality daily. He had a heavy run of funeral work and decorations.

T. J. Noll & Co. report stock plentiful and moving well. Both local and shipping trade is very satisfactory.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Business is much better at this writing but it was very quiet last week when there was practically nothing doing whatever to speak of. Both the local and shipping demand were unusually dull, consequently stock accumulated to such an extent that the wholesalers sold whatever they had to offer to whoever would buy in large lots at ridiculously low November prices. Chrysanthemums particularly were sold very cheaply and it was almost impossible to get any kind of prices for them considering what they sold for in former years. There are not very many fancy chrysanthemums seen, but the enormous quantity of inferior blooms offered has kept the average on the better grades down. While some chrysanthemums are being received from California they are not the cause of a break in the market to such an extent as it was first believed, but the result of general conditions which usually prevail at this time. The last week in October and the first week in November are usually considered quiet weeks and in the majority of cases every wholesaler has found this to be true when he looked up his records. On top of this, business has been good right along and much better than any previous summer, so when the demand began to slacken many were ready to believe that conditions were unusually bad. Everyone will admit that the sales last week were small and that chrysanthemums and pompons, not mentioning the other stock, never sold at such low prices before as they did then. The real reason for the condition of the market last week is due principally to the fact that the early chrysanthemums were at least two weeks late this year and that the mid-season varieties were nearly on time, owing to the extreme warm weather in October, which caused a situation that probably never existed before or will not again for some years to come. This week a few of the many offerings in chrysanthemums are white and yellow Bonaffon, Illinois, white and pink Ivory, white and pink Chieftain, Buckbee, October Frost, Marigold, Chrysolora, Halliday, Alice Byron, white and yellow Salomon, Dr. Enguehard, Glory of Pacific, Early Snow, McNiece, Wm. Turner, Chas. Razer, Amorita, Roman Gold, Ramapo, Col. D.

Appleton, Kalb and Eaton, which will give one an idea of the unusual season. In pompons there is some fine stock being offered especially in such varieties as Golden Climax, Harry Hicks, Sabey, Pretoria, Buckingham, Fairy Queen, Emily and others. Roses have sold at low prices all last week, owing to the heavy supply of chrysanthemums offered. American Beauty roses were in good demand and sold at satisfactory prices, and so did Mrs. Chas. Russell, but the other varieties did not bring anywhere near the figures that they should considering the limited supply offered. Carnations are more plentiful but are selling as well as can be expected, owing to the general market condition, but at figures that could be much better. Violets, both home-grown, single and New York double, are reaching the market in better condition and are selling a trifle better. Lilies are more plentiful and the supply in callas is steadily increasing. Snapdragons, daisies, sweet peas, sweet allsuum, calendulas, cut cyclamen, cornflowers, strawflowers, mignonette, forget-me-nots and candytuft are to be had and the first Paper White narcissi made their appearance this week. Orchids are plentiful enough to supply the demand and the shipments consist principally of oncidiums, cattleyas, vandas and dendrobiums. Gardenias are a trifle more plentiful and are cleaning up nicely every day at satisfactory prices. Lily of the valley is about the only item that is real scarce and is bringing high prices. Fancy lily of the valley is selling for $6.00 per 100 with very little stock available at that figure. Green goods of all kinds are in large supply and the receipts of red winter berries are steadily increasing. Pussy willows are included in the shipments, but only in limited quantities. Now that election is over everyone is again paying strict attention to business and planning to make a strong bid for the fall and winter business.

NOTES.

Sidney Wiffin of Des Plaines has 20 new promising seedling pompons, particularly one resembling Klondyke, which flowers two weeks earlier, and a dahlia shaped one that is sure to be a winner. He also has a new snapdragon with a color similar to the rose Ophelia. The new pompons were on exhibition at O. A. & L. A. Tonner's store November 4, where they were greatly admired by all those who had the pleasure of inspecting them.

Peter Reinberg has named his new pompon, which is a sport of Acto and resembles the rose Ophelia in color, after the well-known Illinois politician, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis. The new pompon is a beautiful one and will be offered in 1917. Everyone who has had occasion to see it at the Reinberg establishment speaks in glowing terms of it, especially the retail florists, who were particularly impressed with its color.

John Rindfleisch, well known retail florist, of Beloit, Wis., was a visitor in the wholesale market last week.

The Armitage Floral Shop, 2065 Milwaukee avenue, has added a new Ford truck to its delivery service.

The Hoskins Floral Company, Elmhurst, has increased its capital stock from $25,000 to $50,000.

Joseph Marks, with A. Henderson & Co., is back from a successful eastern business trip.

Frank Oechslein received an importation of 98 cases of azaleas last week which came through in splendid condition and is expecting another carload this week and also one of boxwoods. The stock in his greenhouses on Quincy street is in splendid condition, especially the pot chrysanthemums, cyclamens, begonias, dracaenas and ferns. The stock in his Harlem avenue range consisting of 50,000 feet of glass devoted to cyclamen, crotons, Christmas peppers and Boston ferns, is in A1 condition. His cyclamens are later than last year, but are ready now and are selling well. He is growing Boston ferns on a larger scale than ever and has 70,000 in 2½-inch pots at this place alone. Mr. Oechslein has made a large number of improvements at his new range, which is only fifteen minutes ride in his Ford from his main establishment, and will soon have everything just the way he wants it and this is in the best condition possible. Twenty-four years ago he was looking for a job near his new place and has made a record for himself during that time which anyone might well be proud of and with practically no capital whatever to start with.

Wietor Bros.' shipments of chrysanthemums now include a fine grade of Bonnaillon, Marigold and Pink Chieftian in addition to many other seasonable varieties. This firm is offering an unusually large variety of pompons including Golden Climax, Harry Hicks, Sabey, Emily and many others too numerous to mention. N. J. Wietor speaks well of Peter Reinberg's new pompon, J. Hamilton Lewis, which will be introduced in 1917.

The George Wittbold Co. expects to move into its beautiful new retail store adjoining the Wittbold Buckingham court apartments in another week or two and will have a grand opening in the near future. The new establishment will be one of the finest equipped in this section of the country and the fixtures include a beautiful Buchbinder refrigerator.

The A. L. Randall Co. has already sold over 50,000 rooted cuttings of Anton Then's new red carnation, The-nathos, for January 1, 1917, delivery. Many customers who bought this variety earlier in the season increased their order after they had an opportunity to inspect it growing.

John Sinner is more than pleased with the condition of the roses at Sinner Bros.' greenhouses and says that everything points to banner crops for Thanksgiving and Christmas. The Ophelia and Richmond they are now supplying their trade with are perfect.

The White House Florist is finding business good after a quiet summer and is making a big showing of chrysanthemums, both cut blooms and pot plants. Mrs. Kotsonis is of the opinion that colder weather would help conditions considerably.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are handling a large quantity of pussy willows, which are in good demand for basket work and window decorations. A nice supply of callas is arriving daily at this establishment.

The next meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Morrison Hotel, Thursday evening, November 16, at 8 p. m. Officers for 1917 will be nominated at this meeting.

L. P. Harley, Hartford, Mich., dealer in natural prepared beech and oak foliage, called on the trade here last week. He is shipping some fine winter berries to this market.

M. C. Gunterberg remarks that the New York violets are of splendid quality this season. She is handling them in quantity as usual and reports a good demand for them.

A. E. Hunt & Co. are opening a new retail store at 2546 West Railroad avenue in North Evanston about four blocks from their greenhouses.

Wm. Collatz, of the A. F. Amling Co., Maywood, is the proud owner of a new seven passenger touring car.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is mailing its supplement to the 1916 Florists' Supply Catalog, which will be mailed free to anyone in the trade upon request. The supplement is full of holiday offerings with two pages devoted to made-up wreaths and two more to baskets. Otto W. Frese of the cut flower department says that this week marks the first cut of Paper White narcissus. American Beauty roses of fine quality are reaching the store in large quantities each day, but clean up quickly considering the general market conditions.

Sol Garland, of Des Plaines, is cutting from a splendid crop of Chieftain and Col. D. Appleton chrysanthemums in addition to a large and fine supply of pompons, which he is consigning exclusively to Percy Jones. Mr. Garland thinks well of the pink pompon, Buckingham, which Wietor Bros. are having such a brisk demand for and intend to grow it next season.

Zech & Mann are handling their share of chrysanthemums consisting of practically all the seasonable varieties, and report a good demand for the fancier grades. Matthias Mann and Allie Zech are representing Zech & Mann at the fall flower show and meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association now held at Bloomington.

Joe Smith, one of the employees at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, was called home last Saturday, November 4, when his mother fell off a stepladder and fractured three ribs, one of which pierced her lung. She is much better at this writing but her condition is still considered serious.

Phillip L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., says a trip has been arranged from Bloomington to Lincoln to visit the establishment of Gullett & Sons, leaving at 1 p. m., Friday, November 10. Transportation will be furnished to Lincoln and dinner served in the evening.

Bassett & Washburn are making an exhibit at the fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association this week at Bloomington, consisting of Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia and Cecile Brunner roses and Belle Washburn and Alice carnations.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are having a brisk demand for American Beauty roses which they are handling in quantity this season. Their receipts of orchids are heavy and consist principally of cattleyas, oncidiums, dendrobiums and vandas.

The firm of J. A. Budlong is now comfortably located in its enlarged quarters, which its increasing business has demanded for some time. Chrysanthemums, pompons, roses and carnations are the leaders at this establishment.

Miller & Musser have splendid storage facilities for smilax and other green goods under the sidewalk end adjoining their basement store. Much of this space will be devoted to storing red winterberries for the holiday trade.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. is erecting three more Garland greenhouses at Edgebrook, two 41x400 feet and one 28x300 feet. This firm reports the arrival of a large importation of azaleas and boxwoods.

Reinhold Schiller, manager of Schiller's down town store, reports business as improving and the outlook very promising. He always has a splendid window display and keeps his store in apple pie order.

Robert Newcomb and Samuel Seligmann, of the American Bulb Co., are both back from out-of-town with a nice lot of orders. The American Bulb Co. is handling a good supply of red winterberries.

The American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. has begun work on two new steel frame houses, 60x500 feet, for Gullett & Sons at Lincoln, to be devoted to roses. The houses will be completed by spring.

Erne & Klingel are handling their usual supply of chrysanthemums and other seasonable stock. This enterprising house could use more floor space to good advantage.

Hoerber Bros. cut chrysanthemums as early as any of the local growers and will probably cut them as late as anyone, with good crops for Thanksgiving.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., believes that the growers who have late crops of chrysanthemums will be the ones to share in the big money this year.

John Kruchten & Co. are pleasing their trade with fancy Roman Gold chrysanthemums in addition to some extra choice carnations.

P. J. Foley is attending the annual meeting and exhibition of the Chrysthemum Society of America at Philadelphia this week.

Joseph Ziska & Sons' wire department is running at top speed and will continue to do so until after the holidays at least.

Walter Fabian has accepted a position as salesman with Chris. Pederson, 58 East Randolph street.

Kyle & Foerster are showing a good supply of fancy American Beauty roses and sweet peas.

George Reinberg's shipments of roses include some of the finest stock he has offered in years.

Weiland & Risch are showing a fine supply of Wm. Turner chrysanthemums.

Visitors: Frank Farney, representing M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Chas. Bloom, Clinton, Ia.; Jack Byers, Wilmette; Chas. Falkenheim, representing Basket Novelty Co., New York; C. G. Anderson, representing Gullett & Sons, Lincoln.

Mr. Joy, of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., spent a day in this city recently. He called on a number of the local florists and visited the potato growers at Matthews, Ky., and was much pleased with the information gained. His planting of potatoes this year comprises 26 acres and at present prices the crop was very profitable.

The Jacob Schulz Co. has added to the attractiveness of its store, having installed some handsome furniture imported from Europe. Miss Alice Miller is still on her vacation. Mrs. Lang is in charge of the store during her absence.

Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, is cutting fine American Beauty, Kaiserin, Radiance and Hoosier Beauty roses. His carnation crop is being held back until the passing of the chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Abel, mother of Joseph Abel, secretary of the C. B. Thompson Co., Inc., is seriously ill.

John A. Werneckee, of New Albany, is first in the market here with sweet peas.

D. L. Swift, of New Albany, is cutting excellent roses and carnations.

By the time these lines appear in print the political battle will be won and lost. Today, however, November 4, one finds the trade making up funeral designs and discussing the political situation with such vigor that it is almost dangerous to approach them if you should chance to belong to the opposite party. Aside from all that, business is very good and the florists have just about all that they can do. Stock of all descriptions is coming in very good. Prices are perhaps not quite so good as they were two weeks ago on some things, but the chrysanthemums are getting quite plentiful, so no complaints are made on that account.

TRADE GOOD AND IS IMPROVING.

Trade continues to improve and is very satisfactory. The supply of flowers is good and the old time excellence is more and more apparent. Roses are coming on nicely, especially Ophelia, Richmond, both Killarneys, Aaron Ward and some very nice American Beauty. Carnations are good, while lily of the valley and Bermudas are of fine supply. Chrysanthemums are perfection in all colors. Most of the trade say they are even finer than ever before and something really to brag about. In some quarters there is a little complaint of the slowness of collections; more so than is usual at this time of year. It is hoped after the presidential election is over this condition will improve.

NOTES.

Geny Brothers are cutting a magnificent lot of chrysanthemums, surpassing those of any former year and finding use for all that are cut daily. This firm had the pleasure, as well as the profit, of making for John McCormack, who sang here October 26, a magnificent Harp of Erin, presented by the Knights of Columbus. They have had an unusual run of funeral work taxing their capacity, notable designs for the funerals of a city detective, and of a railroad man killed by accident.

The Joy Floral Company is up to their usual notch with not only a fine but an abundant supply of the most superb flowers. Looking over their array of splendid stock in the store a drummer from the east remarked that the Joys had the finest and best looking flowers he had seen anywhere in his travels. This firm has had a fine lot of elaborate orders, both for house and church wedding decorations and bride's and bridesmaid's bouquets, all of the best and finest flowers.

McIntyre Bros. are not behind their competitors, when it comes to good flowers and a good trade and are showing some splendid stock. Will McIntyre is showing an interesting freak of floriculture in a hybrid plant of a cross between a fancy pot pepper and a tomato. The result was a crimson berry about the size of a wild goose plum and was very decorative. One of the brothers, Dan McIntyre, is seriously ill with a malignant tumor and his family and friends are very anxious about his condition, but hope for a favorable turn in the near future.

DEMAND WEAK BUT IMPROVES.

While business was rather quiet at the beginning of the week, it became brisk toward the end. The carnation is of course the leader in popularity, ruling down all other stock. The large varieties, pompons and singles—anything that is a chrysanthemum—has such prestige over roses and carnations that the latter are quoted at greatly reduced prices. Lilies were forced to drop to eight cents, but are not cleaning because of the lack of funeral orders. Lily of the valley, sweet peas and violets also move slowly. Green goods have greatly improved both in quality and supply.

NOTES.

A. P. Reynolds and wife are out of the city purchasing supplies for the Circle Flower Store, which will be opened the first week in December. G. M. McDougall, landscape architect, will have his office on the second floor, which will be devoted entirely to outdoor novelties.

Three new seedling chrysanthemums of merit have been put on the market. They are a silver pink Touset by Wm. Hack; a burnt orange Touset by Wm. Hammett and a pink of the larger type by Chas. Randall.

Miss Terrell, of the Bertermann Bros. Co.'s office staff, has been out of the city during the past week on account of the death of her brother.

The next meeting place of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, not having been definitely decided upon, will be announced later.

During the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s convention here Claypool Hotel Florist had an elaborate decoration for the banquet.

Hartje & Elder dazzled the trade with three new varieties in pompons and singles.

C. H. Bookedis, the Claypool hotel florist, recently had his automobile stolen.

John Rieman has completed redecorating his store in white and gray.

MARKET CONDITIONS DEMORALIZED.

The situation was, if anything, worse last week than the week before; some were much concerned, others not. The demand was very light, the weather mild and the heaviest shipments in all lines, particularly roses and chrysanthemums, had to be disposed of. With the exception of high grade stock, prices ranged from very low to worse than nothing, for wagons had to be engaged eventually to haul it to the dump. Some of the dealers with long experience said business is bad, in fact the word, "rotten" was used by others, but they said, "we cannot help it; there is nearly always a week or two of an overstocked market in the fall, just before cold weather sets in—the worst is over, it will be better next week." The quality of the stock is excellent and it seems a pity that the big business men, whose province it is to produce and handle the stock, cannot increase the efficiency of the retail sales department. It should be made more flexible, more responsive. In times of overproduction, flowers sell on the street and in department stores in large quantities, because the multitude sees them; they have no need for them, but everybody likes flowers and buy because of the low price. The wholesale figures for stock to supply such sales are ruinous; they relieve the market to a certain extent, but provide little or nothing for the grower's coal bills. Five dollars a thousand for roses that should have brought $30 to $40 and $4 a hundred for $12 to $15 chrysanthemums, gives some idea of the situation. It will need a microscope to see the general average returns on the short and lower grades of the past two weeks.

CLUB MEETING.

The November meeting of the club held November 7 was very well attended. Six new members were elected and four proposed. The new committees to serve for the ensuing year were announced by President Farenwald. After adjournment the club as a body was invited by Secretary Rust on behalf of the Horticultural Society to take a peep at the show, which was accepted with pleasure.

NOTES.

Here are a few comments: Business light, market very much overstocked, cattleyas only scarce flower.—Leo Niessen. Business no better than last week; warm weather and the election too much for the market; look for activity from now on.—Al. Jones, of S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. There is little or no business; the truth hurts, but there it is; roses are far too plentiful; look out though, after the election.—Edward Reid. A very disgusting week; awfully hard to move stock.—Berger Bros. Very bad, but getting better.—Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange. Business volume O. K., but too much stock and ruinous prices.—Geo. Angele, Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. A bad week in the stores all over town; almost have to give stock away.—A. M. Campbell. Business no better than last week; situation very bad, a little better Saturday.—E. Bernheimer.

Each week shows an improvement in the quality of our Beauties. You can always depend on us to fill your order for Beauties: We have plenty of the medium grades at $12.00 and $15.00 per 100.

An unusual run on wedding accessories and large baskets for store decorations has kept the H. Bayersdorfer & Co. factory busy the past week. Freight embargoes, declared much too frequently, are great hindrances.

Charles Hartley, of Chestnut Hills, is cutting very fine snapdragons. Callas, another specialty, are just commencing to flower. A Ford car is soon to be added to the delivery service.

The cyclamen houses at the Norwood branch of the Robert Craig Co. are making a wonderful showing. Poinsettias in all sizes are also seen by the thousands.

John White and Wm. Muth paid a flying visit to the Chalfonte Carnation Co. at Chalfonte, Pa., November 2. They found the carnations in splendid condition.

An immense quantity of Liliun formosum has been moved this fall by the H. F. Michell Co. during the past month. All florists' bulbs have sold well.

The Whildin pottery is running full force. They can hardly keep up with the demand, which is especially strong for six-inch pots.

Robert Crawford, at his Seacane greenhouses, is cutting quantities of pompons, of which he has a large stock.

Visitors: Frederick W. Howard, Los Angeles, Calif.; Paul Blackman, Reading, Pa.

BIG SUPPLY AT SACRIFICE PRICES.

The transactions in the wholesale district during the past week could scarcely be called business; they partook more of the nature of sacrifice and slaughter. If a dealer, by good fortune, got a fair price for 100 roses or chrysanthemums, he was likely to let 1,000 go at the buyer's prices, and the buyers, estimable gentlemen as some of them are, along various lines, are not philanthropists and do not pretend to be. As forecasted in our notes of November 4, there is not likely to be any change for the better until the chrysanthemums get scarcer, which, according to the present rate of arrival, should be in about two weeks. As noted, a very little special stock of roses and chrysanthemums, when fresh, brings a fair price; the remainder is slaughtered. American Beauty, specials, have been running from 10 to 20 cents, wholesale.

There has been special Hadley on the market that brought 25 cents, but such stock had three-foot stems, with correspondingly good buds, which is unusual in that class of roses at this time of year. Many special roses of other varieties sold for two to four cents, which are the usual prices for Nos. 1 and 2 when business is good. In chrysanthemums, a little special stock of such varieties as Lady Hope-ton, Glenview, and a few others, sold for $4 per dozen and upwards, but for the bulk of average stock, even when fresh, it was hard to get about $2 per dozen and much of it went cheaper. As frequently stated, we do not pretend to quote left over stock, for it cannot be quoted. In attempting a clean up, each dealer is a law unto himself. There is always some demand for carnations, but in the present glutted condition of the market, nobody will pay much for them, the majority of sales being around $1 and $1.50 per 100. Lilies sell for three and four cents. In orchids and lily of the valley there is no material change in prices.

November 6.—There is no change in the condition of the cut flower market. On account of election day, when very little business is expected, the arrival of stock was somewhat lighter this morning, but there was more than enough. It is safe to say that this will be a dull week. Both election day and the day after are likely to bring poor business, and then there are two flower shows. Whatever the later benefits may be is not very clear, but one thing is certain, the week of a free flower show never fails to be a poor week in the wholesale district.

NOTES.

McHutchison & Co. have 2076 cases of azaleas in transit on the Sommeldyk, due November 7, and on the Amsteldyk, due November 13. They received 404 cases of Holland stock on the last arrival of the Noordam, November 1. The Belgium shipments (azaleas) are all late, one reason being that the steamship company will not carry Belgian stock on its regular liners, it having to come on auxiliary boats. McHutchison & Co. have 1,200 bales of raffia in transit on steamers and sailing vessels.

The Central park greenhouses have been thrown open to the public for a show of their own. There are 6,500 chrysanthemum blooms and said to be 250 varieties. All the stock was grown at the park greenhouses. The park department has also been busy, during the past week, planting bulbs.

Guttman & Raynor, Inc., are handling fine American Beauties. They also have two new seedling pompons of the anemone type, a white and a yellow, both being attractive. They came from Frank Dinda, Farmingdale, L. I.

The George W. Crawbuck Co., Inc., is now well settled in its new store, 47 West 28th street, where the facilities for doing business are greatly improved.

EVERGREEN, ALABAMA

Angelo Dentale, who for the past 14 years has been with Young & Nugent at 42 West 28th street, has resigned and gone into the wholesale business at No. 41, just across the street, having taken a part of Mrs. Rankin's House of Ferns. He is a very clever man and we wish him unbounded success.

Johnson & Millang, Inc., in the Cogan building, received a large shipment of nursery stock on the Noordam, which arrived last week, comprising rhododendrons, magnolias, lilacs, hydrangeas, and arbor vitae.

W. L. Trumpore, who was with J. H. Small & Sons for a number of years, but has for the past two years been running a retail store on Staten Island, has returned to Small's as their buyer.

Philip F. Kessler, the wholesaler of the Cut Flower Exchange, celebrated his forty-third birthday, November 5. Some men are broken at that age, but Phil is as lively as a cricket.

A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., visited this city November 3. He came to honor the memory of his close friend, the late Pastor Russell.

Costos Sakelos, the Colonial Florist, has opened another store, his fifth, at Third avenue and 149th street.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

ERFURT, GERMANY.—Mrs. F. C. Heinemann died here September 17, at the age of 89.

SANFORD, FLA.—The Allen Seed Co. has moved its establishment from Trilby, Fla., to this city.

CHAS. M. JACKMAN, foreign representative of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, is expected home soon.

MARYSVILLE, O.—Scott & Son's Co. has erected a three-story warehouse to be devoted to field seeds exclusively.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—L. L. May and wife, of St. Paul, Minn., spent the week here and will visit Chicago before they return.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, November 8, were as follows: Timothy, $3.75 to $5.50 per 100 pounds.

NEBRASKA growers are making a high percentage of delivery on their sweet corn, notwithstanding the scarcity in other parts.

H. A. BARNARD, representing Stuart Low & Co., Enfield, Middlesex, Eng., was the guest of the Horticultural Club of Boston at its October meeting.

BOTH field and sweet corn prices are unsettled and holders' views are much at variance. Figures are named between $3 and $10 per bushel for sweet corns.

SACRAMENTO, CALIF.—The partnership existing between Harry Benson and Felice Lagomarsino, trading as the Benson-Lagomarsino Seed Co., has been dissolved.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—The Empire Seed Co. has been incorporated by Chas. Vernon, Chas. D. Filkins and Harry E. Stevens, with a capital stock of $5,000.

ONION SETS in storage in the Chicago district are suffering from the unusually high November temperature, the thermometer last Sunday registering over 70 degrees.

COUNT D'ESTIENNE, of Vilmorin, Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, writing September 16, 1916, says: "My six brothers-in-law, now with the colors, are quite well so far. Two of them have been awarded the Legion of Honor.

WESTERN bulbs sales are steadily reducing stocks in a satisfactory way. At New York conditions still reflect wholesale dumping of imported stocks, Spanish iris, Colvillei gladiolus, spirea and lily of the valley are past due and anxiously awaited.

EASY MARKS.—Dutch bulb drummers say that in no country on the globe are orders taken so easily as in America. Buyers will place large orders in advance at good prices for the coming season's business without any practical knowledge of either the coming season's crop or market.

Canned Goods Advance.

At a meeting of the Ohio State Canning Association, held at Columbus, October 31, increases of from 20 to 40 cents a dozen on canned goods for 1917 were predicted by officials. The meeting was called to discuss acute conditions in the canning industry caused by the unprecedented rise in prices of materials.

Burpee-Lee Wedding.

The wedding of W. Atlee Burpee, Jr., and Miss Jeanette D. Lee, Wednesday, November 1, at St. James' church was a brilliant affair. The church was handsomely decorated with palms, chrysanthemums and other flowers. The bride carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley and orchids. The matron of honor's bouquet was of American Beauty roses. David Burpee, the groom's brother, was best man. The wedding breakfast was held at the St. James hotel, where, after an extended tour, the newly married couple will reside for the winter.

Seeds for the Argentine.

Seedsmen wishing to send seeds to the Argentine Republic should conform to certain requirements, which as stated by the consul general of the Argentine Republic at New York City are, that the seed grower must make an affidavit before a notary public, the notary public attaching his jurat and official seal, stating that the seeds are free from diseases. A similar affidavit should be obtained from the county clerk and both certificates or affidavits sent to the consul general of the Argentine Republic at New York for certification, the fee for which is $2. CURTIS NYE SMITH.

Albert Dickinson.

Great men are modest. Albert Dickinson was one of the greatest in the seed world. He mustered out several years ago. Intense was his middle name. He was a slave to work. He secured very profitable results. Now he devotes himself to pleasure. He enjoys Orange City, Fla., about eight months in the year. Summers he travels. He has large investments in Chicago. Tenpins has been his favorite recreation. It takes an average of 225 to beat him. When in active business he would bowl evenings. He was shy about the ladies until a few years ago, when he embraced a life partner. Both are happy, enjoy good health and the Florida climate. He says it is a great place for elderly people to renew their youth. We will visit there as soon as we arrive at the age of discretion. He has furnished cottages to rent. War talk reminds him of his youth. He was in the Civil war from early 1861 to July, 1864. He was a mere lad but a great gunner. His execution was exceptional. So it was in the seed business. The firm goes on forever. It was a family affair. Charles Dickinson is now the director general, and another great one like his brother Albert. He has scores of expert assistants. Seed men who visited the convention there were amazed at the wonderful and gigantic institution. It is the greatest in the world. There are others, but of a smaller capacity. —C. A. King & Co.'s Toledo Bulletin, July 22, 1916.

Weeds.

Under the title of "Weeds and How to Control Them," the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., has just issued Farmers' Bulletin No. 660, containing 29 pages freely illustrated with directions for the control of the more troublesome weeds and a table of the 50 worst kinds, showing the common and botanical names, duration; color, size and arrangements of flowers; sections where injurious, seed distribution, propagation, place of growth, products injured, etc.

New York, Nov. 7.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.50 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per package, 25 cents to $1.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.25.

Beans Under Glass.

For a number of years we have been experimenting with various crops to take the place of lettuce under glass in the early fall months. We have tried the better varieties of green-podded bush beans with good results, but this season we decided to enlarge this work and use a pole variety. We selected the well-known Kentucky Wonder corn bean, mainly because it is well liked on our market in the summer months; besides it is a good producer and when picked right, is of fine quality. The seeds were sown directly into the greenhouse beds, spaced 24x24 inches. Only two plants were retained in each hill and the plants were trained to binder twine run up to over-head wires. The beans made tremendous growth and had to be headed in a number of times to keep in bounds or they would have climbed out of the ventilators. We have never seen Kentucky Wonder grow so luxuriantly before—in fact, this variety always is rather stunted outdoors in our locality. We remember that an old grower once made the remark that this class of beans resents all air currents—high winds being disastrous. This would account for our fine growth indoors.

During the hot weather we showered them once or twice a day with Skinner nozzles to expand the foliage, but since the cooler weather set in we have withheld water. The plants have now a heavy crop of beans, and the nicest beans we ever saw. As regards market, we have offers at $4.00 per bushel, which will likely prove a paying proposition. The culture has been of the easiest—the one point we were particular about was the right temperature, 60°, never less. These beans were planted August 20, first picking October 26, or about eight weeks to maturity. The plants promise a large yield, as they are full of small beans and thousands of blossoms. They seem to set fruit readily, without assistance, and also during dark weather. We believe this can be worked out a paying greenhouse crop.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS CROWD MARKET.

Chrysanthemums now occupy the stage, also the dressing rooms, foyer and basement—and likely the alley before long. Warm weather has hurried stock along so that the chrysanthemums seem to have deserted their time-honored schedule and broken in to a wild scramble for the finish, and it appears that the florist's main job is to try and guide them safely, and if possible, profitably, into the hands of the ultimate consumer—which is some task of itself. The quality is generally good and the demand fair, but under the conditions it will have to improve, or loss will follow. Business for October was good, and slightly better than for October, 1915. Hal-lowe'en made but little extra demand for florists' goods.

NOTES.

The store of W. H. Culp & Co. is making a splendid display of chrysanthemums, both cut flowers and plants, and with their window displays it is one of the show places of the town. Last week one of the windows was filled with vases of chrysanthemums, one sort to a vase or basket. Each sort was labeled with a neatly lettered card giving the name of the variety. About 18 or 20 varieties were shown and it attracted much attention.

Fancy pottery ware occupies a prominent place in the Wichita florist shops, and there seems to be no doubt that the newer forms of flower bowls and holders will help to increase the use of flowers.

Chas. P. Mueller has added additional office and stock storage room, by taking the second floor above his store at 145 North Main street.

Visitors: J. L. Vaughan, of Winfield, Kan.; Theo. Kaptein, of Holland.

Los Angeles.

GOOD STOCK BUT DEMAND WEAKENS.

The market is more quiet than a week ago. There were several weddings, but not so much demand in funeral lines. Chrysanthemums are now in their glory—for size, form and fullness, they are unusually fine just now. Violets are becoming cheaper and some good cyclamens are appearing. Roses continue to improve. This city, not to be outdone by her ambitious suburb, Pasadena, has a flower shower on for this week in combination with a house-beautiful exhibition. The displays in the flower show consist not only of cut flowers, but plant collections from the finest estates of the southland, which are in charge of a committee consisting of W. W. Felgate, Frank Shearer, James McGillivray, Wm. T. Shields, Alex. Urquhart, Wm. Hertrich, A. A. Hunt and James Taylor, all prominent gardeners and horticulturists.

NOTES.

H. R. Richards, who was formerly with the Germain Seed & Plant Co., has gone into the wholesale flower business, having taken an interest in the S. Murata Co.

S. Marcond now has his store at 208 West Third street fitted up as per a former announcement, and seems to be selling a nice line of cut flowers.

Seki Bros. & Co. are shipping many chrysanthemums these days. They have had some good wedding orders.

Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Golden-sen have a nice lot of cyclamens, also Chinese lilies.

Providence, R. I.

Business during the past week has been satisfactory, the supply being plentiful and of good quality and from the retailers' standpoint prices were about right. Snapdragons in pink and white are arriving and good pompons are seen and meet with ready sale. Roses have taken a back seat temporarily, but carnations are abundant in quantity and good in quality and are to be had at low figures. This flower shows steady improvement. Violets are somewhat poor, being affected by the warm weather. There is a good assortment of orchids, cattleyas being especially abundant. In flowering plants, chrysanthemums take the lead, and a fine line of foliage plants are also offered.

NOTES.

Greenhouse owners in this vicinity are facing a serious problem in regard to the coal supply. A number who made contracts in the spring claim they cannot get delivery and the coal dealers will not state when delivery will be made. Coal in this city is now selling at $12 per ton, an advance of $3 to $5 a ton over the corresponding period of 1915.

Chestnut Blight.

As the result of experiments in the state forest at Portland, the Connecticut agricultural experiment station at New Haven has determined that the cutting and removal from woodlots of trees infected with chestnut blight does not prevent the spread of that disease; also, that the cost of inspection, cutting and removal is too high in comparison with the results obtained to warrant its adoption from a commercial standpoint. The experiments which have extended over several years, show that the number of infected trees have increased year by year, and very rapidly in 1913 and 1914. Certain areas in the forests, amounting to about 130 acres, were selected and on them were counted, marked and removed all infected chestnuts each winter. In other check areas adjoining, the infected trees were marked but not removed. By this means the progress of the disease in successive years was determined, the comparison showing the number of infected trees in each plot the last year of the experiments to be about equal.

Epigaea Repens.

Please advise as to the best garden location for trailing arbutus (Epigaea repens) and the best way to handle it under garden conditions. C.

The trailing arbutus (Epigaea repens), although a common native plant in cool woods throughout the north and northeastern states, usually does not do well when attempts are made to take it from its natural conditions and place it under garden conditions. Unlike most ericaceous plants, it grows in areas where lime is present in the soil, for the writer has seen it thriving over large areas of limestone regions. It is also common in regions where there is no lime in the soil. Usually it is found at its best in sandy loam, on a gravelly, well-drained subsoil, under partial shade, with its roots penetrating a cover of leaf soil or humus. The only thing to do is to try and imitate these conditions. In removing it from its native haunts, dense tufts of low growing, and apparently your plants should be selected. These should be lifted intact and to such a depth that the roots are not in the least disturbed and placed in conditions in the home grounds or garden, exactly similar to those from which they were taken. To place the plants in ordinary herbaceous borders and cultivate them in the same way as columbines, campanulas, irises, etc., certainly means failure. If there is not a cool "woody" corner on the grounds, select some sloping corner as near as possible to these conditions, well drained, cool and partially shaded; place the tufts in holes that equally fit them and leave them undisturbed. Of course they must not be choked out with grass or coarse weeds. If these appear they should be hand-weeded.

In dry weather water the plants occasionally. In winter give a little mulching of leaves. D.

The Chinese Viburnums.

As compared with most of the American and some of the Japanese species the new viburnums from western China are of small value as flowering plants, but at least two of them, V. theiferum and V. hupehense, deserve a place in the garden for their handsome fruits. That of V. theiferum is found in broad, long-stalked, drooping clusters and is oval and about half an inch long. Early in October this fruit is light orange color and very lustrous, but later becomes scarlet. This viburnum has grown rapidly in the arboretum, where it forms a broad shrub with rather spreading stems. The leaves are thick, long and narrow, dark dull green, conspicuously veined, and hang on long stalks; the flowers are small, and in small, compact clusters. The leaves are used by the Chinese in the mountain regions of the west as a substitute for those of the tea plant. As it grows here it proves to be the best of the numerous viburnums introduced by Wilson. Viburnum hupehense is a vigorous shrub with erect stems, smaller and thinner leaves than those of V. theiferum, and globose scarlet fruits about one-third of an inch in diameter, in broad lax, many-fruited clusters. Of no particular beauty when in flower, just now this plant is one of the most attractive of the red-fruited viburnums in the collection. These two plants can be seen in the general viburnum collection on the right-hand side of the Bussey Hill road and to better advantage in the collection of Chinese shrubs on the southern slope of Bussey Hill.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL; DEMAND WEAK.

Trade, taken as a whole, is quiet, with a tendency toward a glut in the principal staple flowers. There is a great consumption of chrysanthemums, but weather conditions are such that they are maturing too fast. The crop has reached its prime earlier than is desired, and florists fear that there will be a Thanksgiving shortage. Displays are large and beautiful. Prices range from $1.50 to $6 a dozen. The foregoing is also true of pompons, which are in unusual favor, selling at 75 cents a dozen. Several new varieties add to their prominence. Roses are too plentiful for the demand and growers are cutting them back in the hope of better prices at holiday time. Carnations are coming in freely, but many are short-stemmed. The demand is rather light at 75 cents a dozen. Lily of the valley is scarce and high, being about double the price of a year ago, and florists foresee a famine. There are plenty of violets and they are good stock. For the past few weeks funeral work has been more quiet than for many months. Florists claim that the decline of theatre-going in favor of the moving picture shows is making itself felt this season in their business in a greater degree than at any time heretofore. Azalea stocks are beginning to arrive, apparently in ample quantities, relieving the minds of dealers, who were fearful that their orders would not be filled. Dutch bulbs are slow in coming in, with the probability that the supply will be very short.

NOTES.

November 4 was a red-letter day with local florists because of the football game here between Ohio and Wisconsin state universities, which drew out a crowd of 12,000 people. Chrysanthemums and pompon sales were heavy for the event.

Mrs. A. J. Allwood is putting in a new range, consisting of two houses, on the River road, opposite Ohio State University, for growing vegetables. Heretofore she has been engaged in out-door gardening. C. J.

Rochester, N. Y.

FALL TRADE VOLUME INCREASES.

Excellent business has characterized the past week, showing a marked degree of improvement in the fall demand. Chrysanthemums rule the market, the offerings being of prime quality and carnations are also splendid, especially White Wonder, Delight, Enchantress Supreme and Perfection. Beacon and the red varieties are poor. In roses, the new red, Montrose, is very popular on account of its color. Ophelia, Sunburst, the Killarneys and Maryland are also very fine. Cornflowers, snapdragons, and pompons are also included in the good sellers. In flowering plants primroses, begonias, cyclamens, pompons and chrysanthemums are features.

NOTES.

The annual chrysanthemum show is now at its height at Lamberton conservatory in Highland park and is fully equal to the displays of former years. Many new pompon varieties are being shown and are attracting more than usual attention.

D. M. White, grower for H. E. Wilson, is producing some excellent Touse and Chrysolora chrysanthemums. Among his pompons, Fairy Queen is noteworthy. Carnations and roses are also well grown.

F. Schlegel's Sons report excellent business. Plants and bulbs for fall planting are selling well. Boston ferns, palms and primroses are moving in quantity.

E. R. Fry is cutting excellent chrysanthemums. His hospital trade, which is a large factor in his business, has shown a substantial increase.

C. W. Curtis has recovered from an attack of blood poisoning from which he has been suffering for several weeks.

The Chrysanthemum.

Now doth the grand chrysanthemum put common blossoms on the bum, and in a rainbow riot swat all other bloomers on the spot! It rears its towslid head above the whole darn blooming push and shove, and as the others fade away it slams its glorified display into the dazzled eyes of men as though the spring were born again. The ruler of the autumn world its spangled banner is unfurled, and in its scrambled colors gleams the blaze of iridescent dreams, a blaze of brilliance all its own that lights its pathway to the throne. The prismatic splendor of the sun is gathered by this biggest one of all the autumn bunch and hurled in chronic crashes at the world, which stops amazed, entranced, upset, and wonders why it doesn't get a comb and brush from anywhere, or have a barber trim its hair!

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY OF AMERICA.

Fifteenth Annual Meeting and Exhibition in Conjunction With the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 8, 1916.

The Exhibition.

The fifteenth annual meeting and exhibition of the society was held in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., November 8-10, in conjunction with the fall show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society. As announced in last week's issue, the quality of the flowers which were being staged as the paper went to press, was quite ahead of anything ever seen in this city, and in many varieties, distinctly better than most of the chrysanthemums. Experts have since declared they were the best ever placed in competition. The following varieties were conspicuous in the various collections: Mendon, M. F. Plant, Mrs. G. Drabble, Wm. Turner, Nerissa, Odessa, Wm. Rigby, Golden Champion, W. H. Work, Louisa Pockett, Lady Hopeton and H. F. Johns. There were also some exceptionally large (they might be called giant) flowers of the anemone type—a new break in this popular flower. These were very striking in appearance; the close, densely packed center, was in most cases very wide and full with a fringe of long petals varying in size and density. There were various colors from white, pink, yellow, shades of lavender to dark red. The flowers were from four to six inches in circumference. They are the results of selection and crossing for the past 15 years by Carl D. Shaefer, of Tuxedo Park, N. J., an enthusiastic gardener now in his eighty-third year. They were staged by Charles H. Totty, who will handle the stock.

A vase of sprays of various colored anemone flowered chrysanthemums, staged by Guttman & Raynor, Inc., New York, showed wonderful culture. A bronze in this collection is indeed a gem, as is also a pure white. Two large vases of pompons, selected varieties, were the best ever seen here in their class.

Few seedlings of merit materialized, Chas. W. Totty, Madison, N. J., entered Wm. H. Waite, a very large reflex bronze; a wonderfully fine flower, having good form and a fiery color, full of life. E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., staged a medium-sized flower, very perfect in form, with great depth; it is much like Bonnaffon in size, shape and color, but with a stronger stem, well clothed with foliage. Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., offered a finely finished white, a full round flower which looks like a good commercial sort.

A. N. Pierson Co. staged what Mark Mills calls the best bronze to date in Hilda Davis, a reflex flower, reddish bronze in color—very attractive. It is medium in size and has all the earmarks of a good sort for cutting. Hilda Canning, a reddish bronze, and Romaine Warren, light bronze, are two new and very good pompons, by the same exhibitor, who had in addition about 50 vases of chrysanthemums of the hardy class, all choice varieties in this section.

C. H. Totty presented an extensive collection of all that is best in new and old varieties of the hardy class, among them many single and semi-double daisy-like flowers that were very attractive. One of the oldest sorts was the bronzy, Source d'Or, still in the front rank. 'Spidery' flowers (real Japanese), were features.

While the large flowers were exceptionally fine, the Wm. Turner of Wm. Duckham, Madison, N. J., and the vases of six, and 25 blooms, exhibited by Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa., were just a grade higher than other exhibits and well merited the first prizes awarded. Wm. Kleinheinz, in his exhibits of the day before for the best four vases of five flowers each, not only won first prize, but was in addition awarded a silver medal, the judges stating that they were the best chrysanthemums ever exhibited before the society.

An interesting feature on Thursday was the naming, by his honor, Mayor Thos. B. Smith, of a yellow seedling in honor of his daughter. He was met at the entrance of the hall by Secretary Rust, W. F. Therkildson, and others of a reception committee and escorted through the show to the upper hall, where, in the presence of several reporters, camera men and visitors, the christening took place. Standing by a large vase of the flowers with one in his hand, he said: "I name you Miss Elizabeth Smith," which is the name of his six-year-old daughter. Cameras then snapped and the reporters got busy for a "human interest" advertising story for the next day's papers, after which the flowers in the vase were packed up and sent to the little lady for whom they were named.

Among out-of-town visitors were noted: Charles H. Totty and Wm. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Allen Pierce, Boston, Mass.; Louis Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; H. LaCava and Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; W. A. Manda, East Orange, N. J.; Wm. Vert, Castle Gould, Fort Washington, L. I.; Admiral Aaron Ward, New York; Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y.; Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J.; H. N. May, Summit, N. J.; E. A. Bause, Frank Friedley, Frank Ritzenhaller, S. M. Pentecost, F. C. W. Brown and Fred Altkneck, Cleveland, O.; Conrad Hess, Baltimore, Md.; Phil. Foley, Chicago; F. S. Shearer, Reading, Pa.; A. J. Guttman, New York; Eugene Dailledouze, A. Dailledouze, Flatbush, N. Y.; E. D. Smith, Adrian, Mich.; Geo. W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa.

The Business Meeting.

The business meeting was held in the florists' club room in Horticultural hall, President William Kleinheinz in the chair. In the absence of Secretary Chas. W. Johnson, Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., was elected secretary pro tem. President Kleinheinz read his annual address, which was full of good wishes and plans for the welfare of the society, and which was well received. The report of the secretary and the treasurer followed, the latter showing an increase in membership and that the society was going along well within its means, having a gain in its treasury. Roman J. Irwin and W. A. Manda were appointed a committee to check up the treasurer's accounts and found everything in good order.

Invitations for the next place of meeting were next in order. Representatives of the city of Cleveland were much in evidence. They had left no stone unturned to capture the society for their city next year. There were letters from the Cleveland Horticultural Society, the Garden club, Florists' Club, Chamber of Commerce, and from his Honor, Mayor H. L. Davis; also from the Dale estate, Brampton, Ont.; J. C. Vaughan, Chicago; F. H. Traendly, New York; Grand Rapids Florist club; J. F. Hammond, and Cleveland also sent five members of its Florists' club to plead orally for this favor. After this great endeavor there was but one thing to do and Cleveland was unanimously selected.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Wm. W. Vert, Castle Gould, Port Washington, N. Y., president; E. A. Bause, Cleveland, O., vice-president; John N. May, Summit, N. J., treasurer; Chas. W. Johnson, Chicago, secretary. C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; Thomas Proctor, Lenox, Mass. and H. W. Rieman, Indianapolis, Ind., were appointed members of the executive committee.

President Kleinheinz's Address.

Gentlemen and Fellow Members of the Chrysanthemum Society of America:

Once more we are assembled to honor the "Queen of the Autumn," and to consider ways and means to increase the general interest in cultivation, and to improve the high standard of the chrysanthemum. As your president, it gives me pleasure to welcome you at this convention in the city of Philadelphia, and I hope that you will not regret that you have selected Philadelphia for this gathering.

The exhibits at this meeting speak for themselves. The large-flowering varieties seem to be at their best, and the raisers of new varieties have to be wide awake to keep in line with the present sorts. It seems almost impossible to improve on the existing varieties, but our hybridizers are never idle, and keep on improving with astonishing results. Not only the large flowering types have the attention of our scientific breeders, but the pompons, singles and decoratives have also been taken care of. Great improvements have been made during the past 10 years.

Again I must make some remarks about the membership of this society. I have referred to this at the past two meetings, and have pointed out what good the Chrysanthemum Society of

Wm. W. Vert, President-Elect.

America does for the chrysanthemum growers, but the number of new members is mighty small. I again call on every one interested in chrysanthemums to give us their support, and join our society. The dues per year are only two dollars, and the members are well rewarded by the work this society does. I hope my successor as president of this society will have the pleasure to see the membership pass the 500 mark.

Since our last meeting, one of our most successful hybridizers and introducers of new chrysanthemums has passed away, William Wells, of Merstham, Surrey, England. His products are known over the whole world, and for many of our best varieties we have to thank him.

To the trade press I wish to express my thanks for the many courtesies extended to the officers of the society during the past year. I also feel it my duty to thank all the donors of the handsome prizes, enabling us to work out such a fine schedule for competition.

To the various committees who examine seedlings and sports, I must express the thanks of the society for their prompt and correct work.

To the officers and members, I extend my thanks and appreciation for their support during my three terms as your president. Our society must prosper while our members continue to support and back up our officers. I regret very much that I am not in a position today to announce a great financial prosperity during my terms, but I assure you that if it would be within my power, this society would be the strongest of all in membership and financial standing.

I close with best wishes to my successor. May he be able to accomplish and finish the work started and carried on by the officers in the past for the good of this society.

Secretary Johnson's Report.

Mr. President and Members of the Chrysanthemum Society of America:

Our society continues to make progress and although we do not get the increased membership we should, the work of the society along the lines of improving the standard and popularizing the chrysanthemum is being recognized more each year. Your secretary notes this particularly by the increased correspondence that comes to him throughout the year in comparison to the first years of his work. The interest in the new varieties continues and the work of the examining committees is being greatly appreciated, and a seedling that has the endorsement of the committees is recognized by the commercial growers as being worthy of a thorough trial. The reports of the examining committees were sent to the trade papers each week as they were received and a final summary of the season's work was published. The trade press very generously printed these and other notices sent to them from time to time for which we owe to them our vote of thanks.

A ticket for admission to the National Flower Show held in Philadelphia, April, 1916, was mailed to all members in good standing on the secretary's books.

You will notice a change in the class for the C. S. A. silver cup. Our president kindly offers a silver cup for a class similar to the C. S. A. class of other years, thus making the change necessary. Class B is arranged according to the suggestions of the committee appointed at the last annual meeting.

Your secretary appreciates the kindness of the following firms and individuals for offering the special prizes at this exhibition: Wm. K. Harris, Philadelphia; Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia; Hosea Waterer, Philadelphia; Robert Craig, Philadelphia; Henry F. Michell, Philadelphia; Hitchings & Co., New York; Lord & Burnham Co., New York; Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.; The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.; President Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; Philip J. Foley, Chicago, Ill.; Wells & Co., Merstham, Surrey, England; H. E. Converse, Esq., Marion, Mass.; The National Association of Gardeners.

Owing to the intense heat during the past summer the growing season this year was a hard one on the plants and C. H. Totty reports that the growers in the eastern states are having a great deal of trouble with a disease which seriously affects the growth of the plants. It would be a good thing if any member having this or any other trouble with his plants would give us the benefit of his experience so that it may be included in the annual report.

The routine work of the secretary's office consisting of sending out the statements to the members, recording the varieties disseminated, getting out the report of the fourteenth annual meeting and the solicitation of the special premiums was attended to in due season.

The secretary wishes to acknowledge the kindness of Elmer D. Smith in furnishing him with a complete list of varieties disseminated in 1915, which was a great help in getting up the annual report.

A detailed report of all money received and paid over to the treasurer accompanies this.

Chas. W. Johnson, Secretary.

Wm. Kleinheinz, President.

John N. May, Treasurer.

Treasurer May's Report.

Treasurer John N. May presented his report, which showed the finances of the society to be in good condition. Two hundred dollars are placed on interest in the Summit Trust Co., as a saving account, dues received during the past year totaled $268 and the cash balance on hand November 1, 1916, amounted to $198.06. The disbursements during the year were $242.02.

Chrysanthemum Diseases Discussed.

Charles H. Totty gave a very interesting description of clyndrosporium, a fungoid growth, which, commencing at the bottom of the chrysanthemum plant, quickly rises upward, covering the under surface of all the leaves with a varnish-like coating that closes up the pores, and stops all growth. Flower buds do not open and the general result is disastrous. The remedy is sulphate of potassium, one-half ounce to a gallon of water, sprayed on from underneath. Air slaked lime, blown on in the same way, is also good. Mr. Totty spoke of the great benefit in publicity and urged that a much greater number of growers attend these meetings and discuss all such matters for their mutual benefit. Elmer D. Smith said he had had great trouble with the gall fly, which was hatched out in or on the leaf of the plant in small, gall-like eruptions, where the minute grub or worm developed into an insect and then flew away. Cyanide for 21 consecutive nights he had found to be necessary to kill and fully eradicate them. He had also suffered from the tarnished bug, which, coming from the outside, had done great damage to the growing buds. The leaf roller was another pest, of which F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland, had made a study. He said its life cycle was 21 days; it came out of its cell to forage, was attracted by the honey in the buds of plants, which led it to destroy them. The female laid its eggs very near home, seldom more than two or three feet, and when done, flew around for a day or so and died. The male is very quick and constantly flying. The remedy is an application of a solution of an even teaspoonful of paris green, cut or saturated with about the same quantity of nicotine. It must be dissolved in this way, as it is not soluble in water, to two gallons of which is added two pounds of brown sugar, stirred in thoroughly. The solution is sprayed on as frequently as is necessary. Mr. Brown found this very effective, the worms taking kindly to the preparation because of the sugar. Be careful to use the brown, very sweet sugar.

E. A. Bause, Wickliffe, O.

The question of premiums and honors for the private gardener and his employer came up. President Kleinheinz said the custom of the east was that the honor go to the owner of the estate, but the prize money is paid direct to the gardener. This was also Mr. Totty's opinion, for if it was sent to the employer, it at times did not reach the man who had grown the stock and to whom it had come to be looked upon as a proper emolument.

No action was taken, nor any reference made to the general excellence of the exhibits, which should have been a good topic. In closing, Mr. Kleinheinz thanked the members for their support during his three terms of office, and in congratulating Mr. Vert on his election, said he was glad to leave the society in such good hands, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Awards.

There was very keen competition in the various entries of cut flowers, the judges having to go over the exhibits again and again before their final decision. Countess Eulalia won six firsts and two seconds; the Widener estate, three firsts and two seconds; Jno. W. Pepper, three firsts and two seconds; W. S. Ellis, four seconds and one first; C. B. Newbold, two seconds; H. A. Poth, two firsts; John Wanamaker, two seconds; Jos. M. Steele, two seconds; Mrs. Jas. F. Sinnott, one first and two seconds; Mrs. S. T. Bodine, two seconds; Elmer D. Smith & Co., one first; Mrs. R. E. Griscom, one first; Mrs. S. D. Riddle, one first; Mrs. C. H. Clarke, Jr., one second.

Winners in the plant section were: H. A. Poth, three firsts and one second; Widener estate, three firsts; W. S. Ellis, three firsts and one second; Mrs. Jas. F. Sinnott, two firsts and one second; Countess Eulalia, two firsts; Geo. H. McFadden, one first and one second; C. B. Newbold, two firsts and two seconds; Jos. M. Steele, one second; Mrs. Jos. Goetter, one second; Mrs. Thos. McKean, one second.

The gold and silver medals of the society and honorable mention, where, in the opinion of the judges the various exhibits deserved such recognition, were awarded as follows: Silver medal to H. A. Dreer, Inc., for exhibit of crotons, palms and other foliage plants; Macaw Brothers, silver medal for group of crotons and gardenias; Adolph Muller, trimmed box and berried plants, silver medal; Louis Burke, collection of orchids, gold medal; P. A. B. Widener estate, (Wm. Kleinheinz, gardener), orchid grotto, gold medal; Louis Burke, plant Vanda Sanderiana, silver medal; Wm. Kleinheinz, winter-flowering tuberous begonias, silver medal; Edward Towill, seedling roses, honorable mention; A. N. Pierson, Inc., collection pompon and single chrysanthemums, honorable mention; Charles H. Totty, collection of pompon, single and other hardy chrysanthemums, honorable mention; also special mention for new giant anemone flowered chrysanthemums; Cottage Gardens Co., special mention for new pink carnation, Cottage Maid; A. N. Pierson, Inc., special mention for rose, Mme. Collette Martinet and new crimson carnation, Arrawa; S. J. Goddard, crimson carnation, Doris.

Special Prizes.

broad band of crotons in four- and six-inch pots, splendidly colored.

The Robert Craig Co. staged two tables of special crotons in medium sizes, which were brilliant in coloring and strong and vigorous to a degree.

The fish exhibits in their brilliantly lighted, beautifully arranged and decorated aquariums, containing all kinds of suitable aquatic plants, and stocked with the pick of the fish fancier's favorites, were at all times surrounded by admiring visitors.

The cut flower and carnation exhibits staged Wednesday were not very numerous, Wm. Kleinheinz being the only exhibitor. His 25 American Beauty roses and vase of the same number of Mrs. C. W. Ward carnations, were up to his usual fine standard, as indeed they must be to get the prize of $25 in each class. A splendid vase of 100 Cottage Maid, by the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., received honorable mention, as did Arrawana, a new crimson, staged by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., exhibited a good crimson called, Doris.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., staged several fine seedling roses. The best is a cross between Lady Hillingdon and Harry Kirk. It has a fine, strong stem, is bronzy yellow, and a good large flower. A single velvety red was very striking, and a pink like Mrs. Shawyer also looked good.

One of the judges, in speaking of their work, declared that exhibitors made a mistake by supporting their cut flowers by wires along the stem. If this was necessary for transportation they should be removed before staging, as it appeared to the judges a weak point and counted against otherwise good flowers.

The attendance was much greater, both day and evening, than for some years, due to the advertising, which was in the hands of W. F. Therkildson and John A. Geraghty. Much was heard of the large plant, which could not be gotten there on account of its great size, but there was so much else that people did not make any protests.

The trade exhibitors appear to be well satisfied, the large attendance keeping them busy.

Thursday brought out the display of vegetables, which encroached on the space, but made an acceptable change. The quality was of the best and many Show Notes.

Among the second day's exhibits of the show was a well arranged, circular bed of gardenias in pots; these showed by the deep, lustrous, green foliage and the well budded branches, to be in a high state of cultivation. Macaw Brothers, of Norwood, made this display. They were surrounded by a Illinois State Florists' Association.

The first fall exhibition of the Illinois State Florists' Association, held at the Coliseum, Bloomington, Thursday and Friday, November 9-10, under the active management of Treasurer Washburn, of that city, with the assistance of President Johnson and Secretary Ammann, was a noteworthy success. This show presented a number of unusual features in that no premiums were offered in the professional or commercial classes and there was no charge for space occupied by trade displays. There was a very creditable exhibit of plants grown by school children, the stock for which had been supplied by the local trade early in the year, and in these children's classes the only premiums of the exhibition were awarded. The general public was admitted by ticket obtained free through the local trade, otherwise a charge of 10 cents was made for each ticket. The trade contributed freely of its best stock for the occasion, the principal exhibitors including the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Bassett & Washburn, A. L. Randall Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, the E. C. Amling Co., Zech & Mann, A. T. Pyfer & Co., and the Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, all of Chicago; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich.; J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet; Robt. Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington; Gullett & Sons, Lincoln; Chas. Loveridge, Peoria; J. F. Ammann & Co., Edwardsville; I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg, and Geo. A. Kuhl, Pekin. Among the new carnations were the striking red Thenanthos, of the A. L.

Randall Co., J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s grand new pink Superb, Bassett & Washburn's popular Belle Washburn, C. H. Frey's Nebraska, Frank B. Smith's Sons' Danville, No. 208, crimson; Arvid Anderson, gardener to C. D. Wiman, Moline, No. 100, white. In roses the E. G. Hill Co. exhibited Red Ophelia and other novelties, and J. E. Yeats, Champaign, the new red variety Mrs. Sarah Yeats. Elmer D. Smith & Co., Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and the floricultural department of the University of Illinois exhibited chrysanthemums. Fritz Bahr, Highland Park, showed a fine vase of Bouvardia Humboldtii on long stems.

On Thursday evening there was a delightful fellowship dinner at the Bloomington club, the tables being attractively decorated for the occasion. About 75 participated and the invocation was made by the Rev. J. N. Elliott. When the coffee had been served and cigars passed around President Johnson called on J. H. Hudson, secretary of the Bloomington Business Men's Association, who welcomed the visitors. Ernst Wienhoeber, of Chicago, spoke for the "Retail Florist," stating that his business of some 40 years' standing had been based mainly on fair dealing with his customers and those who supplied him with stock, emphasizing the importance of giving the customer what he wants and pays for and that it is the florist's plain duty to advise customers of all shortcomings in stock and service. J. C. Vaughan then spoke on "The Future of the Florist Business" and we hope to find place for his address in this or a later issue. In the absence of Prof. Dörner, Prof. A. G. Hecht told "What the University of Illinois Offers to a Young Man Wanting to Enter the Florist Business." Excellent vocal and instrumental music was rendered during the evening by Miss Ruth G. Vencill, Miss Ruby Evans and Veran Florent with splendid dancing by Miss Graves, daughter of Arthur J. Graves, and other young ladies.

On Friday the visitors greatly enjoyed an auto drive through Bloomington and Normal after which the well equipped greenhouse establishment of A. Washburn & Sons was inspected and luncheon served at the residence of Frank L. Washburn. In the afternoon a large party visited the new range of Gullett & Sons, at Lincoln, and were greatly interested in the scope and appointments of this up-to-date establishment.

OFFICIAL LIST OF EXHIBITS.

One of the pleasing features of our first fall show was the contribution of displays of C. D. Wiman, of Moline and Wm. Butterworth, of Moline, both of which have private greenhouses. That the older variety of flowers are again coming in favor is shown by the exhibit of a very beautiful white Bouvardia Humboldtii, shown by Ridgewood Garden, of Highland Park. The entire stage of the Coliseum was occupied with an exhibit of pot-grown chrysanthemum plants grown by the school children of Bloomington, many of which would be a credit to commercial growers. These plants were distributed to the children by A. Washburn & Sons last spring and they awarded a number of cash prizes for the best grown plants. The division of horticulture, University of Illinois, showed a very large variety of good and novel seedlings. One seedling, No. 78-15, deserved special mention for type and color. A certificate of merit was awarded for this collection of single, anemone and pompon chrysanthemums.

J. F. Ammann & Co., Edwardsville, White Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme and Enchantress carnations; Chieftain, White Chieftain, Marigold, Garza, Yellow and White Mensa, Golden Climax, Leslie and Baby pompon chrysanthemums; Ophelia, White Killarney and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, all well done. They also made the only exhibit of orchids.

Henry Baer, Peoria, vase each Yellow Eaton, Charles Razer chrysanthemums.

Turner and Dr. Enguehard chrysanthemums, which were well grown.

El Paso Carnation Co., El Paso, vase of White Enchantress carnations and Golden Mensa, Klondike, Diana, Chieftain, Chas. Razer and Wm. Turner chrysanthemums.

Hembreiker & Cole, Springfield, cyclamen plants and well grown vases of Roman Gold, and Dr. Enguehard chrysanthemums, White Wonder and Enchantress carnations.

chrysanthemums. The last mentioned was a very beautiful and distinct variety.

Wendland & Keimel, Inc., Elmhurst, vases of White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst and Milady roses.

Henry Gaethje, Rock Island, five vases of five varieties, all different colors and types of Bouvardia.

Stapp & Co., Rock Island, vase Golden Chadwick chrysanthemum, very good, and vase each of Bonnaffon and White Chieftain, which were well grown.

Julius Staack & Sons, Moline, vase of fine Golden Wedding chrysanthemum and vases of Rose Pink Enchantress, Enchantress and White Enchantress carnations.

A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, H. A. Balfour, worthy of a special mention; Chieftain, Wm. Turner, Charles Razer, Mensa, Golden Mensa, Madge, Buckingham, White and Yellow Mrs. Jerome Jones chrysanthemums, which were very fine.

J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, vases of Matchless, Superb and No. 143 red seedling carnations and a vase of assorted seedling carnations. Carnation Superb was granted a certificate with a score of 86 points.

John R. Gee, Bloomington, had a nice display of palms and plants in baskets and baskets of cut flowers.

F. B. Smith's Sons, Danville, crimson seedlings carnation No. 208, which looks to be a good commercial variety; Gov. Herrick and a light sport of Gov. Herrick violets, which were very fine, and 23 varieties of pompons.

W. J. Miller & Sons, Pontiac, vase of very well grown Dr. Enguehard, Smith's Sensation and Wm. Turner chrysanthemums and two vases of carnations.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, exhibit of palms and vases of eight of the best commercial varieties of roses were of unusually fine quality. They also had a booth showing baskets, chiffons, mats and general florists' supplies.

George A. Kuhl, Pekin, table decoration with basket and corsages of Killarney roses, also four vases very well grown Dr. Enguehard, Wm. Turner and Golden Wedding chrysanthemums.

E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, vases of Shawyer, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Stanley, Tipperary, Primrose and Ophelia roses, also carnations and anemone and pommums well grown, one vase each White Enchantress, White Wonder, Enchantress Supreme, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Champion, Benora carnations, all of which were well grown.

I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg, vases of Chrysolora, Pretoria and Arthur Horn chrysanthemums.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., crotons and dracenas.

C. Loveridge, Peoria, vase each Enchantress and White Enchantress carnations, one vase each Killarney Brilliant, Hoosier Beauty and Mock roses, an exceptionally well done vase of Charles Razer, Col. Appleton and Wm. Turner chrysanthemums and fine vases of pompons and singles, Buckingham, Mason, Klondike, Western Beauty, Richardson, Donald, Model of Perfection and Baby Margaret.

Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Chicago, vases of Golden Climax, Mary and Western Beauty, a chrysanthemum of the pleasing shade of pink, also seedlings under No. 10-1914, 1-1914 and the seedling Hilda Canning, which was awarded a certificate with a score of 88 points; vase of 18 blossoms exhibition chrysanthemums and a vase of 25 Tekonsha chrysanthemums, which was exceptionally well finished.

Restland Floral Co., Mendota, vase each Yellow and White Eaton chrysanthemums and one vase Beacon carnations, well grown stock.

Dixon Floral Co., Dixon, vase Cream Robinson, a sport of Mrs. Robinson, of a very pleasing shade of cream.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., vase of 18 fancy large exhibition chrysanthemums.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, pot chrysanthemums, ferns, dracenas and commercial decorative plants.

Wenona Greenhouse, Wenona, vase mixed carnations, one vase each Wm.

Chicago Art and Novelty Show.

The floral art and novelty display held under the auspices of the Chicago Florists' Club in the grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle, Sunday afternoon and evening, November 12, was a splendid exhibition, the large hall being filled with well arranged displays of flowers of fine quality and great variety. New offerings, especially in roses and carnations, proved interesting features to many in the trade, a number of whom from out-of-town points were in attendance, while the splendid displays of novelties and examples of floral art shown by the retail florists were the admiration of the public who thronged the hall from the opening until the closing hours, the many new suggestions in both use and arrangement of flowers being noted with interest and favorably commented upon. The show was a splendid success from every point of view and the high character of the displays may be realized by our brief descriptions of the principal exhibits. It is understood that while their names did not appear on the exhibits the club is largely indebted to the wholesale houses for their liberality in supplying a large part of the material used in this work, including the Poehlmann Bros. Co., Bassett & Washburn, Peter Reinberg, Wietor Bros., E. C. Amling Co., J. A. Budlong, Zech & Mann, A. L. Vaughan Co., Miss Gunterberg, Chicago Flower Growers' Association, Percy Jones, A. T. Pyfer & Co., Erne & Klingel, Kyle & Foerster, Weiland & Risch, and others. Much credit is due Chas. W. Johnson, Jr., of Mt. Greenwood, in the unavoidable absence of his father, for the excellent arrangement of the show, and Fred Lautenschlager deserves great praise for the splendid publicity service which produced a large and appreciative attendance. The A. L. Randall Co. added much to the appearance of the hall by the free use of their electric fountains.

As one left the elevators at the entrance to the main hall, the fine display of flowering plants arranged by Frank Ochslin, occupying a space of about 75 square feet, arrested the visitors' attention. With well-grown Lake Forest Flower Show.

The first chrysanthemum exhibition of the North Shore Horticultural Society, held in Durand Art Institute, Lake Forest, Ill., proved to be a most successful affair, surpassing all expectations of those who had the show in charge. The stock displayed was all of very fine quality, the exhibits numerous and well staged and the large hall was well filled.

In the class for group of chrysanthemum plants to occupy a space of 50 square feet, arranged for effect with palms and ferns, there were three splendid entries, Chas. H. Schweppe (H. Zakes, Gr.) being first with a fine display, closely contested by J. Ogden Armour (T. W. Head, Gr.), second, and Louis F. Swift (J. H. Francis, Gr.), third. The Swift entries captured the handsome silver cup offered by the First National Bank in the sweepstakes class. The classes for cut palms for a background, the effect of the group of chrysanthemums, begonias, cyclamens, Otaheite oranges, solanums, etc., in pots, presenting a clever color scheme, was much admired. In the hall proper, this exhibitor had also placed an attractive display of palms and foliage plants.

Miss M. C. Gunterberg's display of suggestions for wedding anniversaries was one of the novelties of the show and received many compliments. For the first anniversary the offering was debutante baskets and bouquets in a great variety of arrangement, especially attractive being a basket of choice Mrs. Russell roses. A dainty basket of Mrs. Ward roses was very much admired. The huge basket of the "Bird of Prosperity" in the form of an American eagle upon a tall pedestal, draped with "Old Glory" and filled with roses, with begonias and cyclamens at the base, was a striking feature that commanded attention as one entered the hall.

terpiece of snapdragons and pompons, surrounded by a number of bouquets of various designs, the feature being a shower of cyclamens, lily of the valley and plumosus.

The A. Lange display at the entrance to the hall was most excellent. Around the large center basket of Yellow Eaton chrysanthemums were arranged other handsome receptacles, noteworthy among which were artistic baskets of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s new flesh pink carnation, Superb, also a tasteful arrangement of the handsome red rose, Champ Weiland, grown by Peter Reinberg. A table centerpiece of violets and a number of corsage arrangements all showed excellent taste. A bridal muff of lily of the valley was much admired. A basket of Bouvardia Humboldtii was another pleasing feature.

The Bohannon Floral Co. in its decorated table for a wedding party, had a very clever display. The table, five feet wide and about ten feet long, was complete with silver, cut glass and linen placed along the sides and ends, the center being arranged to form an aisle with several arches trimmed with miniature roses, in which the wedding party represented by 10 bisque figures was seen. The mirrored background reflected tall baskets of chrysanthemums in variety and arrangements of cypripediums and pompons.

Schiller, the Florist, featured a fine assortment of baskets of foliage plants, in addition to large and small baskets of cut blooms, natural corsages of select California violets and nosegays. A handsome basket of Chieftain chrysanthemums and Ophelia roses, together with a large basket of fine chrysanthemums in variety were effectively displayed. A combination vase-bird stand filled with Ophelia was a novelty that was much admired.

Carnation Thenanthos, the new commercial red raised by Anton Then, and which is being distributed exclusively by the A. L. Randall Co., was well displayed at a point of vantage in the center of one end of the hall. This variety which has captured high honors wherever entered in competition, came in for its full quota of admiration. The arrangement was effective, a tall wicker vase showing the blooms off to splendid advantage.

a shower bouquet of White Killarney, one red rose in the center, marking the end of the first wedded period. For the fifth year, or wooden anniversary there were several arrangements, all novel, among them being wooden forks and knives with five Killarneys to denote the years; also a potato masher similarly arranged, the flowers fastened with toothpicks and raffia. A cake tin and tin funnel, the latter filled with a corsage of violets and roses, and a tin grater with 10 Francis Scott Key roses, were the suggestions for the tenth anniversary. Twenty handsome assorted chrysanthemums in a handsome vase imported from China symbolized the 20-year mark. A silver basket, with 25 perfect white Killarney roses tied with a silver bow, seemed very appropriate for the silver wedding. For the fiftieth anniversary there were fifty Bonnaffon chrysanthemums in a basket trimmed with gilt paper, and finally the diamond jubilee offering, a handsome corsage of lily of the valley studded with diamond pins.

The George Wienhoeber display which occupied the center of the hall was most elaborate. Rising from a platform, an eight-foot wicker vase filled with chrysanthemums of wonderful size and color met the eye, while two other large vases near by, tastefully filled with E. G. Hill Co.'s splendid seedling chrysanthemums and a handsome vase of American Beauty roses, formed a center about which were arranged 10 tables filled with novelties and the choicest of stock all most excellently displayed. For "The New Baby Arrival," as one table was designated, surrounding the figure of a stork in the center were cradles and baby shoes decorated with orchids, miniature roses, pompons, daisies and lily of the valley. Four cages, inclosing live birds, placed at the corners of one of the displays, attracted much attention. There were Almost directly opposite the main entrance, the display of baskets of cut blooms and foliage plants, arranged by Miss Edna Frauenfelder, filled a large platform. Occupying the center a tall basket of Chrysanthemum Bonnaffon stood majestically; another of Mrs. Russell roses, advantageously placed, came in for its full share of admiration, while smaller receptacles, showing clever arrangements of foliage plants in pleasing variety, were not overshadowed. Another Frauenfelder exhibit was that of an attractive cen-

NEW ROSE RED OPHELIA AT THE CHICAGO SHOW.

Showing the usual good taste which characterizes the work of the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co., was the decorated dinner table arranged by that firm. The feature here was a dainty centerpiece of orchids, cattleyas and vandas with lily of the valley, presenting a most pleasing effect.

Nothing in the exhibition attracted more admiration than the handsome debutante basket to be presented to Miss Violette Selfridge, with the compliments of the Chicago Florists' Club.

chrysanthemums on display that looked well and the Growers' Cut Flower Co., Redwood City, Calif., sent exhibits of Doris and Viola pompons.

Vaughan's Seed Store display occupied a position in one corner of the hall, a group of well grown palms and chrysanthemum plants being arranged to present a very pleasing effect.

Occupying an individual table, a handsome basket of Mrs. Beu pompons received homage from many admirers of these dainty favorites. This was

The Cleveland Show.

The second annual Cleveland flower show, held under the joint direction of the Ohio Horticultural Society, the Cleveland Florists' Club and the Garden Club of Cleveland, opened November 10 and continued until November 12, with marked success. It was a good sized show, and as to the quality, there never was a better exhibition, both in the growers' section and the display of the retailers, who showed everything pertaining to their art—unique baskets, vases, and some very elaborate table decorations—and it is difficult to say which received the most praise, the wonderful large blooms of chrysanthemums or the table decorations, in which neither time nor expense was spared by the exhibitors.

In the Corrigan cup class, such well known blooms as Wm. Turner, Mrs. J. C. Neal, Odessa, Wells' Late Pink, Nerissa, G. G. Mason, H. E. Converse and Earl Kitchener were used, these being the largest varieties.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., each had excellent displays of pompons. J. E. Quallich of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, had a vase of the new red carnation, Thenanthos, on exhibition, which was the center of admiration. A vase of the new chrysanthemum, Tiger, named by President Wilson and grown by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., a vase of Barbara Davis, named by Mayor Harry L. Davis, of Cleveland, after his mother, and grown by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., and a vase of the new rose, Cleveland, named by popular vote at the Cleveland flower show in 1915, and grown by Chas. Totty, Madison, N. J., were at all times the center of attraction.

The Anna Dean Farm had on exhibition a large vase of Sunburst roses. E. A. Coe, the grower, received many compliments on the excellence of the blooms.

The large display group of palms, ferns and foliage plants, exhibited by Nag-ir-roc Gardens, of Wickliffe, O., situated directly in the center of the hall, was very good.

In the retailer's section the following had table decorations; some also had baskets and novelties: Jones-Russell Co., table of pansies and single violets and fancy baskets of violets, pompons and roses; Westman & Getz, table of violets, orchids and roses and novelties

EXHIBITION AT BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

This was filled with the choicest of Mrs. Chas. Russell, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst, Ophelia and White Killarney roses, the arrangement being by the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co.

A vase of the new rose, Mrs. Sarah Yeats, exhibited by J. E. Yeats, Champaign, Ill., received lots of attention. The color is a rich velvety rose, the foliage medium heavy, dark green in color, and the flowers have large petals, the well-formed buds opening into a full evenly petaled bloom.

The J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, showed a handsome vase of its new red seedling, Superb, which seems rightly named, color and form being excellent. A vase of Rainbow varieties staged by this firm and a red seedling, No. 143, also look very promising.

Red Ophelia, the new rose, placed on display by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., brought forth many flattering comments on its fine color, form and foliage. It appears to have many good points and the vase of splendid blooms never lacked admirers.

The Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Chicago, added to the increasing popularity of the pompon family, its showing of the new bronze variety, Hilda Cannine, being well received, as did pompon seedling No. 10-1914, another Mt. Greenwood entry.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s exhibit of prepared oak leaves attracted much interest in their wide range of pastel colors, the blue being especially fine. The fact that they are fireproof is another point that impressed many visitors.

Walter W. Adams featured baskets of cut flowers and corsages. His display presented very clever arrangements of pompons, sweet peas, miniature roses, gloxinias, cat tails and natural butterflies.

James Livingstone, Milwaukee, Wis., had two vases of seedling anemone exhibited by O. A. & L. A. Tonner.

The Leslie Floral Co. exhibited a huge basket of American Beauty roses. This was placed on the orchestra platform and was a distinctly decorative feature that could not be overlooked.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, displayed a splendidly arranged basket of Pink Chieftain and McNiece chrysanthemums, choice pompons and orchids, which was much admired.

A. H. Schneider Oak Park, Ill., specialized on cyclamens, and occupied one corner of the hall with a group of excellent plants.

BAYERDORFER'S EXHIBIT AT THE CLEVELAND SHOW.

"For the Kiddies" were good; Timothy Smith, table of pompons; Liberty Flower Shop, table of roses and pompons; J. M. Gasser Co., table of calendulas and Pompons; Smith & Fettes Co., table of Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and corsages of violets and Mme. Perrie roses; The Flower Shop, Superior avenue, table of pompons and violets; Knobles Bros., table of Ophelia roses, bronze and red pompons, corsages of same, also decorated baskets; Christine Floral Co., table of Sweetheart roses

lence of the blooms and exhibits and the difficulty in awarding the prizes, due to the stock being of such uniformly good quality as to make distinction difficult, in several classes; only a few points were scored between the first, second and third prizes. Sam Pentecost, president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, then thanked all who were instrumental in making the show a success, and the florists and private growers for their hearty co-operation and beautiful exhibits. Last, but not and pompons: A. M. Albrecht, table of bronze pompons; T. J. Kegg Co., table of fruit and flowers, also novelties in baskets and vases; The Crane Co., large basket containing four dozen large chrysanthemums—very good. A table by Mrs. F. E. Drury (Rudolph Thurman Gr.), was good. The Wyckoff Floral Co., Chagrin Falls, O., showed a wonderful display of straw-flowers in baskets, corsages and a shower bouquet. The show was well staged, well advertised, and also well attended by the general public. The new ballroom of the Hollenden hotel, just completed, added to the beauty and charm of the affair.

Gasser Co., The Friedley Co., The Naumann Co., H. P. Ellis and E. J. Buyer of Cleveland. In the private growers' section the following were among the successful contestants: H. S. AN ACRE OF PALMS AT DREER'S, RIVERTON, N. J.

THE BANQUET.

At the banquet, which was held in the assembly room of the Hollenden hotel, Saturday evening from six until nine o'clock, about 100 florists, private gardeners, commercial growers and exhibitors, enjoyed the evening's entertainment. There was vocal and instrumental music, good eating and many good talks by prominent growers, the judges, and Judge White, who represented the mayor of Cleveland, the latter being unable to attend. H. P. Knobles was the toastmaster of the evening, and his remarks were timely and up to the minute. The first speaker called upon was Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., who also announced during the course of his speech the meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America in conjunction with the Cleveland show in 1917. The next speaker was E. A. Bause, newly elected vice-president of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. Judge White followed, and then the three judges of the show, F. C. Bartels, R. Witterstaetter, of Cincinnati, O., and Claude Tyler, of North Olmstead, O. All spoke of the excel-least, Philip Foley, of Chicago, made a few remarks, adding to the enjoyment of the evening.

Among the principal prize winners in the commercial section were the following: Ethan A. Coon, Rhinebeck, N. Y.; Lasher & Pells, Redhook, N. Y.; Carl Hagenburger, Mentor, O.; Claude Tyler, North Olmstead, O.; C. Merkel & Sons, Mentor, O.; Wyckoff Floral Co., Chagrin Falls, O.; L. Westerburg & Sons, Warrensville, O., and the J. M.

CIBOTIUMS AND NEPHROLEPIS SCOTTII AT DREER'S, RIVERTON, N. J.

WITH THE GROWERS

Henry A. Dreer, Inc. Greenhouse Dept.

Those in need of inspiration, and there are very few who are not benefited by a little additional insight of "things as they ought to be," should spend a half day at the Henry A. Dreer nurseries at Riverton, N. J. Visitors are always outspoken in their praise of the wonderful stock and its tip top condition. Even now at this bleak season, when the outside flowers are gone and winter is fast setting in, there is so much to see in the acres and acres of glass, that interests growers and retailers, that the summer blossoms are hardly missed.

Palms, the most important of their specialties, fill houses that cover acres of ground; there are tens of thousands of kentias in all stages of growth from sprouting seeds up to 15-foot specimens. We have seen the palms here for many years, but they never looked in healthier condition than at this time. An immense block of Cocus Weddelliana, over 100,000 in two-inch pots and many in larger sizes, up to specimens in six and sevens, looked up to the Dreer standard. A large block of young arecas were coming on. A house was also given to Lantania borbonica in seven-inch pots, very well furnished. Of the kentias, thousands of made-up plants in the various larger sizes are grown here and at the Riverview extension, where is also to be seen the largest and best block of Phoenix Roebelenii, that most graceful of all palms, in the world.

Ferns are great favorites here. We question if the collection, considering its quantity and quality, can be duplicated anywhere. Commencing with the infantiles, there seem millions of them in one house, seed had been planted on benches and was coming up; in fact, was up, much of it large enough to be picked off. There appears to be a great saving of time as well as pans and boxes in this bench system. Of the two and two and a half inch pot plants there is an enormous quantity, house after house being filled with the best varieties for fern dishes. A large block of Pteris argyræa, in four-inch pots, two plants to a pot, looked very salable. Cyrtomium Rochfordianum compacta, which originated at Riverton, is a great acquisition and will undoubtedly be grown everywhere. Several houses in the fern range are given to the Glory fern, the easily grown Farleyense. It is in three, four and five inch pots. Each year the stock of this popular sort is increased, and each season at this time it is all marked sold. A large block of Farleyense in smaller sizes looked well.

Cibotiums are a specialty, each fern house having a row of large plants down the center. These rested on a pipe shelf, which is the last word in efficiency. Two one-inch iron pipes form this shelf; they are laid either side of the iron center post that supports the ridge pole, at the junction of the side pipe braces. This carries the shelf about 24 inches above the table. Such a shelf will not wear out or sag, and if kept painted, will last as long as the house. A bed of some 20,000 young plants of the bird's nest fern in two-inch pots looked very healthy—not a dark mark anywhere.

Dracenas Massangeana, fragrans and other popular sorts, are divided between Riverton and Riverview. At this latter place, crotons were seen in quantity, all fine stock. Hydrangeas are a feature, 100,000 rooted cuttings of the best French sorts being ready to come out of the sand. One could go on by the hour reciting the wonderful variety and quantity of the various stocks of this establishment.

Captain James Clark, of the fern department, seems to anticipate their every need; heat, water and light are always just right. The Farleyense and the closely allied Glory, are given houses together and responded to his treatment in beautifully shaped plants. The geni of the palms is W. H. Taplin—he knows them from the tap root to the points of the leaves. When asked for the best insecticide, he recommended whale oil soap with a dash of nicotine. All stock should, he added, be immersed in the solution until every part of the foliage receives a thin coating. This should be done every three months. In addition there should be a spraying of the same solution every two weeks, applied with a hand pump through an atomizer. At the time of our visit, Chief J. G. Eisele, was deeply interested in the work of getting out the 1917 catalogue, which is prepared largely under his personal supervision. George Strohlein, who has much of the detail work of the establishment at his finger ends, is always on the job, but never too busy to answer questions. He said there was over 5,000 tons in the mountain of buckwheat coal that loomed up conveniently on the bank of the river. In these days of rising prices and halting freights, there was great satisfaction in the fact that it was there, on the ground, and not somewhere on the way. A recently constructed large iron and tile storage warehouse was found most convenient, but even now taxed to its capacity.

Not many years ago Henry A. Dreer, Inc., seemed almost full grown; its present size would then have been considered impossible. Now it is in such full swing, and growing so fast in every department, that it will go on and on, increasing in usefulness and keeping up to a standard and policy of aggressiveness that will be up to the next generation to continue. M. J. Brinton, Christiana, Pa.

Greenhouse men appear to be most successful when they specialize. M. J. Brinton, of Christiana, Pa., succeeded to his father's business, which consisted at that time of a varied stock. When cold storage Easter lilies were offered, he tried a few and did so well with them that he bought more and finally decided to specialize all the year on these, and other forcing bulbs during the winter. His importations for the present season are something over 400,000 bulbs, 125,000 of these being Paper Whites, 50,000 of which are now outside in frames. These will gradually be brought inside for forcing, he aiming to have a continuous supply from the latter part of November on.

Easter lilies are grown in large quantities. The flowers are cut just as soon as the buds crack; a house containing 50,000 bulbs in various stages of growth, all planted out in beds, gives an idea of the quantity handled. Fifty cases are brought from storage each week. A new Lord & Burnham house 40x142, all to be planted with bulbs, has just been completed. Quantities of Golden Spur and Emperor narcissi are brought on in February and March.

Four "Ideal" cast iron boilers, 36 inch grate, hooked together, provide heat for the carnation range, which plant is another specialty, three houses, each 40x200, being filled with stock in good condition. A 200-foot bed of Mrs. King gladioli, which will commence flowering about Thanksgiving, is a feature. Chrysanthemums were an early crop from houses that will be used later for bulbs. Yellow Queen, a new-comer, looks very fine, as does Early Frost, a fine white. Mr. Brinton is of the opinion that bulbs must not be forced or planted immediately on arrival; they should be allowed to thoroughly ripen first. The condition they arrive in should also be at once ascertained—whether they are sound and filled with flower buds. This is ascertained in the case of daffodils by cutting them open longitudinally, when the flowers will be found in the center perfectly formed and yellow in color; if not, or if brown in color, the insurance company should be informed at once and the bulbs refused. This must be done in 24 hours or they will not be responsible for damages.

The location, arrangement of greenhouses, boilers and coal bins, is exceptionally well planned here, the whole place showing evidence of ordered and systematic direction. Three other large "Ideal" cast iron boilers heat his lily range. Using the hot water system he finds the cast iron sectional boilers much better than the tubular type.

BIRD'S NEST FERNS AT DREER'S, RIVERTON, N. J.

Twenty-five Thousand Young Plants.

Mr. Brinton sends his products to commission men, devoting all his energies to producing the stock. Growing and selling he realizes are two entirely separate branches of the business and the best results are obtained by specialists in each line. K.

The Stiles Co., Oklahoma City.

The Stiles Co.'s greenhouses are located on a five-acre tract bounded by Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets, within one block of Fairlawn cemetery, and close to the heart of one of the best residential districts of Oklahoma City. Charles W. Stiles has charge of this, the growing end of the business of this firm. His special lines at this particular time seem to be carnations, chrysanthemums and bulbous stock, and, through his long experience with the vagaries of this sunny climate, he evidently has become master of the situation as all painstaking growers eventually do, for all of the stock is in excellent condition. The carnation plants were benched July 25. A little root rot developed here and there and some replanting was necessary, but this was of small moment comparatively, for at this time a nice crop of fairly long stemmed flowers is being cut and the prospect of a continuous supply is excellent. The varieties grown are: Alma Ward, Matchless, Beacon, O. P. Bassett, Enchantress Supreme and Alice. The chrysanthemums are finishing their flowers perfectly, thanks to the lack of humidity in the atmosphere. These are bench grown chiefly and the kinds planted are: Odessa, Wm. Turner, Golden Wedding, Col. Appleton and Dr. Enguehardt, together with half a bench of pompon varieties. As space becomes available with the cutting of the chrysanthemums, it is filled with bulbous stock in flats and there will be a good supply of Paper White narcissus for the Thanksgiving trade.

Santa Rosa, Calif., Flower Show.

The residents of this city have every reason to be proud of the splendid flower show which opened November 2, and was brought to a successful conclusion Saturday evening, November 4. This enterprising city is almost "chrysanthemum mad." The large number of entries in the amateur classes, and the magnificent quality of blooms displayed, would have done credit to many of our successful growers. The show was held in the Masonic Temple, which proved an ideal hall for exhibition purposes. The various florists and nurserymen in and around the city all made fine displays of their respective specialties. Chief interest centered in chrysanthemums and a grand lot of all types were staged. The grand prize, a beautiful silver cup, presented by Luther Burbank, for the best collection of not less than 20 blooms, one in each vase, not over 18-inch stems, not less than 15 varieties, was won by the Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, with a grand lot of blooms. The silver cup presented by the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce, for the best collection of novelties, was also won by the Lynch Nursery Company. This firm also won the silver cup offered by F. A. Brush, for the largest bloom in the show, a wonderful Wm. Turner. All the exhibits of this firm were staged in fine style by Percy Ellings. Fred Grobe was also a large exhibitor of both pot plants and cut blooms. His display of ferns was admirable as also were his pot grown chrysanthemums. Leopold & Pollard, the local florists, were extensive exhibitors of chrysanthemums and dahlias, as was also J. Crabtree. The largest exhibitors in the dahlia section were the well-known dahlia specialists, F. C. Burns & Co., of San Rafael. They showed splendid lots of decorative cactus and peony flowered, and captured several prizes in that class. In the class open to local exhibitors, Prof. J. S. Sweet carried off nearly all the first premiums. His stock was remarkably well grown and the blooms were finely finished. His exhibit of 1916 novelties was quite extensive, his yellow Wm. Turner being especially noteworthy. He also showed a sport of his own production, a white Good Gracious. This is a very beautiful thing and may be heard from later on.

The single and pompon chrysanthemums were also largely shown, but did not attract the attention that the larger blooms did. Well grown cyclamens and primulas were also noted.

The show was to have been formally opened by Luther Burbank, but he was unavoidably detained at the last minute. Mrs. H. H. Moke made a splendid manager. She was ably assisted by Prof. J. S. Sweet. The exhibition committee was composed of C. D. Barnett, Edward H. Brown, J. S. Sweet and Walter H. Nagle. Financially, the show proved a splendid success. The management has decided to hold another show next fall on a more elaborate scale.

American Rose Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, on the afternoon of November 8, at which various subjects of importance were considered. The way in which this society is progressing and coming to the front as one of the most important bodies of the craft is most gratifying. With its large amateur membership, which is gaining rapidly, it promises to soon become a most important factor, if not the greatest, in increasing the love for the rose and everything pertaining to the garden adornment of the home.

In the evening, a meeting of the Philadelphia craft, called together by President Pennock, to consider the feasibility of a rose show in this city by the national society in March, 1917, was largely attended and all were most enthusiastic for the project. A guarantee fund of nearly $5,000 has been secured by 50 members of the society. With this assured, and the hearty support from all members, amateurs as well as those of the craft, the only difficulty appears to be getting a hall large enough for the exhibits and to accommodate the attendance necessary to make it pay. Horticultural hall was at first considered, but by many it is not thought large enough, either for the display or the crowds expected and necessary to make it profitable. President Pennock, in opening the meeting, called for full expression pro and con, as they wanted to be sure of hearty co-operation before action was taken. E. Allen Pierce, of Boston, said Philadelphia was the logical city; the guarantee fund gave the financial backing for generous prizes and if the show was conducted on the lines of the national shows, with their prestige, he was sure it would be a success. Robert Craig was just a little afraid that unless it could take on the character of the recent national shows, which the people flocked to, like they did to championship prize fights, requiring even professional ticket sellers, it would not attain the prominence to make it a financial success. W. F. Therkildson, the advertising manager of the National Show, said he felt sure they could duplicate the success of last spring if it was handled in much the same way, the cumulative advertising effect of that show being a great help.

A. Farenwald said there would be no trouble to make it pay because it paid everybody who had or would have anything to do with it. The kitten, which had been laid on our doorstep last year, was looked at askance, but finally taken in, and had grown into a very welcome addition to the family. He added: "We want the show; I am sure it will be a success in every way."

J. G. Eisele, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., spoke of the difficulties of the time of year with them, but promised to be with the society in the work. Robert Simpson, of Clifton, N. J., said the experience of last year's show cut out the element of risk. The society had always been like a tail to the kite and it was now time to assert itself, and this was the opportunity—he was sure of success. It meant business for the plant growers and education of the people.

George Burton was a little afraid of the profits, but heartily believed in the show and would do all he could. S. S. Skidelsky was not at first in favor, but now sees its possibilities, and said he would willingly do his best for it. Alexander Scott saw great possibilities in the show. If all the growers got together it would be a magnificent success. Mr. Brown of Cleveland said success in flower show attendance meant to in some way create a "human interest," or features that would attract attention, such as the mayor of the city naming a variety, or society ladies being asked to name plants after socially prominent people. Mr. Therkildson also spoke in this vein, reciting the incident of sending flowers last spring to Baby Sayre, the president's first grand-child, which was born during show week. Secretary Hammond's thought was of the great educational effect on the school children, who should be admitted free under care of teachers at early hours—a great factor in bringing their parents in later. It had worked splendidly at the rose show in Washington years ago.

W. K. Harris was for the show, heart and soul, although it was a little late to have the best results from pot roses. How to use roses in decorations, the way to plant pot roses and other information for the public should be a feature.

Mark Mills, after Mr. Eisele said H. A. Dreer, Inc., would come in, said he was sure it would be a grand success. He would give his best to make a great show. E. H. Mann of the E. G. Hill Co. said his firm would be glad to do what they could with exhibits to support the show. He thought the decorative work of the retail men an important factor.

W. A. Manda stated he was always in favor of flower shows as a great educator. In decorative features, in arranging and showing the public how to use them, they were essential. He had not the least doubt but that it will be a great success.

Louis Reuter thought the rose society fortunate in being asked to have its first large show in this city of show successes. He said he would help to do everything possible to make it the best event of its kind.

Edward Fancourt approved of the show, but thought Horticultural hall not large enough. Wallace Peirson, who was accustomed to carrying great burdens, assured he would do all he could to help it along and was sure of its success. John Dodds and Thomas Logan, representing the private gardeners of the city, assured the hearty co-operation of this important factor to the flower shows of this city. Altogether the meeting was most enthusiastic and a vote deciding it was the sense of the meeting that such a show was practicable and desirable was passed unanimously.

Lancaster, Pa., Show.

This exhibition, under the auspices of the Lancaster County Florists' Association was held November 9-11, and in consideration of the fact that there are no large estates or private greenhouses in this vicinity to draw from a special effort was made to secure a good amateur display.

A half dozen vases of exceptionally fine dahlias demonstrated the abnormal weather conditions existing in this section, that has been without a freeze up to this date.

Two years ago at our first show, high class chrysanthemums were hard to find in this section. The display then made by our out-of-town friends, educated us up to the possibilities in this flower, and for this show the display by local growers was the equal of those exhibited anywhere.

Commercial awards were made as follows:

The Lord & Burnham Co.'s prize of $20 in gold for the best display of chrysanthemum blooms was won by H. D. Rohrer, of Lancaster. His display consisted of 200 vases of single bloom specimens all exceptionally well grown, filling four tables and three vases of extra long stemmed and fine blooms towering over them in the center of the table group. These three vases were M. Louiseau-Rosseau, Nerissa & Wm. Turner.

Best display of cut flowers other than chrysanthemums was won by Chas. M. Weaver, of Ronks, Pa., with a table of sweet peas and mignonette that equaled the stock shown last spring at the national show. The prize was awarded by the King Construction Co.

A bronze medal offer by the H. F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, was awarded to Elmer Weaver of Ronks, Pa., for the best display of plants and cut flowers. He had good ferns and begonias in the plant display and what I believe were the best calendula cut in the United States the past week.

A silver medal offered by the H. F. Michell Co. for the best table decoration in the retail display was awarded to B. F. Barr Co., Lancaster.

The fifteen prizes offered in the amateur section were all awarded.

Blue ribbons were awarded as follows:

Rudolph Nagel, of Lancaster, for a display of chrysanthemums that were not only fine blooms but staged with an eye to effect that would have gladdened the hearts of those who are preaching artistic staging.

Maurice J. Brinton, of Christiana, for a table of lilies, three types, all well done.

Amos N. Rohrer, of Strasburg, for display of high grade carnations.

E. F. Campbell, of Marietta, Pa., for a mixed vase of chrysanthemums that were the best specimen flowers in the show.

Honorable mention was made of the following:

Ira D. Landis, of Paradise, Pa., for table of carnation, daisies and pompons.

W. B. Girvin, of Leola, Pa., for table of chrysanthemums, carnations and pot pompons, the latter being extra fine.

Lemon Landis, of Lancaster, Pa., for table of chrysanthemums and lilies.

Frank Kohr, Lancaster, Pa., for display of cut flowers, plants and a remarkable showing of strawflowers.

H. A. Schroyer, for an excellent retail display among which was a basket of his new chrysanthemum Mrs. H. A. Schroyer, a very handsome bronze of good size and promising commercial possibilities.

Other exhibitors almost as good as those getting blue ribbons or honorable mention were as follows:

E. P. Hostetter, of Manheim, Pa., exhibited a table of yellow daisies showing high cultural skill.

A. F. Strickler, of Engleside, Pa., had a table of pompons grown outdoors that attracted continuous crowds of spectators seeking information for what they could grow themselves.

Alphonso Peters, of The Greenwood Floral Co., had a display of palms and design work for cemetery use.

Edw. Beck had a regular retail display tastefully arranged, and being a graduate of Sam Dobbs, the advertising man who made Coco Cola famous, he did some good advertising during the show.

Thomas Fries had a display of plants in great variety and pot chrysanthemums for decorative purposes that won universal admiration.

Mrs. Geo. Goldbach had a retail display of plants and chrysanthemum baskets that was quite an addition to the show.

B. F. Barr Co. displayed their evergreens from the nursery in a garden effect and combined with pot pompons, for color this display was perhaps the distinctive feature of the show.

Chas. B. Herr, Strasburg, had a specimen adiantum that had a spread of about three feet and was twenty inches high with every frond perfect.

Out-of-town exhibitors were as follows:

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. displayed roses, chrysanthemums and pompons of high quality.

The Elmer D. Smith Co., Adrian, Mich., sent specimen blooms of the newer varieties and their new pompon for 1917, "Little Gem."

Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., sent a handsome and large collection of pompons and singles showing both exceptional skill in growing and extraordinary fine varieties.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa., sent roses, bouvardia, and a few orchids for which we were very thankful, as they came in Friday noon when the show needed a few fresh exhibits.

The McCallum Co., of Pittsburgh, sent a handsome vase of Mrs. M. R. Morgan chrysanthemums.

Richard Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., sent 49 varieties of pompons and judging from the amount of pencil and paper used by spectators around their exhibit they have helped in the education of our Lancaster public.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass., sent a handsome vase of his new carnation Doris.

John F. Rupp, of Shiremanstown, Pa., sent "the Goose Plant" Aristolochia Sturtevant. This and a chrysanthemum half white and half pink was the freak attraction of the show.

We are especially proud of our judges, Wm. F. Gude, of Washington, D. C.; Charles Grakelow, of Philadelphia, and S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia.

Harry K. Rohrer, the chairman of the flower show committee, deserves all the credit that can be given him for the way he handled the show and his committee, consisting of M. J. Brinton, Albert M. Herr, B. F. Barr, Lemon S. Landis, Elmer J. Weaver, Rudolph Nagel, A. F. Strickler and David F. Rose, were able and willing assistants.

The unsettled condition of the presidential election interfered with our attendance but it averaged up good for the three days and the show can be counted a success from every standpoint.

Sunday morning it was dismantled and all of the good flowers sent to the various homes and charitable institutions in and around the city.

American Sweet Pea Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of this society was held at the Hotel Breslin, New York, November 10, there being present Geo. W. Kerr, president, in the chair; Harry A. Bunyard, secretary; Wm. Sim, treasurer; J. Harrison Dick, Wm. Gray, Edward Jenkins and W. A. Sperling.

A report was received from Geo. W. Kerr and W. A. Sperling, who were appointed an auditing committee at the annual meeting last July. They reported the books in good order, with a balance of $147 in cash on hand and all expenses and bills paid. Their report, as follows, was accepted and they were discharged with thanks:

$1157.74

A warm vote of thanks was passed to Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and John Stafford, Bar Harbor, Me., who between them had procured subscriptions for a special fund, amounting to $276; Mr. Totty having obtained $160 and Mr. Stafford $116. It was through their efforts that the society's finances were put on a sound basis at this time.

It was proposed that all members whose dues were three years in arrears be dropped. An urgent letter of appeal will be sent to those who are delinquent, asking them to pay their dues. There are 75 members in good standing at the present time, and 10 life members.

A long general discussion took place in regard to ways and means of assisting the society and enlarging its membership. It was eventually resolved that some publication, to be called a bulletin, be prepared containing useful articles on varieties, cultivation and so forth, this to be published, together with the schedule, early in January. Advertisements will be solicited to help pay the cost of the bulletin. The schedule, with minor alterations, it is hoped, will be on the same lines as that of last year.

Edward Jenkins proposed that the next show be held in Boston, Mass., the date being Saturday, July 7. Wm. Gray seconded, and it was agreed to.

Wm. Sim was appointed a committee of one to interview the trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society with a view to obtaining a guarantee from that society of assistance toward the prize fund for the show.

An invitation to meet with them had been received from the officers who are arranging the National Flower Show at St. Louis, April 6-15, 1918, and who are offering $250 as prizes for sweet peas. It was resolved to suggest that this sum be at least doubled, since few growers, it was thought, would be induced to send displays unless liberal prizes were offered.

General satisfaction was expressed at the prospects before the society, and it is hoped that a successful year lies ahead.

Ames, Ia., Flower Show.

A sincere disposition on the part of the florists of Iowa to co-operate with the State College was manifested by the great number of entries made at the first state flower show staged at the college in Ames, November 10-11. The number of entries and the character of the material sent in was exceedingly good considering that no plans were made for staging this co-operative show until about three weeks ago. In this exhibition the college and the florists worked together in an effort to stimulate a greater public interest and the success of this first show by the florists has made it almost certain that a big fall show will be held next year in Des Moines.

Friday, which was "florists' day," brought many florists and their wives to Ames as well as some out-of-state trade visitors. About 45 florists availed themselves of the opportunity to gather at the college on that day. In connection with the flower show the florists held a meeting in the afternoon which proved to be of great interest. Dr. I. E. Melhus, of the college, gave a lecture on "Plant Diseases of Interest to Florists." He was followed by Roy F. Wilcox of Council Bluffs, Iowa, who discussed the "Cost of Production in Comparison with Present Selling Prices." The remainder of the meeting was given over to a general discussion of terms of credit, flower shows, and plans of increasing and educating the trade.

The support which the florists gave this first attempt at staging a flower show of state-wide interest received many commendations. The amount of flowers sent in exceeded the expectations of those who staged the exhibition and the support given warrants a larger and better show next fall. In addition to the material exhibited by florists in the nineteen competitive classes, several florists sent in material which would be of interest to the visitors.

The various novelties sent in by the florists of the central west attracted much comment. Some of the newer carnations were Thenanthos, exhibited by A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and this attracted much attention; Akehurst, exhibited by the Schroeder Floral Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; Nebraska, exhibited by C. H. Frey Co., Lincoln, Neb.; Bonfire and Rossette, exhibited by Wieter Bros., Chicago. Among the roses were noted Baby Doll, Mrs. W. R. Hearst and Lady Alice Stanley, exhibited by J. A. Budlong, Chicago, and Minnetonka, exhibited by the Alpha Floral Co., Des Moines. Chrysanthemums in variety were exhibited by E. D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich. J. S. Wilson Floral Co., of Des Moines, had a fine collection of 11 different seedlings of single and anemone chrysanthemums. J. F. Wilcox & Sons, Inc., of Council Bluffs, staged an exhibit of cut flowers and pot plants covering 125 square feet. This fine display included both large and small chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, cyclamens and begonias. Wesley Greene, of Des Moines, J. F. D. Fulmer, of Des Moines, and Chas. J. Reardon, ofavenport, served as judges of the material exhibited by the commercial florists.

The college had its greenhouse open for inspection, and one large house, which was filled with numerous large specimen and bush plants, was the center of interest for all visitors.

Competitions for students in home floral decorations in which there were classes in table decorations, basket, and vase arrangements of autumn material, proved to be of much interest to the women observers, in particular.

A unique feature staged by the department—a large gilt picture frame in which was arranged a vase of large chrysanthemums forming an attractive picture entitled "The Queen of Autumn"—brought forth many comments.

The following were among the principal prize winners: Kemble, Smith Co., Boone; Kemble Floral Co., Oskaloosa; H. E. & C. W. Krebs, Cedar Rapids; Aldous & Son, Iowa City; O. B. Stevens, Iowa City; J. L. Deanmead, Marshalltown; J. S. Wilson Floral Co., Des Moines; Grant Newport, Cedar Rapids; Herman Bros.

New London, Conn., Show.

The New London Horticultural Society held its annual chrysanthemum show November 8-9 in the courthouse of that city. The show was very attractive on both days. The non-competitive groups were very attractive. Manager Rough, of S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., displayed some beautiful blooms of bush, single and pompons varieties arranged for effect in baskets and vases and was given honorable mention. C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., had some choice pompons and singles on exhibition and was given honorable mention also. Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., also sent a very nice box of chrysanthemums for exhibition, among them a new light-pink pompon, named Little Gem.

Among private exhibitors the following were prize winners: Thos. Hatton, of the G. M. Landers estate, who won the first for a charmingly arranged group; also, first for largest chrysanthemum in the show. Ernest Robinson was first for 12 best chrysanthemum blooms. Stanley Jordan, superintendent for E. S. Hartsellers, Waterford, Conn., won first for a fine display of singles. Other exhibitors in pot plants who were prize winners were: Gustav Newman, gardener to Alfred Mitchell estate; John Maloney, gardener to Guthrie estate, for best blooms in 6-inch pots. Some fine vegetable exhibits were shown from the Palmer and Harkness estates. Fruit was not so largely exhibited as in former years, but was on the whole good samples of the many varieties. Table decorations on the second day of show were a great feature attraction. Judges for the show were Alfred Flowers, Roseland, N. J., Otto Ernst, of the Geduldig Greenhouses, Norwich, Conn.; Mr. Shea, of the Osgood estate, Norwich, Conn.

Edison's Way.

Thomas A. Edison, who never saw the inside of a college as a student, once had in his laboratory a man fresh from one of our great universities. This young bachelor of arts met much that upset his pet theories. But he would not readjust these theories.

One day Mr. Edison unscrewed an incandescent electric light bulb. "Find the cubic contents of this!" he said to the college graduate.

The college student went at it boldly. Reams of paper were figured and disfigured the next few days. Finally he brought to Mr. Edison the result. "You're at least 10 per cent out of the way," said the inventor. The graduate, sublimely confident, disputed this.

"All right," said Edison calmly. "Let's find out."

The inventor quietly knocked the tip off the blown end. Then he filled the bulb with water, weighed it, and in about a minute had arrived absolutely at the result. Fortunately, the lesson went home, and the star student became an excellent electrician.

False Economies.

Paper by A. F. J. Baur, read at a joint meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Society of Kentucky Florists, at New Albany, Ind., October 17, 1916.

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Florists:

Economy is a subject most vital to us all; indeed, it is a vital issue with practically every citizen, whether he be a poor laborer who lives by the sweat of his brow, or the manager of a large corporation with millions of capital at his command. Economy is considered of such great importance as to engage the best thoughts of some of our brainiest men. In the factory, on the farm, in the kitchen, in the bank and in the civil government, economy is the watchword, and wherever true economy is practised, there is progress and accumulation of wealth.

But unfortunately, the average person's perception of economy is merely the saving of material or money, and any kind of saving is considered economy, when really there is a point where it loses its virtue and becomes a menace, known as false economy, which is as bad as real economy is good. It is of this false economy I want to talk to you today. It will be my purpose to point out to you, some of the things many of us do from day to day, under the impression that we are economizing, when really we are wasting our resources in so doing. You have heard the old maxim, "penny wise and pound foolish." Well, that saying is made a reality every day by members of our profession. For instance:

Why do we find so many greenhouse ranges poorly located? Usually it is because the land could be purchased at a low price, little thought being given to proximity to the markets where the stock is to be sold, the accessibility to an adequate water supply, which in most cases is the city water mains, a handy railway switch for unloading coal and other materials, to say nothing of future real-estate values. The benefits from these things will easily pay the interest on several thousands of dollars invested in a desirable location. To locate on low-lying ground, with its constant danger from floods, is foolhardy to say the least.

In planning a greenhouse range and the heating plant, not enough thought is given to future extensions. Growers seem to imagine that their present building operations are to be their last. Steam mains are installed to take care of the glass put up and no more. No thought is given to possible future needs, which might be taken care of by slightly larger mains, or a tee or two in place of some of the ells, at very slight extra initial cost. The same might be said in regard to provision for attaching additional boilers without having to tear down the whole piping system inside the boiler room.

In stocking the place, catalogues and trade papers are hunted through in search of offers of cheap stock, quality seeming to be of secondary importance. Cash is usually demanded in such offers and if the stock is inferior it is benched anyway, because it is paid for, and there might be further delay in procuring good stock elsewhere, and trouble in inducing the shipper to take it back. And thus the chance for success gets its first jolt.

Frequently, after a poor season, the grower imagines that he can carry the weakened plants along and induce them to start into a vigorous growth for the second season, to make up for what they failed to yield the first season, incidentally saving him the cost of replanting with young stock. Almost invariably he dumps the whole lot as worthless, just when the space should be yielding the heaviest. Too many growers of small places hold to the idea that they must carry over stock plants and propagate their own stock of everything they grow. This is the age of the specialist, who can produce young stock of better quality and sell it for less money than it costs the average small grower to produce it. If the same space were devoted to finishing salable stock, considerably more than the cost of the young stock could be derived therefrom, and his trade would be better served.

There are still some growers who persist in using old soil where the very best of soil is none too good. Old rose or carnation soil is not fit to grow high grade carnations or chrysanthemums in. I realize that the soil problem is a serious one with many growers in the large cities, but new soil would have to cost considerably more than I have ever known to be paid, to offset the difference in the yield. And right along the same line is the question of manures and fertilizers. To skimp on fertilizer means to cut the yield. What is generally called overfeeding is not so much excess of fertilizer as it is improper application of fertilizer. A closer study of the effects of fertilizers under varying conditions would prevent much damage. Using propagating sand for several successive batches of cuttings is another source of much loss. The cost of sand in proportion to the value of the cuttings, does not justify the risk taken in using it for more than one batch. The most successful propagators follow the practice of renewing the sand after each batch of cuttings.

We are frequently asked how much help is required to run a given amount of glass, or rather with how little help should a manager be able to get along. There is perhaps no greater fallacy than to run an establishment with less help than is needed to keep everything right up to the minute at all times. Once you get behind, it is hard to catch up. As the season advances, the stock develops, new work continually comes crowding along and soon the stock suffers for want of attention and the season's yield is curtailed. We find this short help condition prevalent especially among the new beginners. They seem to think that they can be grower, salesman, designer and delivery boy all in one. Consequently, when there is a funeral in the town, the growing stock goes without watering until afternoon or evening and the cuttings may be shaded if they are not forgotten in the rush. So that in a season's run, the losses would easily pay for a good extra man. Some of these gluttons for work imagine that they can even stay up the most part of each night and do the firing, rendering themselves unfit to attend to

While we are on the question of help, it might not be amiss to say a word on the question of pay. Many employers seem to think that the less they can get a man to work for, the more money they are saving for themselves, a mistaken idea of course. Other more progressive employers have come to a realization that the more wages a man can make himself worth, the more profitable he is to his employer, and the best incentive is to let your men understand that their wages will be increased in proportion to their service. Once let an employee get the impression that he can progress no further in your establishment, and you have killed his ambition to render you more valuable service.

Why do so many of us put off starting the fires under the boilers until everything has had several good chills? Often the effects are seen for weeks after.

There are still some growers who persist in fumigating their houses with tobacco smoke, produced by burning the stems, just because they can be had for little or nothing. Some even pretend to believe this method to be more effective than the modern way of spraying or fumigating. Most of you will be able to recall many a case of burnt tips on the chrysanthemums, or a batch of ruined spireas, to say nothing of the heavy crop of aphids and thrips, which grew while you were unable to smoke for one reason or another at the proper time. Tobacco smoke produces the same effect on plants now, that it did in those days and that method of fumigating is one of the shining examples of false economy.

About letting the other fellow try out the novelties, how many growers there are who pride themselves on their exceeding wisdom in letting the other fellow get stung on the new things offered by the novelty sharks, when really they are letting their competitor skim off the cream before passing the skimmed milk on to them. The biggest profits are usually made off a winner during the first two seasons after dissemination. Take, for instance, the new rose Ophelia. Nearly every grower who bought it the first year was pleased with it and made money on it. This season, with the increased plantings, the price will likely be about the same as the other standard varieties. Next season Ophelia will probably be a drug on the market, and the grower who was so wise as not to hop onto the band-wagon until Ophelia had a good tryout, will be drinking the skimmed milk. We could cite parallel cases without number. We call to mind a conversation some years back, with a grower from a city about the size of Louisville. He asserted that he bought more of the novelties than all the other growers in his vicinity put together. Why, just that season he had spent about $15 on new carnations. When we informed him that our firm spent anywhere from $100 to $300 each year for new carnations, he nearly fell dead. It is a fact, that the successful growers are those who buy the novelties, and I firmly believe that their success is largely due to the fact that they make use of the improved varieties as they become available.

Too much stock is subjected to the delays and dangers attending freight shipments. Few if any plants are benefited by shipping, and every additional day in transit reduces their value more than the amount saved on express charges. We recall a shipment of palms, invoiced at nearly $200, which was caught in an early cold snap in November and completely ruined. Safety first should be your watchword in shipping plants.

There is perhaps no class of buildings that are worse neglected than greenhouses when it comes to painting. And this is in spite of the well known fact that not only does paint prolong the life of the greenhouse, but that plants thrive better in a light house than in a dark one. The only excuse ever offered is the cost of painting. I believe that the cost of painting a greenhouse every three years would be returned in the increased yield from the plants, to say nothing of the prolongation of the life of the house.

Every person connected with the trade should affiliate with the trade societies. The good accomplished by both national and local societies is such as to merit greater support than is now given. We sometimes hear the complaint that there are so many different trade societies and that it costs so much to belong to them all. Fact is, you can belong to them all for life, for less money than many of you have spent on some pet hobby, and they are doing you infinitely more good. And don't stay away from the conventions and flower shows on account of the expense. Here again I might say that the successful ones among you are those who take advantage of every opportunity to mingle with their fellow craftsmen and the larger the gathering, the greater the opportunity for learning.

There are many other forms of false economy, but I have pointed out those which are in daily use and which we all ought to know better than to practice. I have touched upon each one but briefly, feeling that a free discussion would perhaps do the most good. I thank you very kindly for your attention.

Propagating Houses.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

In a range of five greenhouses designed for growing a general assortment and stock of plants, and the general assortment of winter and spring flowering plants, including bulbs and roots for cut flowers and pot plants, a full assortment of all kinds of bedding plants, also palms, ferns and other foliage plants, can the propagation of these plants be successfully carried on in the different greenhouses in improvised ways and places or should there be a separate house to be used for propagating purposes only? If such a house is considered essential what would be the proper size and design for same? Any and all advice, information and instructions on this subject will be greatly appreciated.

Washington, D. C.

J. W.

The propagating house is one of the most essential parts of any greenhouse establishment, and while on many places a great deal of the propagating has to be done under improvised conditions in the plant houses, yet at the best it is only a makeshift.

On a place of the size under consideration, the propagating house would have to be in steady use during the fall, winter and early spring months; the rest of the year it could be used successfully for growing ferns or other pot plants.

Taking, as an example, the fall of the year, when the bedding plants require a large amount of propagation space, some of the cut flower or pot plants must be sacrificed to furnish this space and many times the conditions needed as the best for growing cut flowers or plants are not so good for propagating purposes. I have in mind a propagating house, which I consider, would be ideal for the establishment mentioned. It is 50 feet long, 12 feet wide and contains one three-foot bench built one foot away from the north wall next a 24 inch walk; then a four-foot bench and on the south front of this is another 24-inch walk. The roof is about even span with double ventilators. This house is built on the north side of a cut flower and plant growing range and has to turn out a large amount of stock to supply the establishment.

Three very important parts of a propagating house are that the benches be built at least one foot away from the side walls; next, that heating be arranged to furnish plenty of bottom heat and that each coil of pipe can be operated separately; also that ample ventilation be arranged for.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Col. J. D. Carmody, who has had the grip for several weeks is now on the way to recovery.

Cincinnati.MEDIOCRE SALES AND HEAVY SUPPLY.

Stock in the market is still too plentiful. Business is only fair and not strong enough to take up all offerings. As a result, a considerable amount of blooms find exit from the wholesale houses only by way of the ash-barrel. Colder weather the early part of this week will probably check the influx of stock. Chrysanthemums of all kinds, sizes and varieties are plentiful. Carnation offerings are larger than the present needs of the market require.

E. A. Foster had a beautiful display of flowers at his new store last week. The store proper was filled with an excellent assortment of chrysanthemums, which his large 9x23 cold air duct glass ice box with its small panes was filled with choice roses and carnations. The show was well attended.

The E. G. Hill Floral Co. gave their usual chrysanthemum show last week. The display was the best they had ever had. The attendance, too, was larger than it was any previous year. As an advertising proposition alone the affair was a big success.

The Eden Park Greenhouses, under the management of the City park department, showed a beautiful assortment of chrysanthemums and pompons last week. The attendance was large. H.

Rochester Florists' Association.

The feature of the meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association, held November 13, was the address of C. B. Ogsten, of the Kimball Conservatory, who told of the progress that had been made in eliminating the diseases of the chrysanthemum. He called attention to the fact that the carnations of the present time are far superior to those offered 10 years ago, the color and vitality having been greatly improved, with stems also much longer than in previous years.

There was an unusually large attendance at the meeting, with Charles Vick, president of the association, in the chair. Mr. Vick appointed a committee to draft resolutions on the death of Fred W. Vick, who was the first president of the association. The committee was made up of A. H. Salter, H. E. Wilson, Horace Head, John Dunbar and H. B. Stringer.

After Mr. Ogsten's address John Dunbar told of his recent visit to the Cottage Garden Co.'s establishment, Queens, N. Y. A discussion on the growing and marketing of carnations followed.

Washington, D. C.DULL TRADE FOLLOWS ELECTION.

Business is as good as can be expected following election. Stock is plentiful and prices are reasonable. Chrysanthemums are in good supply and prices range from $2.50 per 100 to $2 per dozen for the best. Carnations are exceptionally fine for this time of year. Roses are to be had at buyers' prices with little demand for them. Bouvardia is not plentiful and finds ready sale. Violets both single and double are of as good quality now as in midwinter and the call for them is good.

Leapley & Meyer, who have one of the smaller stores in this city but by no means a small business, report they are more than satisfied with their fall trade. They have invested in new automobiles, which indicates prosperity.

C. Brooks, one of the oldest florists on Fourteenth street, is to remove to larger quarters. The new number is 1528 on the same thoroughfare.

George C. Shaffer has been exceptionally busy the past week with wedding decorations. He has not missed a day without at least one order for a decoration.

The Washington Florist Co. is cutting some excellent roses of the varieties Ophelia, Sunburst, Hadley and Killarney.

Arthur Hankin, designer, is now a benedict, and is receiving the congratulations of the local craft.

Visitors: J. J. Gandy, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; S. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., also of that city. G. C. D.

Nashville, Tenn.

Trade continues to improve every day and may now be considered in full blast for the winter season. Flowers are plentiful and of most excellent quality, chrysanthemums just at this time being in the ascendancy for each and every occasion. Prices are very good and the outlook satisfactory. Roses are blooming profusely, some beautiful Ophelia being noted along with American Beauty, Russell, Aaron Ward, Kaiserin, Killarney and others. Violets have made their appearance and there promises to be a full supply. Lilies and valley are abundant and there are many pretty pot plants.

Charles H. Tritchler is showing a nice lot of chrysanthemums, both plants and cut flowers in the Saturday market. He, besides having a range of his own, is gardener for the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway and a member of the Railway Gardeners' Association, of which he was at one time president, and which held one of its annual meetings in this city.

Dan McIntyre continues quite ill at his home on the Hillsboro road. Another florist, who is down with bronchitis, is Joe Brown, proprietor of the Lischee nurseries and greenhouses. He has been ill for some weeks. M. C. D.

New York Florists' Club.

"Ladies' Night" was the feature of the meeting of the above organization in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building, Monday evening, November 13. The attendance numbered several hundred and the programme arranged proved most enjoyable. The business session which preceded the entertainment and dance was brief, the principal business transacted being the nomination of officers to be voted for at the December meeting, which resulted as follows: For president—Charles Schenck, Henry Weston, T. B. DeForest, Frank Pierson and G. E. M. Stumpp. For vice-president—J. H. Fiesser, Max Schling, W. G. Badgley and P. W. Popp. For Secretary—John Young, J. Harrison Dick, M. C. Ebel. For treasurer—W. C. Rickards, Wallace R. Pierson and J. McHutchison. For trustees—Roman J. Irwin, John Canning, Alfred Kottmiller, C. H. Brown, Christian Madsen and Victor Dorval.

San Francisco.BUSINESS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Business is still going along at a very satisfactory rate, with plenty of stock of all kinds to be had. Up to the present writing we have had no killing frosts, so that there is still an abundance of all out-door stock. There is rather a large supply of roses just now of all grades. American Beauties are improving right along, as are also Russells. Both sell equally well. The supply of other standard varieties is fully equal to the demand. Chrysanthemums were much more in evidence the past week than at any other time during the season. This is no doubt due to the sharp falling off in the shipping business. The out-of-town call for this flower ceased all at once, owing to the fact that florists in other sections of the coast, who usually depend upon California grown chrysanthemums, are now cutting enough of their home-grown stock to supply all demands for local consumption. However, the shippers have all done a splendid trade this season and have no cause to complain. Jennie Nonin and Wm. Turner are the leading whites just now. Helen Frick and Chieftain, the two most popular pinks. May Hunter is about gone. There are enormous quantities of Bonnaffon to be had. In pompons, Lillian Doty and Klondyke are very popular. There is little if any demand for singles. There is a very large supply of violets, although large quantities are shipped daily out of the city. Carnations have made very rapid improvement of late and some exceptionally fine stock is being received. There has been no advance in prices, however. Cattleyas are offered rather freely and clean up well. A few snapdragons are coming along and are rapidly disposed of. There are still enough dahlias for all needs, but they lack the fine texture of a few weeks ago, and in a few days more will be a thing of the past. In pot plants, cyclamens, begonias and some chrysanthemums are being sent in, but owing to the very limited call, the supply is small. The green market is keeping up well with sufficient stock for all demands. The handlers of this stock report shipping trade as very good.

NOTES.

While the weather was not very favorable quite a large attendance was on hand at the regular meeting of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society. Much business of importance was transacted and several interesting exhibits were on display. The feature of the evening was an illustrated lecture on "Forestry in California" by Prof. M. B. Pratt. This proved very instructive and Prof. Pratt showed himself thoroughly versed in the subject of forestry.

A splendid chrysanthemum show was held in Turlock, November 3. George N. Starr, the leading florist of that place, was the largest exhibitor in the commercial classes. The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, had a grand lot of flowers on display, but this exhibit was not for competition. There was quite a large display of dahlias and other seasonable flowers also. The hall was prettily decorated and the show was a success financially.

We have been advised by Mark Ebel, manager of the Sacramento flower show, that everything is in readiness for the exhibition. He says the quality of stock will prove an eye-opener to all visitors. Quite a number of the trade from this city and surrounding counties will make the trip and help the good work along. The show will be held at 612 J street and the entire proceeds will be given to charity.

Since the sudden decline in the chrysanthemum shipping, most of the Japanese growers have found that they have more flowers than the demand, and as a consequence have pooled their stock as they did in former years to obtain better prices. All this stock is disposed of at the market on Bush street.

The chrysanthemum show held at Roseville was a success in every way. Owing to the lateness of the date of holding the show there was not the variety that one would expect, but nevertheless it was very creditable. It is planned to hold one next year, but it will be held about the end of October.

Richard Cruikshank, of Redwood City, was a recent visitor returning from Santa Rosa, where he was one of the judges at the recent flower show.

To persons interested in dahlias, a visit to the Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, at San Mateo, is always of the most instructive character. From a small beginning this establishment has grown to be one of the best known on the coast in their particular line. Mrs. E. Lymbery, the owner, always extends a hearty welcome to all visitors. Her collection of collarettes, both standard varieties and her own seedlings, would be hard to improve upon. The product of these gardens is shipped all over the country and the business is rapidly extending year after year.

John Riley, long known as the father of the park system of the city of San Jose, passed away last week at a very advanced age. It was through the efforts of Mr. Riley that San Jose boasts the number of public squares and parks. For many years he held the position of superintendent of city parks. He was held in the greatest esteem by the citizens of that city and his passing is deeply regretted.

Martin Ross, of San Mateo, says he is well pleased with the way business is opening up at his new establishment in that city. Since purchasing the old Herbert G. Hardy range, he has completely rebuilt and remodelled the premises and the place is a most attractive one. Martin is well known to all of us as a splendid grower and his stock shows it.

Ferrari Bros. are rapidly getting their orchid houses into shape. They have a grand lot of phalaenopsis, of which a great deal is expected this season. Their cattleyas are also showing a fine, vigorous growth. Their large range of rose houses is giving a large daily cut, nearly all of which is disposed of in this city.

This city was well represented at the flower show of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society. The trade from all the bay counties who visited the show were of the opinion that it was the finest ever given by the society. Frank D. Pelicano, of this city, was one of the judges in the cut bloom section.

H. Plath has returned from the convention of the California Nurserymen's Association, at Santa Barbara. He reports the meeting as being very well attended and great interest being manifested by the visiting members.

A. C. Stein reports trade as very good, especially in large decorations, of which this firm has had several in the last week. A very attractive display is maintained at all times in this store.

The railroad commission has authorized C. C. Morse & Co., the well known seedsmen, to sell 2,290 shares of stock at a price not less than par, for cash, or in payment for services.

F. C. Burns is still bringing some grand dahlias to this market. He grows Geisha to perfection and has no difficulty in disposing of all his stock.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS IN HEAVY SUPPLY.

This market, like most of the others throughout the country, has suffered a set-back during the past two weeks, the cause of which is hard to determine, the main factor though undoubtedly being the very large supply of chrysanthemums which in turn is having its effect upon most of the other lines of stock. Carnations, which are of very good quality, are coming in more freely, but do not bring the prices they did up to a fortnight ago. The only article holding its own is lily of the valley. While we always experience a little let-up during the chrysanthemum season, we do not remember of conditions to equal those of the present time. With a dark, wet Sunday and snowing the best part of Monday of this week, winter was duly ushered in and we now have hopes for the best season ever.

NOTES.

J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., have the order for annual charity ball for the Infants' hospital to be held at the Auditorium December 7. The north half of the large hall, instead of the southern half, as in former years, will be used and with the large stage, which will be transformed into a garden where suppers will be served, there will be more chance for elaborate decorations. This suits A. T. Kellner, who will execute the work fine, for that is his hobby, and incidentally, business.

F. Craneheld, secretary of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society of Madison, Wis., in a letter to the local florists' club asked that they select two members to read papers at the annual meeting of his society to be held December 12-14 at Madison. Besides these, he also expects a large attendance of florists, as the club as a body affiliated with the horticultural society about a year ago.

Ernst F. Noehl, representing S. S. Skidelsky & Co., Philadelphia, arrived on his initial visit to this city November 12. He says that business for the past eight weeks has been highly satisfactory, and he finds most florists enjoying prosperity.

The stork stopped long enough to leave a fine baby girl at the home of Archie McDonald and wife October 31. It is the first heir, and this with the result of the presidential election, is the cause for the "smile that won't come off."

The Heitman-Oestreicher Co. is featuring large Jerusalem cherries in 7 and 8-inch pots, which are well berried and highly colored at this time.

BUYERS PRICES OR THE DUMP.

Warm weather the first part of the week forced so much stock into the market that the wholesalers were in a quandary to find a means of disposing of it. Roses, carnations and chrysanthemums were in such abundance that the best went at buyers' offers—the remainder to the rubbish pile. Chrysanthemums Bonaffon, Appleton and Townsend sold at $6 to $8 per 100. This was the top price for select stock, the balance going as low as $10 per 1,000. Carnations, good in quality, were hard to move at prices as low as $6 per 1,000. Roses are affected by the warm weather and the quality is below standard. One wholesaler offered them in quantity at $1.50 per 1,000, without any returns. Pompons are plentiful and of fine quality and sell well at prices ranging from 12½ to 25 cents per bunch. Violets and sweet peas are moving satisfactorily. Some very fine Spencers are to be seen. Paper Whites and calla lilies are arriving and Harrisii are in good demand. Lily of the valley is inclined to be scarce, but the local supply is equal to requirements. Orchids are none too plentiful and are priced at $6 per dozen. Greens clean up well.

NOTES.

The spring flower show committee has made splendid progress—everything has been done that can be taken care of to date. The premium committee has been very successful and has secured some valuable prizes. The general public also are much interested and seem anxious to make this a most complete success.

At the meeting of the florists' club, November 9, it was decided to discontinue holding meetings in the Odd Fellows' building and the trustees will look for more convenient quarters.

C. A. Kuehn featured some very fine calla lilies during the past week. His large supply of chrysanthemums of fine quality was also a feature at his establishment.

W. C. Smith, Wholesale Floral Co. are showing some exceptionally well grown pompons and Paper Whites. They report large sales but prices rule low.

The Florist and Nursery Employes' Union, at its regular meeting, November 6, decided to postpone nominations of officers until its next meeting.

Fred H. Weber has been kept busy with orders for decorations. J. Witek and F. C. Weber also report good business in this line.

J. Jacobs, of A. L. Randall Co., was a recent visitor, calling on the trade here and in East St. Louis and Belleville, Ill.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. are meeting with a ready sale on Spencer sweet peas. The quality is very fine.

Max Rotter, the north side florist, reports normal business. He is a daily visitor to the market.

George H. Angermueller reports excellent trade in supplies at his always busy establishment.

H. G. Berning is receiving large quantities of Christmas decorations.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS LEAD THE MARKET.

This city is experiencing a glut of chrysanthemums, which arrive in immense quantities, due to warm weather, but a cold wave, which arrived November 11, and which, from all appearances, will stay for a while, will help to hold them back. Roses are plentiful and notwithstanding the hearty supply of chrysanthemum prices held firm for good stock. Carnations are getting more plentiful. Other offerings are sweet peas, violets, lily of the valley and snapdragons. Pot plants sell practically on sight.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes reports a very successful week's business, there being numerous good wedding and funeral orders. He is cutting a large crop of chrysanthemums, together with a number of good carnations and white and yellow narcissi. Chrysanthemum plants and red begonias are good stock.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is cutting heavily on chrysanthemums and prospects for a good crop of carnations are better. This firm has received the first of their two new Studebaker cars. The Studebaker seems to make a hit with the trade in this city, the only rival being the Ford.

H. Kusik & Co. report heavy receipts of chrysanthemums and pompons. They also have a big stock of local grown roses and carnations. They are now handling cut lilies, which are coming with tight buds.

T. J. Noll & Co. are handling a flood of chrysanthemums. Roses are plentiful and carnations improving. This firm has received one shipment of Christmas supplies.

The Rosery reports good business in all lines. This firm had the K. of C. decoration last week, which was quite elaborate. They are handling fine chrysanthemums.

Wm. Foith cleaned up on his chrysanthemums before the glut came and has his late varieties now in fine shape. His carnations look promising.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports business good. They are preparing for their Christmas trade and getting supplies in shape.

The Costello-Moore Floral Co. are offering their store for sale, other business making this necessary.

Miss Lou E. Boggess reports poor trade during election time, but says it is swinging back into the same old stride.

The Elmhurst Landscape & Nursery Co. is doing a good business in landscaping and is prepared for a good trade.

A. F. Barbe is cleaning up well on chrysanthemums. Roses and carnations here are better in supply.

Biederman & Son report good chrysanthemum sales and a brisk demand in wedding orders.

The Oakwood Floral Co. is bringing in sweet peas with stems from eight to 14 inches long. E. J. B.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Thursday, the 19th, was worse than any "Friday, the 13th," ever heard or read of, but in spite of all this, 22 loyal florists turned out to visit the establishments in the vicinity of Lancaster. Five automobiles were used for the conveying act, and every one enjoyed the trip.

The first call was made at the establishment of Rudolph Nagel, the "chrysanthemum king" of this section. His stock certainly warranted his holding the title, and he has all of the good ones in fine shape, along with a few that are not living up to their reputation, but this is always the case where one buys all of the novelties. His pompons are exceptionally good, and one can fairly hear the money rattling into his pockets. Geraniums are grown as a side line; they used to be the whole line, but like some others, he finds that he can make more out of his glass with other stock, so we found sweet peas and mignonette being started to take the place now occupied with chrysanthemums instead of with geraniums as last season.

As geranium cuttings were not so interesting to the party we skipped the establishments of A. M. Herr, Peter Brown and F. W. Ritchy and went to the B. F. Barr greenhouses, where more chrysanthemums were found, and some of the finest in the city. Here we found everything pertaining to the growing end of a retail establishment. Three houses of roses in the pink of condition, three houses of carnations coming along nicely, sweet peas, daisies and every imaginable species of pot plants. A number of houses have been remodeled, several new ones added, and the whole place has that appearance of prosperity that beams from the countenance of the proprietor.

From here we went to the establishment of Thos. R. Fries, where stock is grown for the markets in great variety, and grown well. This place turns out more stock in a year than anything in this vicinity, as he buys considerable, puts it in the house, and makes a turn-over every month at least, sometimes oftener.

Next door is the Wheatland Greenhouses, under the management of the writer, with J. L. Lockard as the grower, and as this stock was very much deteriorated, Mr. Lockard deserves much credit for the fine condition we found it in on this visit. The output this season will be chrysanthemums, carnations and snapdragons.

President Harry Schroyer's range was the next in line, and here we found the storeman's usual assortment, with chrysanthemums in the majority, as there are many things which cannot be grown on account of the glass being continually darkened by the smoke from the railroad. Secretary Frank Kohr's establishment was close by, and here we found sweet peas, some chrysanthemums and calendulas started for the shipping trade, the balance of the place being devoted to stock for his market requirements.

Enos Kohr was not down on the list, but received a visit all the same, and here we found over 40,000 carnation plants as good as I believe there are any equal number in the United States, for a careful inspection failed to find one plant missing or any dead leaves. They were like his chrysanthemums, clean all the way up and all the way down. Chrysanthemums were not grown extensively, but what he had, were immense flowers on 10-foot stems. If there are not a few houses added to his establishment next summer, it will not be the fault of this winter's crop.

The next place visited was that of Henry D. Rohrer, under the supervision of his two sons, Harry K. (the treasurer of the club) and Abraham K. Carnations here are all planted into solid beds, and they looked perfectly at home and healthy to a degree. Chrysanthemums are also grown in large quantities, and a good proportion of these are Bonnaffon, with a small house devoted to testing out novelties, and here are being grown a number intended for our show, which will be held under the management of Harry K. Rohrer, who, unlike most managers, is willing to assume part of the work. They also have a house of myosotis for cut flowers and primulas in pots by the thousands. There is never any idle space in this establishment, one crop following another in rapid succession.

Lemon Landis, the ex-secretary, grows a variety of stock for the stores and ships quite a lot during the year. He has roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, etc., and several houses of smilax, the only ones in this section. Everything looked good here, almost as good as the proprietor.

J. P. Seibold and Mr. Wissler were next visited and we found that Mr. Seibold has gotten out of the geranium business entirely and has his place devoted to chrysanthemums and cut flower stock and the place looks more like a money making proposition than when it was planted to geraniums for stock. It will not be long before some more geranium growers drop out, if they try to sell at the price, current the past few years. Mr. Wissler has bought the establishment of the late Geo. Goldbach and is working hard to get it into shape for the winter. He has the usual assortment of cut flowers, with several houses devoted to calla lilies, which always were a paying crop here.

Coming back to the center of the city we dispersed in various directions until the evening meeting. J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., at the solicitation of Mrs. Albert M. Herr, gave his lecture on "Flowers from Snow to Snow" before the civic branch of the Iris Club in the afternoon. At 6:15 Harry Schroyer and wife, Albert M. Herr and wife, Harry K. Rohrer, and Ira Landis met Mr. Thilow at the Hotel Brunswick and made up a little dinner party for him. Mr. Thilow gave his lecture on "The Canadian Rockies and Their Flowers" before the florists' club at eight o'clock, and as wives and sweethearts were invited, there was quite a good delegation of the real flower lovers (the women), and the lecture was appreciated more than words could express, although an attempt was made in a formal vote of thanks to Mr. Thilow.

The business meeting proper was practically nothing and as this was the last regular meeting before the flower show, which will be held November 9-11, a special meeting will be called for the distribution of tickets to the members (all members being entitled to free tickets for themselves and their families if they have paid their dues for the current year), and such other matters as may come up.

We were fortunate to have with us on our visiting trip and at the club meeting S. S. Pennock of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., James Brown, of Coatsville, and the omnipresent T. J. Nolan of The King Construction Co. These three are regular gloom chasers, and helped wonderfully to make us forget the clouds and rain during the trip around the city.

STOCK ABUNDANT IN ALL LINES.

Business is meeting with considerable reaction; where a short time ago it was almost impossible to procure stock, today there are abundant quantities in all lines. Chrysanthemums predominate, and for specimen blooms, this market was never better supplied. White and yellow Turner are of exceptional quality; pink and white Chieftain, Collier, Bessie Dale, Touset and Miss Beech are all good enough for exhibition purposes, while of the mediocre varieties there are enough to keep the cut rate and department stores supplied. Roses, which are of exceptional quality, are plentiful and good prices are being obtained. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Lady Stanley, Sunburst, Richmond and the Killarneys are all being received in good shape. Cecile Brunner and George Elgar are not plentiful enough to supply the demand. Violets, which a week ago advanced $1 per hundred, have again receded to 75 cents. Longiflorum have dropped from $15 to $12 per hundred. Cattleyas have advanced to $35 per 100. Carnations are listed at $3 to $5, while prices on general stock remain as last listed.

A visit to the estate of Carl Grobba at Mimico was a revelation. His greenhouses are well filled with up-to-date stock. Five hundred thousand palms, ranging from seedlings to well matured stock, show the careful attention given them. Mr. Grobba is taking advantage of the duties and war tax imposed on this class of goods, and it is convincing to retailers that it is cheaper to purchase at home. Three houses of cyclamens, over 10,000 plants in sizes from 3½-inch pots to 8-inch pans, all look healthy and flourishing. Three car loads of bulbs have just been received and are being planted for the coming season's business. This work is handled very easily, as there is hardly a more up-to-date establishment on the continent. All walks are concrete, with sufficient room to enable the movement of hand trucks, and where three or four men are usually required to move the bulb boxes, they are now loaded on the truck and moved to the cold storage plant direct. The coal proposition here, as with others, is proving quite a problem; while in former years soft coal (run of mine) was sided at $3.50 per ton, 15 cars last week cost $6 per ton. This week the price has advanced 50 to 90 per cent. Electric light is used lavishly and late orders can easily be filled. The recreation room comprising billiard and card tables has proven a good means of keeping the men contented, while a large addition for dancing purposes is being contemplated. Perennial plants are now being grown in quantities. All are in frames with a good wide walk between. Over-head irrigation system allows the work to be carried on at all seasons. Another range of houses has been started. The material is ready to be placed in position. H. G. D.

Newport, R. I.

The garden of Henry A. C. Taylor, laid out four years ago, is now well established under the able management of William McKay, gardener. It comprises about four acres of ground, on which are located the gardener's cottage, garage, workhouse, greenhouses and numerous frames, all heated by one complete central hot water system. The garden is surrounded by a high wall, which aids in giving protection and support to trained peach, pear and plum trees. The entrance is through arches of climbing roses supported by a trellis which leads to a sunken garden, centrally located in front of the main entrance to the greenhouses, several in number. These are up-to-date in construction and are subdivided into sections, all of the available space being used in the growing of strong, healthy stocks of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums, snapdragons, lilies, bulbous stock in variety, palms, ferns, crotons and bedding plants. In the section devoted to fruits are melons growing in succession, some now ready to pick; also a section of the vineyard devoted to Gros Coleman grapes looks tempting with large luscious bunches now ripening. Two houses planted with nectarines four years ago have made remarkable growth and proven prolific. These houses run east and west and are planted with one row of trees through the center, five feet apart, and trained to a trellis running north and south that extends to the top of the houses and across the width, leaving room for passage on the sides. The varieties of other stock are as follows: Roses—Ophelia, White Killarney and Hadley. Carnations—White Wonder, Mrs. Ward and Winsor. Snapdragons—Nelrose Pink, Giant Yellow and White. Chrysanthemums—Col. Appleton, Bonaffon and Mrs. J. Mitchell. Ferns—Adiantum Farleyense, Gloriosum and nephrolepis in variety.

The villa site, which is across the street from the garden, has a handsome entrance that is distinguished by having the driveway lined on each side with stately trees that form an imposing arch. On the lower lawn and located so as to present a view from the house, is erected a marble temple imported from Italy, representing art and music. This is approached from the sides by a wide grass walk lined with tall, trimmed beech trees. The grounds are handsomely laid out and several large copper leaf beech trees add to the general effect.

Rutherford, N. J.

For the admirer of fine flowering and foliage plants and a great exhibit of nursery stock, a visit to New York is incomplete unless a short side trip is taken to Rutherford, N. J. We believe it was a good town away back in the days "befo' de wah," as one of our colored friends expresses it, but the two great horticultural establishments that have since grown up there, have made it a place worth looking up on the map.

Rutherford can be reached, from New York, in about 15 minutes by the steam cars, but if the visitor is willing to take a little more time he can take the Hudson tube to Hoboken; then the Passaic surface line, along the route of which there is picturesque scenery, not the least being the Hackensack river and its great expanse of meadows.

The ranges and nurseries of both Bobbink & Atkins and the Julius Roehrs Co. are just across the street, one from the other, so it is just like killing two birds with one stone to visit Rutherford. We had to start at one or the other, and having alighted on their side we first visited the Julius Roehrs Company. It is unnecessary to here enlarge on the enterprise and ability of the late Julius Roehrs. "Peace hath its victories no less than war," also, its heroes, and he was one of them, and the business he established is a fine monument to his memory. Under the management of his sons, the business is being kept up to the high standard he established, and in the details, as might be expected, new features are being introduced.

Though possibly best known to many as growers of exotics or hot house plants, this firm has an extensive nur-

ery well stocked with conifers and deciduous trees. Among many other features, the rhododendrons are very noteworthy. They are also extensive importers of bay trees and boxwoods. At any time in the summer and early autumn the exhibit of large bay trees on the extensive grounds in front of their range is very fine. As the cool weather comes on, it is but natural that the visitor should be more attracted by the greenhouse stock, of which there is an abundance of the finest quality. The orchid section alone is a large range and turns out annually a great quantity of bloom as well as flowering plants. Aside from the orchids, if they have a particular specialty, it is the begonia. Long known as growers of the finest Begonias de Lorraine, Turnford Hall and Glory of Cincinnati, they have in recent years taken up the new variety, Mrs. J. A. Peterson. At the present time their stock of this variety is large and remarkably fine, and even at this early date, they are filling many orders. The croton section is another noteworthy feature, a great variety of fine plants being seen. They are very strong in Adiantum Farleyense, there being several houses of it in the finest condition. Having always been successful with camellias they keep up a fine stock. Euphorbias and many other plants, that if not new are novel, are found at this range. There is a great stock of palms and ferns. Several houses are devoted exclusively to tall palms, some of which are 20 feet high. A concrete garage 60x200 feet, for their many automobiles, is now under construction. The range is superintended by Julius Roehrs; the nursery by his brother, Rudolph. Edward Roehrs, another brother, has just recovered from a month's wrestle with typhoid fever, but as a compensating feature, Edward Roehrs, Jr., joined the family, October 16, he being Number 1. Mother and child are doing well.

In writing of Bobbink & Atkins it is as well to say at the beginning, that they are both comparatively young men who have most emphatically made good. Their reputation as nurserymen has gone far and wide. Some years ago, the writer was a resident of Washington, D. C. During that time, extensive improvements were made at the White House. To be exact, it was during President Roosevelt's administration, and he had such a large family that something had to be done to accommodate them. A low building adjoining the main one was erected for offices and as a crowning effect a large number of handsome bay trees were placed along the coping. One day an inquisitive visitor asked a colored man employed at the White House—in those days a colored man could work there—who furnished those fine trees. "Bobbink & Atkins," was the reply. "Who are Bobbink & Atkins?" was the next question. "Well, boss, I don't know much about them, but I think they must be great men to grow such trees, go up to Rutherford, New Jersey, and see them." We are unable to state whether or not that particular visitor took the advice, but it is certain that very many people have been going to "see them" and have come away with the impression that they are "great men." Great in energy; the knowledge of their business and their grasp of opportunities. It may seem to the casual reader that this is hardly the time of year to write of a nursery, but the fall is a very busy season for nurserymen, and we always find it so with Bobbink & Atkins.

A feature on approaching their place by trolley from New York, is the immense stock of evergreen trees and shrubs that are planted, with fine effect, on a gentle slope. Being also landscape gardeners, there are features in the arrangements of their nursery that are very attractive. And, in writing of landscape work, it may be stated that they not only do an immense business, but likewise grow almost every tree, shrub or herbaceous plant that is required in such work. Hardy flowering shrubs and plants are among their specialties and there is seldom a spring, summer or autumn show in New York at which they are not exhibitors. Having thus outlined their nursery business, we may refer to their activity as florists.

They have an extensive range which is filled with stock, noteworthy being a fine collection of palms. They are extensive growers of Cocos Weddelliana and have a number of houses filled with it, or more appropriate, devoted to it, for it is a good seller. Crotons, dracenas, hydrangeas, cyclamens and Pandanus Veitchii are also noteworthy features of their range. They have ferns in variety, in fact, we believe they aim to grow nearly all the greenhouse plants that the market calls for. A large number of auto trucks are used in their business and they employ many men. They have large and well furnished offices where a considerable force of both men and women are constantly employed.

Buffalo, N. Y.

STOCK GOOD WITH FAIR DEMAND.

Trade in this city has been very fair, considering the excitement due to election. Stock is plentiful and of good quality. The flower in demand, of course, is the chrysanthemum and all of the best varieties are on sale with the quality that none can complain of. Pompons are plentiful and in any color or shade that may be desired. In roses American Beauty, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, Milady, Lady Alice Stanley, Shawyer, Killarney, Ward, Sweetheart, or any other kind are to be had and of the finest. Prices range from $1 to $4 per dozen, except for American Beauties. Orchids, lily of the valley, gardenias, sweet peas and some exceptionally fine calendulas, all combined, well enable the most particular to get what they want, whether for corsage, basket, wedding, debutante, or any other occasion. Notwithstanding election local florists were busy. Several weddings, debutante teas and receptions have kept all busy. Funeral work, which all look forward to, has helped to use up the short stemmed stock.

NOTES.

John F. Malone, commissioner of parks and public buildings, with his great foresight, and appreciating the efforts of Superintendent Donaldson, of North park, Superintendent Elbers, of South park, and Superintendent Fitzwilliams, of Humboldt park, in the magnificent stock of chrysanthemums and other flowers grown in the park conservatories, and appreciating their beauty and the care taken in their production, conceived the idea of having an exhibition of the city's plants and flowers where everyone could enjoy them, consequently Elmwood music hall was turned over to the three superintendents to do their best and they have done so. The exhibition opened November 11 to continue one week. The attendance on Sunday was about 40,000 during the afternoon and evening. The grand organ, which was known the world over as the organ in the Temple of Music at the Pan-American exposition, and presented to the city by J. N. Adam, late mayor, and installed in Elmwood music hall, is also an added feature to the chrysanthemum show each afternoon and evening. Commissioner Malone is to be commended for his work.

It is with sorrow that we hear of the death of Fred W. Vick, of Rochester, long known as a grower of ability and one worthy of the name of Vick, so widely known in the United States. He was well known and highly esteemed by the members of the Buffalo Florists' Club, who extend their sympathy to the family.

Buffalo's "Fifth avenue" is to be a reality and Delaware avenue is the street. Florists are going to be the first to invade the territory. Two are going to locate there in the near future. The location is of the best and the success of their venture is assured.

The W. F. Kasting Co. expect formally to open their new wholesale house in the near future. They have been doing business there for a month, but not as they will when all things are installed from the telephone to the ice box.

S. A. Anderson, this year, as is the custom, had his chrysanthemum exhibit at his store beginning on Wednesday. It was crowded daily and appreciated by all.

OBITUARY.

Thomas Chaplin Joy.

Thomas Chaplin Joy, head of the Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., founded in that city 38 years ago, and which has steadily grown to its present large proportions, being recognized as one of the leading florist firms in the south, died suddenly while walking in the rose garden at his home, November 10. Death came without warning, as he appeared in the best of health and spirits and was talking to his son, Harold, at the time. Heart disease, according to physicians, caused his death. Mr. Joy was 54 years of age.

The Late Thomas C. Joy.

The deceased was born in Canada, but when 16 years of age, located in Nashville, with his parents, the father, Thomas S. Joy, who survives his son, one of the pioneer florists of the city, having purchased a tract of 90 acres, which is now improved city property. Both father and son were practical florists and from the start made rapid progress in their business, both in floriculture and gardening. Their first florist shop was directly opposite the present splendid establishment of the firm, 601 Church street.

In 1887, Thomas C. Joy was married to Miss Susie McAllister of Nashville, who survives him; also seven children, Thomas H., the progressive business manager of the Joy Floral Co.; Harold M. and Edwin Joy; and five daughters, Misses Lillian, Nellie, Marion, Ruth and Susie. Up to the time of the death of Thomas C. Joy there were four generations of Thomas Joy, the middle initial alone being the distinction.

The deceased at the time of his death was president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, which organization owed much of its efficiency and success to his influence and was also prominently identified with other leading state and national floricultural organizations, among the latter being the American Carnation Society, of which he was a member.

Funeral services were held Sunday, November 12, from St. Ann's church of which he had been a member for a number of years, the following serving as pallbearers: Active—Frank Ullrich, Edward Beals, Rolfe Smith, Ridley Lisch, Will Lokey, Kage Beals, James Lisch and L. O. Burroughs; honorary, all brothers-in-law of the deceased, C. B. Harrison, J. F. Horn, John Glenn, Paul Sloan, Ed. McAllister, Burge McAllister, Walter McAllister, James McAllister, Dr. J. C. Loftin, David Cordell, Andrew Marlin and Samuel Bradley.

Mr. Joy was held in high esteem by all who knew him and had a host of friends who sympathize deeply with the family in their bereavement. The florists of Nashville and the state association passed resolutions of respect to his memory and the Elks of which he was a member held services. The floral offerings were numerous and the most beautiful ever seen in the city.

Fred W. Vick.

Fred W. Vick, well known horticulturist of Rochester, N. Y., died at his home in that city November 12. Mr. Vick was born at Rochester in 1855 and received his early education in the private and public schools of the city. He began his career as florist and grower with the late James Vick, and during the last few years with this firm he was superintendent of the greenhouses. It was while with this firm he was instrumental in introducing Vick's Caprice rose. About 1892 he with his brother, E. H. Vick, and John Hill formed the Vick & Hill Co. He remained at the head of this concern until about three years ago when he disposed of his interest and took up the growing of flowers for the wholesale market. He introduced Vick's Daybreak and Purity asters as well as several other good varieties of flowers, among them Vick's ruffled petunia. He was one of the charter members of the Rochester Florist Association and its president for the first three years. He was also a member of the Society of American Florists, holding the office of vice-president in 1910 and for years president of the Fifty-fourth regiment band, the leading band of Western New York. He was also a member of Genesee lodge, F. & A. M. and Monroe Commandery Knights Templar.

The funeral services were held November 15 and were largely attended by the trade, the floral tributes from all sections of the country being numerous and beautiful.

A. B. Macpherson.

A. B. Macpherson, president of the Macpherson & Edward Company, of Springfield, Ill., prominent in general park affairs and horticulture in central Illinois, died November 11, after a short illness.

LINCOLN, ILL.—Ed. Gullett returned last week from an extensive visit in Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma and Missouri in the interests of Gullett & Sons of which firm he is a partner.

OTTAWA, ONT.—Greenhouse stock is showing the effect of the 1916 season. Hydrangeas, solanums, carnations and begonias are making slow growth at most of the ranges. Chrysanthemums look well, indications pointing to a good crop.

DES MOINES, IA.—We find we were in error in stating that the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. had acquired the business of the Alpha Floral Co., this business having been taken over by A. J. Zwart and Jas. S. Wilson Jr., formerly vice-president of the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. The new proprietors of the Alpha Floral Co. purchased the entire business from Gus Pappas, including lease on the present location at Seventh and Walnut streets, to run 10 years from completion of the new building, soon to be erected.

COAL shortage is bothering the big greenhouse men notwithstanding contracts, dealers claiming they are unable to secure cars.

BOXWOOD is coming along in good order. Freight guarantees when stock travels over three lines complicates the difficulty in moving this article.

AZALEAS continue to dribble in a few at a time. Over 2,000 cases lay on the border docks near Ghent for three weeks, one lone military inspector handling the plants where 20 were needed.

P. M. READ, secretary of the Pot Makers Credit Association, says all potteries of the country are well equipped and willing to do more business and that the cause of the delay in filling orders is mainly attributable to the situation with regard to labor

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society held two sessions in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., during the chrysanthemum show. President Pennock called the first meeting to order at 2:30 p. m., and there was a full attendance. Provision was made to hold the next annual exhibition and rose show in Philadelphia next March in Horticultural hall. The prizes allotted for the show included $750 for plants and flowers; $1,000 for rose gardens; $2,000 for cut flowers. The schedule committee is composed of E. Allen Peirce, Waltham, Mass.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., and J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass. A letter was read from John Young, secretary of the National Flower Show committee, inviting the American Rose Society to join with them in an exhibition in St. Louis in 1918.

Kallen & Lunnemann, Boskoop, Holland, have sent six separate specimens of roses for test in the rose test garden, and it was directed to have these go to Hartford, Conn.

At the evening meeting which was called at 8:00 p. m., there was an attendance of over 50. E. Allen Peirce outlined the work of the show, and a letter was read from the Philadelphia chamber of commerce, inviting the American Rose Society to come to Philadelphia, the "world's greatest workshop and convention city," promising to give every co-operation for its success. The following gentlemen spoke in favor of the exhibition going to Philadelphia: Adolph Farenwald, J. G. Eisele, Robt. Simpson, Wm. Kleinheinz, P. Brown, Mark Mills, John Dodds, A. B. Cartledge, W. R. Pierson, S. S. Skidelsky, W. A. Manda and others. The guarantee fund as pledged so far is $4,565, over 50 firms and individuals making up the amount.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Shipping Difficulties.

The express and freight service in the vicinity of Philadelphia, Pa., is giving all plant and cut flower men great concern. Frank P. Myers, of Myers & Sampmann, Chestnut Hill, Pa., is very outspoken as to his bad treatment by the companies. The situation, he says, is becoming serious, it being simply impossible to get any correct information from the point of destination as to when flowers are delivered. Complaints of losses receive no attention whatever.

A number of the larger shippers have taken the matter up with the interstate commerce commission, and if this is done at all important points by members of the craft, it will not only be the means of securing better service, which is so essential to the cut flower trade, but will also compel the companies to have all claims adjusted in a business-like manner. One large shipper in Philadelphia took the matter up with the interstate commerce commission and was asked to make affidavits to his claims and forward them to the commission, who would see that the matter had immediate attention.

On behalf of the Adams Express Co., H. L. Kirk, general eastern claim agent, and W. E. Heatwig, local agent in this department at Philadelphia, stated that on account of a recent reorganization and enlarging of the force having this branch of the service in charge, the work had gotten considerably behind, but that they were working overtime and would soon be able to adjust all back claims and then be in a position to keep up and investigate new cases with dispatch. In every case, where, after investigation, it was found the company was at fault, the instructions of the company to its agents were to pay all reasonable claims, and Messrs. Kirk and Heatwig said they felt sure that there would be very little cause for complaint on this score in the future.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, in speaking of their dealings with express companies, said they were sometimes three to four months in returning payments from C. O. D. collections, while "Uncle Sam" returned his almost by the next mail. He added that there was difficulty in shipping by freight in the various classifications necessary. Chiffons, wheat sheaves, doves, made up artificial flower wreaths, and much other first class freight is now charged three times the first class rate for carriage. If such stock is packed with other second and third class freight and marked third class, the shippers are liable to a fine and imprisonment. Many orders have to be packed in three cases and marked first, second and third class; in fact, this firm has to employ an extra traffic man in the packing department to see to the proper sorting of the goods to comply with the interstate commerce regulations.

Between these regulations, and the frequent embargoes put on from time to time, as freights become congested, being in business is—"just one fine day after another." K.

Butterfield Elected to Legislature.

S. S. Butterfield, well-known attorney of Oklahoma City, for many years a contributor to the columns of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, prominently identified with the horticultural interests of Oklahoma and secretary of the State Civic Improvement Association, was elected to the legislature at the recent election by a majority of more than 500 and will represent his district in the lower house for the next two years.

Holland Steamship Inspection.

A cable from Rotterdam, Holland, states that the Holland-American Liner New Amsterdam, which sailed from that port October 31, will not be detained at Kirkwall, Scotland, the British authorities having agreed to one inspection at Falmouth. Other Dutch steamers will also be exempted at least through the winter months when the north coast of Scotland is particularly dangerous.

Inspect Plants Shipped By Mail.

Under a law passed by Congress March 4, 1915, Florida is making arrangements for the terminal inspection of all mail shipments of plants and plant products, except vegetable and flower seeds, entering the state. California, Arizona, and Montana have already established such mail inspection services under the federal law.

INCREASED COST OF SERVICE FELT.

Some of the local florists have received from Boston wholesale houses a circular letter notifying them that owing to increases in the cost of all packing material the wholesalers ask that customers return all empty boxes to them at their expense. As a temporary arrangement the wholesalers announce also that they have decided to refuse reverse telegrams and telephone messages or return charges on C. O. D.'s after October 25. The letter is signed by N. F. McCarthy & Co., Welch's, McAlpine & McDonald, B. A. Snyder & Co., Welch Brothers Co., Patrick Welch and D. M. Robinson & Co.

One of the notable decorations executed this fall was that by Frederick A. Danker for the Laughlin-Longendyke wedding in Troy. The First Presbyterian church, in which the ceremony took place, had palms and ferns about the pulpit, and clusters of Easter lilies and Oconto chrysanthemums on the pews. The bride carried a shower bouquet of lily of the valley; the two maids of honor, bouquets of Ward roses; and the six bridesmaids, bouquets of Chrysolora chrysanthemums. At the home of the bride's parents the mantels were decorated with ferns and Tint of Gold and Chrysolora chrysanthemums. Southern smilax, autumn foliage, and groups of palms adorned the rooms. The new A. L. Randall Co. electric fountain was used with good effect.

Pittsburgh.

GOOD WEATHER IMPROVES TRADE.

We are still having very fine weather, which helps business to a certain extent. We have not had a killing frost so far and many outdoor flowers are still blooming. There is plenty of all kinds of stock on the market and most of the wholesale houses clean up every day, but not at the prices they should. The volume of business is larger, but not in figures. Roses are still plentiful, but are moving a little better than last week. Chrysanthemums and pompons are arriving in quantity and are selling at fair prices. Some very good Bonnaillon, Chadwick, Morgan and Enguehardt are seen in the wholesale houses. Carnations are more plentiful than any time before, many selling at $15 per 1,000. American Beauties are not coming very plentiful, but enough to meet the demand. Lilies are not selling at all. Violets clean up every day. Greens are not very plentiful.

CLUB MEETING.

"The largest white chrysanthemums ever grown in Pittsburgh" was the verdict of the judges at the florists' club show of chrysanthemums on election night. This fully describes the grand display there. Among those who deserve special mention are: M. Curren for his Mrs. Wm. Jones and Pompon Excelsior; Mr. Hentz for his specimen blooms; Godwin & Son for commercial varieties, much comment being occasioned by his showing of the new yellow chrysanthemum; Mrs. M. R. Morgan; North Side parks had fair Diana and Mrs. Wright in pompons; Mr. Thompson for his specimen plants of chrysanthemums and pompons; Tom Sturgis for pompons and the Bureau of parks for Wm. Turner and Mrs. Drabble. The Sewickley flower show was talked over and owing to its great success, suggestions were made by W. A. Clark and E. J. McCallum for a large Flower Show in Pittsburgh next fall. The anniversary banquet (stag) was announced for Tuesday evening, November 21, at the Fort Pitt hotel.

NOTES.

The McCallum Co. exhibited their new chrysanthemum, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, at Philadelphia, Lancaster, Pa., and Bloomington, Ill. Their cut of blooms were in just right for the big football game November 11. They disposed of over 1,600 in one day.

J. E. Bonsall, and wife, of Salem, O., leave for the sunny south next week to spend the winter. They will return in time to plant their stock for summer flowering.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and the McCallum Co. had fine exhibits at the Lancaster, Pa., flower show.

C. H. Puhlman of Mt. Lebanon is cutting some very fine Bonnaillon and Chadwick chrysanthemums.

A street car struck the new truck of the McCallum Co., doing very little damage.

Thos. Joyce is very happy to know the election went democratic.

Harris Bros. are using a new Cadillac car for delivery purposes. M.

BUSINESS RETURNS TO NORMAL.

There has been so much excitement and so many celebrations over national politics during the last week that the florist business seemed to be neglected by the general public, consequently store men say that they have had rather a dull time. Things are about normal again, however, and from now on business will no doubt assume its former healthy condition.

NOTES.

Window decorations with the florists here are always of a very high grade; they are so exceptionally good this week, though, that they are worthy of passing notice. Furrow & Co. have what they call an F. T. D. window. In the foreground there is a miniature representation of a section of the Ozark trail in a prairie country, the graveled roadway bordered with prairie grass and the telegraph poles with the wires strung, all being very realistic. In the background was the dispatcher's desk, with an attending messenger boy, and numerous supposedly consignments of flowers, with the telegrams showing how and from whom the orders had been received. The window was the work of Floyd Pendergraft, one of the employees, and was a very creditable job. The Stiles Co.'s window was a representation of a lawn with flower bed and border. The lawn was realistically produced by the aid of green sheet moss, the center bed was of narcissi and hyacinths, all in full bloom; the borders were planted with red tulips, also in bloom. This display is a very timely one for the pushing of the sales of bulbs and is proving a sure and effective business getter.

On November 6, Elijah H. Furrow and Mrs. Elizabeth Furrow celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home in Guthrie, Okla. Mr. Furrow is the senior partner of the firm of Furrow & Co. and has the distinction of being the first florist and nurseryman in this state, and of building the first greenhouse. He started here in 1891, two years after the opening. Mr. Furrow is a veteran of the civil war and many of his comrades were partakers of the entertainment at the celebration of his golden wedding.

When the state election returns came in November 8, it was found that S. S. Butterfield had been elected to the legislature by a majority of over five hundred, so he will represent his district in the lower house for the next two years. S. S. B.

MARKET INCLINED TO BE SLOW.

Trade conditions have been somewhat quiet, due to the election. There is a scarcity of chrysanthemums, according to the reports of some dealers, but there seems to be a plentiful supply of orchids, forget-me-nots and numerous other items that help to fill in. Dahlias are diminished in supply. Roses continue to show improvement and cyclamens and ferns are coming in and will no doubt begin to move soon.

NOTES.

The flower and house beautiful show closed November 6 and proved to be a success in every way. The attendance was said to be about 40,000. The last day of the exhibition was designated as "florists' day." Among the principal exhibitors were the following: Germain Seed & Plant Co., shrubbery and plants; Theo. Payne, plants; Wolfskill Bros. & Morris Goldenson, reproduction of "Old Glory," red and white carnations with stars on a blue field of bachelor buttons; Wright's Flower Shop, basket of My Maryland, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Liberty roses; Howard & Smith, basket of chrysanthemums; Broadway Florists, basket of chrysanthemums arranged with Oregon crepe and huckleberry leaves.

THE W. W. BARNARD CO., Seedsmen
231-235 W. Madison Street, CHICAGO

Co., will soon be classed among the heavyweights. He has gained 22 pounds since his return from the east, and since election went his way, there is no way of estimating what the scales will say at the end. A. Knopf is back on the job again after a few days' illness. This old-established firm is handling a fine line of violets this season. They report a lively week in funeral work.

Howard & Smith have had a brisk call for designs for weddings and funerals. Fred Howard has returned from the east and reports a successful trip. W. L. Grover, manager of the floral department, is also back from the Atlantic coast cities, where he purchased Christmas supplies for this firm.

At Wright's Flower Shop, they are well pleased with the outlook for November. The bulk of the lily of the valley is seen here.

Decorations for coming out parties and other social functions have kept the J. W. Wolter's staff very busy of late.

J. A. Norris & Son are doing a nice business in cut flowers and report good demand for funeral work.

NEW NEPHROLEPIS FERN

JOHN WANAMAKER

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

The following ready for immediate delivery: 4-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, 50c and 75c each; 8-inch pots, $1.00 each; specimens in tubs, $2.50 and $3.50 each.

NEW SPECIAL CROTON COMBINATION

for this Fall trade, in white cedar box, 12 inches square, 6 inches deep, covered with birch bark, and trimmed in brown; the crotons are of very high color, artistically arranged and are well established. We are sure these will prove to be excellent sellers. $7.50 and $10.00 each.

CROTON

LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. They are also specially attractive to use with Chrysanthemums.

Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 25c, 35c and 50c; cut leaves, $3.00 and $5.00 per 100.

CYCLAMEN

In all the popular colors, splendidly budded plants. Engage them now for holiday delivery. Costs no more. Orders are set aside as they come in.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Glen Cove, November 9, President James McDonald in the chair. The feature of the evening was the competition by assistant gardeners for the best table decoration. James Holloway, Samuel Trepas and Daniel Coughlin were appointed judges and they awarded first prize to James Waite, second to George Ford and third to Arnold Gattiker. Chrysanthemums comprised the other exhibits, and for these classes John Johnstone, Joseph Adler and Frank Watson officiated as judges. They awarded to James McCarthy first honors for three white chrysanthemums and first for three yellow, and to John Dombrowski a certificate of culture for a vase of Chrysanthemum Emma, and honorable mention for a vase of a seedling anemone with the recommendation that it be shown again.

After the meeting a most enjoyable smoker was held. Next month's meeting will be the annual one, at which the election of officers for the ensuing year will take place, and a full attendance of all the members is requested.

BUSINESS SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

Business was rather quiet in most lines this week, although there was a slight advance over the previous week. Roses sold a little better, prices ranging about the same, but with a more active market. Chrysanthemums are the main factor, there being large quantities obtainable at moderate prices. Only the very best reach $2 per dozen, the bulk of the commercial grade being sold at from $6 to $8 per 100. Poinsettias sell very well, although the prices are not extra high. Carnations averaged $2 per 100 for the week on good blooms, but many were sold for less, according to quality. Violets are arriving in larger quantities and sell quite readily at 50 cents and 60 cents per 100. Lily of the valley is short, six cents being received for it. Chrysanthemum pot plants are the mainstay in the plant trade, the demand being very satisfactory. Greens are moving rather slowly. Stevia is just starting to come and sells readily. All told, the market as a whole is not what it should be, but with a little cold weather, the growers think that business will be better in the near future.

NOTES.

Wm. Molloy passed away at his home in Natick, after a brief period of sickness November 6. He was one of the pioneer salesmen of Boston, and was respected by all who knew him. He started to work for E. M. Woods, at Natick, at the age of 16, where he remained until 10 years before his death. During the last 10 years he was salesman for the Budlong Rose Co.

Wm. T. Good was struck and killed by an automobile, November 6, while leaving Hoffman's store, where he was employed. Mr. Good was very well known among the florist trade of this city, as he was employed by Wm. E. Doyle for about 20 years. Until this year he had a store on Boylston street, Social events have created a brisk demand during the past two weeks. Chrysanthemums are more than plentiful, including the pompon and single varieties. The latest arrivals are Bonaffon, Well's Late Pink, Golden Wedding and Chrysolora. Single violets are increasing in supply and carnations are plentiful and of good quality. Narcissi are beginning to arrive and other offerings include sweet peas, swainsonas, Easter and calla lilies, lily of the valley and cattleyas.

CLUB MEETING.

The second meeting of the recently organized Fort Wayne Florists' Association was held November 8 at the store of the Flick Floral Co., Miss Rhoda Doswell presiding as temporary chairman. The election of officers resulted as follows: Miss Rhoda Doswell, president; Edward Wenninghoff, vice-president; Miss Margaret Flick, secretary; Herman Leitz, treasurer. At this meeting it was decided to hold the first annual flower show in the ball room of the Anthony hotel, November 16. The publicity committee, consisting of Clem Lanternier, chairman; M. COLD WEATHER HELPS BUSINESS.

The extremely cold weather has caused a sudden shortening up of stock and the market is now in a healthier condition than it has been for several weeks. Chrysanthemums are in good supply, but are commanding better prices and are moving fairly well. Some particularly fine white and pink Chieftain, Intensity, Chadwick, white and yellow Bonaffon, Wm. Turner, Nagoya, Marigold, white and yellow Eaton, Enguehard, Razer, and Roman Gold are included in the shipments and give the buyer a splendid variety to select from. Pompoms are also in good supply and the offerings now include Golden Wedding, Garza, Mrs. Beu, Klondyke, Autumn Queen and other varieties too numerous to mention. Roses are in shorter supply and in good demand, cleaning up nicely every day at satisfactory prices, particularly Ophelia, which at times are scarce. American Beauty roses are reaching the market in splendid condition and in good supply, but there is hardly ever any surplus when the stores close at night. Mrs. Chas. Russell are having a good call and like American Beauties are selling quickly. Some particularly fine White Killarney and Richmond are seen, but the receipts are just about equal to the demand. Carnations are in good supply and are selling better than they have been at advanced prices. Orchids are cleaning up every day and so are gardenias. Lily of the valley is as scarce as ever and most of the stock offered is bringing $6.00 per 100. Sweet peas are none too plentiful but the receipts of Paper White Narcissus are considerably larger. Lilies and callas are more numerous, but are selling better since stock in general has shortened up. Daisies, snapdragons, bouvardias, calendulas, sweet alyssum, for-get-me-nots, straw-flowers, cut cyclamens, stevia, corn-flowers and violets are obtainable and at times have a good call. Pussy willows are selling like hot cakes and are seen featured in many of the window displays. Red berries are seen everywhere in quantity and greens of all kinds are in large supply. Business is slowly improving and a great change in the market conditions may be expected before the week is over. The out-of-town buyers will probably find it to their advantage to place their orders well in advance for Thanksgiving this year, for if business is at all good, stock in certain lines will be scarce, especially as far as the home grown chrysanthemums are concerned.

NOTES.

G. M. Reyburn has gone in the wholesale business for himself and is handling bulbs, plants and supplies with headquarters at 160 North Wabash avenue. He left for New York, November 13, to complete his arrangements and will have a further announcement to make in the near future.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade. The roses which we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

Wholesale Florists

30 E. Randolph Street,

Long Distance Telephone
Central 3373

CHICAGO, ILL.

The Bohannon Floral Co. had a grand opening at its new store, at 75 East Monroe street, a few doors away from its old establishment, at 57 East Monroe street, Thursday, November 9, when a grand showing of cut flowers of all kinds was made, particularly American Beauty, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Ophelia, Baby Doll and Elgar roses, orchids, bouvardias and chrysanthemums. This firm has a beautiful store equipped and furnished throughout by the Reliable Store Fixture Company, which compares most favorably with any in the city. A large workroom adjoins the store proper in the rear with a receiving entrance in the alleyway and a private elevator to the basement. In addition to the main entrance, there is a side one in the corridor leading direct to Michigan avenue, which is quite an item in itself. The Bohannon Floral Co. has had four different locations on East Monroe street since it started in business nine years ago, counting the two stores they are now occupying, and have built up a splendid trade during that time. Mr. Bohannon leans toward the artistic and is continually showing new creations in supplies, including some artistic rockeries now in use and made especially for him along his own ideas. Joseph Carlin, formerly with the Forrest Flower Shop, Philadelphia, Pa., is the latest addition to the store force at this establishment.

J. C. Craig, the oldest florist in the city, is proud of the fact that he voted the straight democratic ticket and is enthusiastic over the country's selection of the presidential candidate. Mr. Craig possesses a trace of humor and points with pride to the great part his state took in furnishing the party's candidate with electoral votes (?).

At Oscar J. Friedman's store the stage is all set for the fall and winter season and a splendid showing of stock of all kinds is being made, particularly chrysanthemums and roses. Mr. Friedman is fortunate in having such expert storemen as Victor Bergman and Duncan Robertson in his employ.

Chas. Falkenheim, of the Basket Novelty Company, New York, has been calling on the trade here for over a week and reports business as good, even disposing of his samples. His line is original and leans toward the beauty in basketry, including the popular bird-cages, miniature cradles, booties, etc.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a magnificent supply of chrysanthemums and pompons in addition to a most complete line of orchids. The outlook for a large supply of stock for Thanksgiving is very bright at this establishment, especially for roses and carnations.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have added an American Beauty rose grower to their list of consignors and are receiving regular shipments in all the desired grades. Mr. Pyfer reports an unusually brisk demand for pussy willows, which they are handling in quantity.

The John Kruchten Co. is handling a regular supply of orchids in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock. Mr. Kruchten reports a great improvement in trade with an increased demand for everything, especially chrysanthemums.

The Fleischman Floral Co. reports business as good and is looking forward toward a brisk fall and winter trade. Manager Graham is back on the job again after enjoying a pleasant visit with relatives and friends at his old home at Philadelphia, Pa.

Percy Jones is handling a large quantity of green goods, in addition to a heavy supply of cut flowers, particularly pompons and chrysanthemums. The shipping trade is very good at this establishment, and the city demand is also showing a big improvement.

Frank Hagen, of the George Reinberg store force, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his brother, whose death occurred this week. The Hagen family is well known to the trade, especially among the north side growers.

William Timme is adding a greenhouse, 20x150 feet, to his Irving Park establishment and will tear down some of his old houses in the spring to make room for a new store and large modern conservatory.

The Garland Manufacturing Co. has received another order from Davis & Steiner, Ottawa, for a new house to be erected at Streator, which makes thirteen, all told, that this firm has built there this season.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Morrison Hotel, Thursday evening, November 16, at 8 o'clock, when officers for 1917 will be nominated.

Carl Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, is wearing a 10-pound smile caused by the arrival this week of Woodrow Wilson Vaughan.

Sinner Bros. are pleasing their trade with a particularly fine grade of White Killarney roses that are perfect in every respect.

Kennicott Bros. report a splendid demand for Bonnaffon chrysanthemums, which they handle in quantity each season.

M. C. Gunterberg is handling a large quantity of fancy white and yellow Bonnaffon chrysanthemums.

George C. McCallum, of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., called on the trade here this week.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a big run on pot chrysanthemums, cyclamens and begonias as well as foliage plants of all kinds, particularly crotons. August Poehlmann and Adolph Poehlmann have returned home from a pleasant visit with their sons, Earl, Roland and Walter at Urbana, where they are attending school. They also attended the fall meeting and flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Bloomington last week. John Poehlmann, who graduated from the Culver Military Academy a few years ago, is forming a Chicago Culver Club and will very likely be honored with the presidency.

Peter Reinberg is evidently more than pleased with the new rose Champ Weiland, for he is going to grow it on a larger scale than ever next season. The artistically arranged basket of Champ Weiland that A. Lange exhibited at the Hotel LaSalle last Sunday was much admired by the trade as well as the public. One grower remarked that it was the finest pink rose in the hall, including Mrs. Chas. Russell.

P. W. Peterson, superintendent of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co.'s greenhouses, Joliet, attended the flower show at the Hotel LaSalle, November 12, and was most favorably impressed with the retail display. Thompson's new flesh pink carnation Superb was greatly admired by the trade and will be grown heavily at one of the leading local establishments next season.

Wietor Bros. have started to cut from a big crop of Bonaffon, Roman Gold and Enguehard chrysanthemums, and from present indications, this firm will be right in the swim for Thanksgiving. Pompons in about 57 different varieties, are included in their shipments and a particularly fine grade of Rosette carnations is attracting the attention of the buyers.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association will be well fixed on roses, chrysanthemums and other seasonal stock for Thanksgiving, according to Manager Klingsporn, who is booking all the orders that are in sight. Red winter berries are handled on a large scale at this establishment.

The Alpha Floral Co. of this city received an official announcement last week from A. J. Zwart and J. S. Wilson, Jr., who recently bought the Alpha Floral Co.'s store in Des Moines, Ia., which was formerly in charge of Gus Pappas, who has not been in the best of health of late.

Bassett & Washburn report trade as brisk and a good cleanup every day since the cold weather set in. Their new carnation, Belle Washburn, is in good demand and is bringing top market prices. This firm is cutting from a splendid crop of fancy Mrs. Chas. Russell roses.

The E. C. Amling Co. is strong on chrysanthemums and roses and will be well supplied with both for Thanksgiving. The new Ford delivery truck added to the delivery service recently is proving to be a good investment.

Hoerber Bros. will be in good crop with Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Ward and Richmond roses for Thanksgiving, and are now cutting quite heavily in chrysanthemums.

The George Wittbold Co. has added a new Pathfinder auto truck to its delivery service. This firm's new retail store will be equipped with a Kroeschell refrigerating machine.

Erne & Klingel are supplying their trade with as fancy a grade of smilax as there is obtainable in this market. Chrysanthemums are seen in large supply at this busy house.

The Chicago Florist is well pleased with its new location at 35 East Monroe street and reports good business since the opening last June.

Phil Foley, Jr., is back from Ames, Ia., where he attended the flower show staged at the state college in that city, November 10-11.

Samuel Seligman, of the American Bulb Co., is up and around again after being on the sick list for several days.

The firm of J. A. Budlong has built a new balcony in its enlarged quarters and is rapidly getting things in tip top condition, although a number of changes remain to be made. Manager Schupp and his assistants can use the additional space to good advantage and are wondering how they managed to handle all the orders in such good shape as they did in the old place, where they were always crowded for room.

The Raedlein Basket Co. is all ready to handle a brisk Thanksgiving and Christmas trade and have a large and complete line on hand to fill all the orders that will arrive. Plant baskets especially are in brisk demand right now.

The A. L. Randall Co. has booked another nice lot of orders for rooted cuttings of the new red carnation Thenanthos and expect to reach the 200,000 mark in the near future.

Miss L. A. Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, is back from a visit to her pecan grove at Baconton, Ga., and is well pleased with the crops this season. She brought back a large supply with her and is booking quite a number of orders from the trade for the holidays. Her sister, O. A. Tonner, who is associated with her in business, and Mrs. Thos. Fogarty, also have extensive groves in the Jackson pecan districts.

Zech & Mann are showing a large quantity of white and yellow Eaton in addition to a large number of other seasonable chrysanthemums. Allie Zech says that trade is showing a big improvement, especially as far as the out-of-town demand is concerned. This firm is featuring a splendid grade of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses.

H. H. Putnam, authority on greenhouse heating, formerly with the sanitary district, first as a heating engineer and later as a consulting engineer, is now with the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Company.

Kyle & Foerster have replaced the large plate glass window in their store front, which was broken when someone threw a large lump of coal through it one night this week.

Peter Miller, with George Wienhoeber, has been confined to the hospital for several days following an operation for tonsillitis.

HEAVY SUPPLY CROWDS MARKET.

The extremely warm and sunshiny weather of the past few weeks has brought in chrysanthemums and pompons until the market is very much crowded; even outdoor stock such as gladioli, centaureas, outdoor pompons and chrysanthemums help to fill the tables of the wholesalers. Carnations are a little more plentiful, but are moving nicely. Roses are suffering somewhat as they usually do on account of the chrysanthemums. Snapdragons are good stock, and in good demand. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Miss Christine Cliff, who owns and conducts the Christine Floral Co., Hough avenue, has purchased the Penn Square Floral Co. on Euclid avenue, near east 55th street.

F. D. Kirchner, Riverside drive, West Park, Ohio, has taken over the greenhouses of the T. J. Kegg estate and will grow flowers for the wholesale market.

Hody & Rigo have opened a florist and landscape gardening business in Berea, Ohio, with greenhouses on Adams avenue.

W. S. Chaffee, professional decorator, has purchased the Clifton Floral Co. on Lake avenue, near Detroit street.

L. F. Darnell and wife will leave this week for California, where they will spend the winter.

The Flower Shoppe, Superior avenue, has put on a new delivery car.

FINE STOCK PLENTIFUL; LIGHT DEMAND.

According to the various reports about the market, from all sources, nothing much can be said about its profitable activity. The great bulk of the flowers are disposed of in various ways, but for very few are there any tangible returns, very few with figures that gladden the hearts of the growers, very few bringing prices, that months ago, were set down by the expectant men who were guarding and bringing forward their crops with such tender care. There is nothing the matter with the stock; it is O. K. in every respect, quantities of it—no better roses in all grades, carnations of superior quality, chrysanthemums galore, a wagon load ready for a buyer at a moment's notice, snapdragons, calendulas, mignonette, bouvardias, Easter lilies, lily of the valley, cattleyas, etc. Everything is in abundance, but no buyers, or at least, not one quarter enough to move the stock. Such has been the situation the past week; result, much loss to the growers and handlers of his products. As before stated in these columns, this condition of affairs could be helped and almost entirely avoided by proper and up-to-date business methods. A bargain is most appealing to many people. If the stock that has to be thrown out, brought only half regular prices, the growing and distributing branches of the business would benefit to that extent, and incidentally, a flower buying habit would be encouraged, and perhaps in time, become fixed and the stores secure many new patrons.

H. H. BATTLE'S NEW ADDITION.

Improvements and enlargements are still going on at the H. H. Battle's store. The "L" running out at the rear to Samson street, a three story building, which the tenant has just vacated, is to be entirely occupied. The first floor is being fitted up as the buying room, a miniature market in which there is more business done in supplying this one establishment than is handled by many of the wholesale houses. Select stock of any kind is sure of recognition and the top market price, a fact which secures, as they say in the movies, a first presentation. In the rear is a cold-storage room with a large skylight, but no cooling apparatus other than the outside temperature. The old buying room in the rear of the "Century shop," Mr. Battle's low priced store, is to be added to the facilities of that very busy place, a store in which, outside of holidays, as many as 1,000 separate daily sales have been made. His store proper is one of the most artistic and beautiful in the country. The very high ceiling has permitted of a mezzanine floor over the rear portion, which is reached by wide open stairs, with newel posts and railing, always handsomely decorated and which is a wonderfully effective feature. The walls to the right and left of the store, which is 25 feet in width are covered with mirrors, which reflect the elaborate decorations and displays of cut flowers, which are always features here. In a row of jars, wicker covered, on a shelf at the rear of the counter, is kept a stock of the choicest roses and other flowers, always conveniently placed to show to customers. The ordinary florists' ice box is conspicuous by its absence, a piece of store furniture that Mr. Battles has always tabooed. His are always flowers of the day, fresh, without thought of ice, sure to give the best of their short lives to the purchaser. A long, low table is filled with made-up work in color effects. An orange colored basket, filled with brilliant orange calendulas and tied with a shaded iridescent orange ribbon, was very artistic. Large and small colonial bunches of rosebuds, lily of the valley and other small flowers with appropriate ribbons and laces are sure to bring forth feminine adjectives of admiration. Vases of flowers, large and small, that stood about on tables and pedestals and on the stairway to give tonal color effects, were admirably supported by the permanent fixtures and decorative features of the store. The mezzanine floor or gallery contains a large stock of choice vases, a duplicate in miniature of the great collection of the vase shop, which had to be curtailed for want of room. The cashier's desk and office for handling orders is under the gallery. Several enclosed plate glass booths for telephones are for the free use of customers. Elite directories of all the large cities of the country are on file, and kept up-to-date, so as to verify addresses. The shipping and receiving department in the rear is most complete, nothing coming in or going out of the front of the store. The upper floors of the third and fourth stories are full of busy workers. Mr. Battle's office, and that of the general book-keepers, are on part of the second floor. A telephone exchange on the third floor, with nine trunk lines on the Bell and five on the Keystone, keeps an operator busy. All the other rooms are used by young women and men, many of them busy working up Christmas wreaths and other things, in preparedness for the holiday trade. A large stock of accessories indispensable to a business of this size, will be kept on the upper floors of the Sansom street building as soon as alterations are completed. The Century Shop is worthy of a chapter to itself and will follow later. Altogether, there are over 80 employees in active service here all the time and largely augmented at holidays.

NOTES.

At the recent flower show none of the Commercial chrysanthemum growers, rose growers or carnation specialists were seen in the entry lists. Not a single or even plural retail firm had exhibits of any kind. What is the matter? Who can tell?

A number of out-of-town florists are ordering their Christmas stock, baskets, etc., from H. Bayersdorfer & Co., "taking time by the forelock", says Mr. Berkowitz. Their new fall folder has brought them many orders.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. is handling first class carnations from the Leiker nurseries. Choice chrysanthemums and Ophelia roses are noteworthy.

week. This is No. 2 on their list. Splendid Shawyer roses are seen here.

A very large stock of first class flowers, but little appreciation by retailers, is the burden they had to carry last week at Berger Brother's market.

We noticed some splendid marigold chrysanthemums at the Leo Neissen Co. They were from W. & H. F. Evans' Rowlandville nurseries.

Edward Reid's shop is crowded to the doors. Milady roses and fancy chrysanthemums are features.

Splendid Bonnaffons and choice single violets were features of the Stuart Miller stock the past week.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET CONDITIONS.

There has not been any noticeable change in market conditions during the past week. If anything, the situation seems more acute. Shipments of chrysanthemums do not decline but indications now point to a more moderate supply in the near future and that the worst period has passed. The fact remains somewhat in their favor that they have brought a fair average price, considering the large number marketed. With the exception of American Beauty and Hadley of fine quality, the rose situation shows no improvement. This is also true of carnations, but it seems safe to predict that a change for the better is near at hand. Long stemmed calendulas are meeting with a good demand, which is more than can be said for Paper Whites. Snapdragons, bouvardias and lilies are neglected. A limited supply of cattleyas and gardenias are selling at good prices and violets show better returns.

NOTES.

The trade in this city were pained to hear of the death of Fred W. Vick, of Rochester, N. Y., which occurred November 12. Funeral services were held November 15.

Visitors: E. H. Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Jas. Mitchell, Houston, Tex.; Paul Berkowitz, Philadelphia, Pa., and Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.

MARKET BADLY OVERSTOCKED.

The predicted glut of last week is now a reality, principally attributed to the extremely warm, bright weather. The market is crowded with roses, carnations and chrysanthemums, against which sweet peas, violets, snapdragons, orchids and lily of the valley are trying to hold a place. As it is chrysanthemum season, they, of course, have prestige, causing all the stock to be sold at sharp concessions. The demand is rather satisfactory, but not sufficient to move this abundance. A great deal of sickness improves counter trade, but funeral work is not above par.

NOTES.

Baur & Steinkamp are of the opinion that the large flowering types of chrysanthemums have been in better demand this season than in previous years. They have a great number of their new carnation, Merry Christmas, propagated, and are now starting on their commercial varieties.

Bertermann Bros. Co. have been obtaining exceptionally fine pink snapdragons from their Cumberland greenhouses. They have been very busy lately decorating for parties, weddings, etc., and making winter window boxes.

The local store of the E. G. Hill Co. is planning an elaborate and effective chrysanthemum show, November 16-17. Miss Grace Brown, of Bloomfield, has recently taken a position with this firm.

Albert Stanley has been planting out a great number of hardy shrubs throughout the city. He also has a good line of evergreens for winter window boxes.

Although prospects for a good Thanksgiving crop are poor, it is prophesied that the supply for Christmas will be good.

Wm. Smith, recently with A. Wiegand & Sons Co., is now with the Kemble Floral Co., Mason City, Iowa.

Henry W. Rieman has some beautiful new pompon seedlings.

Visitors: E. C. Roberts, Zanesville, O.; C. W. Johnson, Chicago.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Belgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

DUTCH lily of the valley is coming forward.

MANGEL and beet seeds are sure to be wanted.

GLADIOLUS COLVILLEI and Spanish Iris are three weeks late.

BIG prices for garden beans are again predicted, $12 to $18 per bushel having been mentioned.

OLD wrinkled garden peas have been selling for eating purposes at higher than contract rates.

WESTERN trade in bulbs is holding up well, notwithstanding the 12-degree-above-zero weather November 14.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, November 15, were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.75 per 100 pounds.

WAR-TIME CONTRACTS.—Hurst & Son, London, Eng., accept advance orders under the following conditions: "We will deliver at the usual time unless war, blockade, revolution, prohibition of export, riot or civil commotion or force majeure prevent us being able to do so, and in such a case this order, or any unfulfilled part to be cancelled and no claim to be made."

CHAS. M. JACKMAN, of Vaughan's Seed Store, it is believed, is held as a civil prisoner in Belgium. Mr. Jackman was returning home on the Dutch mail S. S. Kofingen Regentes. This steamer was held up by a German submarine last week and taken to Zeebrugge. Several Americans were released and permitted to return to Holland, but it is thought Mr. Jackman has been detained, being a British subject.

EUROPEAN GRASS SEEDS—Barenburg, Burgers & Co., of Arnhem, Holland, write October 17: "Apart from the fact that we are not yet ready with our new seeds, owing to a very backward season, it would be useless to make you an offer as we have strict and absolute prohibition of the export of all grasses since August 1 of this year. All efforts to have this prohibition revoked, or to get special permission for certain varieties, have been refused so far."

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; A. T. Ferrell of the A. T. Ferrell Co., Saginaw, Mich.; J. W. Holly and Green.

Four to six inches of snow in the Wisconsin woods November 13 gave the green situation quite a serious aspect and record prices may be expected, both for bulk stock and for wreathing, as that depth of snow in the deep woods is not likely to fade away. Present prospects are for about one-half the usual output.

Little definite is known thus far about the holly situation. The outlook is that fancy stock will be scarce and require a long freight haul.

Beet Sugar Production.

Washington, D. C., November 10.—This season's beet sugar production in the United States was the largest ever recorded. Sugar beet acreage and tonnage of beets harvested made a record. Preliminary returns from nearly all operating beet sugar factories announced today by the department of agriculture places production at 918,000 tons, the acreage at 680,000 and beets used for sugar 6,671,000 tons. Beet sugar production this year exceeds the record by 44,600 tons.

In the last five years this country has consumed an average of 4,000,000 tons of sugar annually.

Northrup, King & Co. Share Profits.

Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., recently made known to their employees a profit sharing dividend plan, affecting at present about 150 people.

This dividend is awarded on the basis of net earnings of the company for the fiscal year closing July 1, relative proportion of the salary of each individual and length of continuous service. At the time the announcement was made, checks were handed to all those who were entitled to them for the year ending July 1 last.

The plan was put in operation to bring about a greater degree of individual co-operation, to increase efficiency and to encourage thrift. If the plan works out as well as is anticipated, it is expected that it will be continued in the future on the same liberal basis as first announced.

Wisconsin Cannery.

The annual meeting of the Wisconsin Cannery was held at Milwaukee this week, the seed trade being represented by A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; Theodore Cobb, of D. The Bean Crop.

GOVERNMENT REPORT FOR NOVEMBER.

The five important bean states, Michigan, New York, California, Colorado, and New Mexico, report this year a total production of 9,924,000 bushels against 10,278,000 last year, which was also a year of short bean production. This result is due almost wholly to the unfavorable outturn in Michigan and New York. In both of these states a late, cold, wet spring interfered with planting and was followed by extreme heat during the growing period, limiting the growth and blasting the blossoms. Early frosts caught considerable portions of the late crop, which had been improving under the influence of late rains. The outturn in these two states was so poor that many fields were not harvested even in view of the exceptional price being paid for beans. Happily, the quality of the crop is much higher than last year, when beans suffered exceedingly in these two states from fungus diseases induced by the wet growing season.

The crop in California suffered some damage from an October storm, but the harm is now found to be less than was at first feared.

Seed Disclaimer Resolution.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, held at Chicago, June 20-22, 1916:

Resolved, That this association is opposed to any legislation affecting the germination of seeds, nullifying the disclaimer, or interfering with interstate commerce.

TWO CARS of canned tomatoes are being shipped for the first time in 14 years from San Francisco to Chicago, price being $1.20 per dozen against ordinary quotation of 75 cents.

GREATER co-operation by growers in marketing western muskmelons is urged by the United States department of agriculture. Methods employed in the five leading producing sections in the west are outlined in Bulletin 401, recently issued.

Potato Shipments in Carlots.

The United States department of agriculture, office of markets and rural organization, under date of November 7, reports the following carlot shipments of white potatoes for the season to date: New Jersey, 13,244; Peninsula, 15,967; Maine, 9,519, the shipments in all other states making the total 81,331 carlots.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Mushrooms, home grown, 30 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 4 to 7 cents; radishes, $1.50 per 100 bunches; celery, 60 to 75 cents, open crate; tomatoes, 10-lb. baskets, $1.00 to $1.40; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $2.00 to $2.25.

New York, Nov. 14.—Celery, per crate, $1.00 to $3.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.50 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per package, 25 cents to $1.50; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 25 cents to $1.25.

Western Muskmelon Marketing Methods.

Greater co-operation by growers is needed in the marketing of the 7,000 carloads of muskmelons shipped from western producing regions, according to market specialists of the United States department of agriculture. The various methods employed in marketing the melons from the five most important western producing points in 1915 are outlined in United States department of agriculture Bulletin No. 401, recently issued.

The earliest of the western muskmelon producing sections, the Imperial valley, California, produces the greatest number of cars, 4,722, the bulletin shows. Shipments begin late in May and extend past the middle of July. Improvements in distribution contracts and the exercise of a greater degree of personal supervision by growers in picking, packing and loading operations are recommended by the specialists. The Salt River valley, Arizona, is the second shipping region for western muskmelons in point of time, shipments extending from early July to early August. The volume of shipments from this district, however, is only about one-tenth of that from the Imperial valley. Almost coincident with the shipments from Salt River valley, shipments of melons take place from the Moapa valley, Nevada. These shipments in 1915 aggregated 276 cars. The Nevada shipments are followed by shipments from Turlock in the San Joaquin valley, California. One thousand five hundred and fifty-four cars were shipped from the latter district in 1915. Several methods are employed in marketing the Turlock crop, co-operative organizations having a prominent place. Rocky Ford, Colo., the oldest of the western producing districts for muskmelons, and Ordway, Colo., in the same general region, make the latest of the western shipments, the season extending from the last of August to the middle of October. Many shipments are made through commercial distributors in this section, but a large number of producers owning farms receive no cash advances.

Co-operation is especially needed, in the opinion of the specialists, in the purchase of seeds and supplies, and, where distributors are employed, in checking up the accounts of the latter.

Market Gardening in Bermuda.

Agriculture is the leading productive industry of Bermuda. Its activities are confined to market gardening, because the country is so small and so broken with small hills and valleys that it does not lend itself to farming on an extensive scale, even though climatic conditions permitted. Grain crops are not produced; nor can fruit (except bananas) be cultivated in commercial quantities. The principal products are potatoes, onions and the green vegetables—celery, parsley, carrots, lettuce, beets, beans, turnips, cabbage, peas, kohlrabi, etc.

Exports of vegetables to the United States in 1915 did not vary in any appreciable degree from those in 1914. While there was a considerable increase in the value of the potatoes, beets, carrots, celery, kale and lettuce, there was a corresponding decrease in the value of the beans, parsley and onions.

As an aid to the more successful marketing of agricultural products a rigid system of inspection has been inaugurated, which applies only to the preparation of the produce for shipment to New York. There are three inspectors of potatoes and onions and two of green vegetables, who work in close co-operation with the board of agriculture. Special attention is paid to the quality of the produce, to the manner of packing, and to the packages themselves.

Rochester, N. Y.

TRADE FALLS OFF.

During the past few days a lull in the fall trade has been noticeable. Counter trade has not been as brisk as usual. Bulbs are in great demand, however, and the call for ferns and palms is good. The market is flooded with chrysanthemums of all descriptions. Pompons are very popular. Carnations are excellent in quality and the demand for them has also increased. Bouvardias in red and white are arriving in quantity and the quality is fine. Excellent Jap and Harrisii lilies are to be seen. Snapdragons, cornflowers and a few late garden varieties are still coming in. The rose supply is good and excellent violets, orchids and lily of the valley are offered.

NOTES.

Myrl E. Bottomley, of the Allen Nursery Co., has gone to Cleveland, O., where he will open a branch for that firm. The best wishes for success follow him from his many friends.

H. E. Wilson celebrated his seventieth birthday, November 9. He is one of the pioneers in the local trade and his friends wish him many more happy years to come.

Robert Greenlaw, of the S. S. Pen-nock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa., visited this city last week and reports excellent business conditions in this section.

Chas. W. Curtis is cutting some large Wm. Turner chrysanthemums in addition to pompons of unusual colorings.

The demand for dyed chrysanthemums is on the increase. They are becoming very popular here.

Carnations Pink Delight and White Wonder, grown by Harry Merritt, are very large and good sellers.

Miss L. White has joined the force at Wilson's Main street store.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

John Watson, Newark, N. Y., President;
Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President;
John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.
Forty-second annual convention will be held at Philadelphia, Pa., June, 1917.

COLFAX, WASH.—Mayor Rogers will shortly appoint three park commissioners and a park superintendent.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Holm & Olson report brisk business in the nursery department, both local and shipping.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Frank C. Butler, superintendent of Mt. Hope cemetery, has returned to his office after a temporary absence.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Paul G. Staiger, John Finken and Thos. Wolfe have incorporated the Staiger-Finken Nursery Co.; capital stock, $20,000.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Leslie Littel has purchased the nursery stock of the Hillcrest school farm and will have the use of the school greenhouses for one year.

NEWPORT, R. I.—V. A. Vanicek purchased several greenhouses at the recent sale of the Galvin range and will add them to the Rhode Island Nurseries on East Main road.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—A state forestry office has been established in this city for the convenience of land owners in the western section of the state. Paul D. Kneeland is in charge.

APPLE shipments in carlots for the season, reported to the United States department of agriculture by railroads to November 7, numbered 34,548. The following were the largest producing districts: Washington, 7,275; Potomac Valley, 6,654; New York, 3,966; New Jersey, 1,833; Colorado, 1,684.

National Association of Gardeners.

President W. N. Craig, of the National Association of Gardeners has appointed the following committee on convention publicity: George W. Hess, Washington, D. C.; William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; David Fraser, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Robert Cameron, Cambridge, Mass.; John Canning, Ardsley, N. Y.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Thomas J. Wilson, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; Anton Bauer, Deal Beach, N. J.; James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; John Barnett, Sewickley, Pa.; Edw. Jenkins, Lenox, Mass.; William Gray, Newport, R. I.; Thomas Head, Lake Forest, Ill.; Albin Martini, Lake Geneva, Wis.; L. P. Jensen, St. Louis, Mo.; Percy Ellings, Menlo Park, Calif.

The convention will be held in Washington, D. C., December 5-6, and in addition to an interesting programme, which has been provided for the meetings, entertainment of the visiting members has not been overlooked. There is to be an auto trip through the park system of Washington, a visit to the White House, Capitol and the various departmental buildings, and to the country estate of George Washington, at Mount Vernon. A large attendance both from the east and west is looked for.

Sambucus Canadensis.

This is the last of the native shrubs to make a conspicuous show of flowers in the arboretum, and as the corollas of the laurels begin to fall the wide, flat flower-clusters of the black-fruited elder begin to whiten. Few native shrubs make a greater show of flowers and fruits, and the numerous elders sown by birds on the banks of the Bussey brook in the valley north of Hemlock hill, and by the little ponds near the junction of the Meadow and Bussey hill roads, add much to the beauty of the arboretum in July. Growing with Sambucus Canadensis in the shrub collection is a form with leaflets deeply divided into narrow segments (var. acutiloba), and more curious than beautiful. There are here also a form with yellow fruit (var. chlorocarpa), and var. maxima, which originated a few years ago in a European nursery, and which has flower-clusters three times as large as those of the wild plant and such large and heavy bunches of fruit that the branches can hardly support them. A variety with yellow leaves (var. aurea) is also in the collection. More objectionable than many yellow-leaved shrubs because it is hardier and grows more rapidly to a larger size than some of them, this plant now disfigures many European gardens, and is too often seen in those of this country.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin, July, 1916.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Civic organizations here have requested the park commission to prevent any action that might result in the removal of Superintendent Ernest Essig. Certain members of the board have endeavored to have a park supervisor appointed at a salary of $3,500 per annum. This is meeting with much opposition.

Do You Know This?

Every large greenhouse plant built in the West during 1916 was built by the AGMCO.

This is one of the 60 x 500 foot steel houses recently finished for Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Illinois., and they have ordered two more for next Spring!

But this is only a picture. You must see the real thing to know what we mean when we tell you it is a perfect house.

So visit any of these:

Gullett & Sons	- - - - -	Lincoln, Ill.
Cudahy Floral Co.	- - - - -	Cudahy, Wis.
J. C. Rennison Co.	- - - - -	Sioux City, Ia.
Albert F. Amling Co.	- - - - -	Maywood, Ill.
Charles Steidle	- - - - -	Olivette, Mo.
Daut Brothers	- - - - -	Decatur, Ill.
R. P. Atwell	- - - - -	Fort Dodge, Ia.

Pick them to pieces. You'll find everywhere a masterly example of the most finished workmanship. You see we invite close investigation—it's our best selling method. And we stand ready to back our statements with facts and figures.

The AGMCO catalog is yours for the asking.

PAYING HOUSES

OUR houses are paying houses because they are modern, convenient and lasting. Conservative growers who have carefully compared our material and construction invariably choose Dietsch Houses because they are practical in every respect and represent the most for the least money. Dietsch Houses built according to Dietsch Plans suit the needs of the conservative growers best. All our customers prove this by building Dietsch Houses when they increase their ranges. :: :: :: ::

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Primulas.

As fast as the primroses grow, space them out so that there is a good distance between each plant, and so that the leaves do not touch, allowing room between the plants for a free circulation of air. If the plants are placed on a bench with a front and back board, place boards across and set the plants on these or stand the pots on inverted pots so as to bring them up into the air. Take care in watering not to wet the foliage more than necessary, or the leaves will be spotted. Many good primulas are ruined by being overcrowded and the foliage allowed to remain damp. If the plants are not going to be in flower for the holidays they can be placed in a temperature of 60° at night for a short time, which will rapidly bring them along, but do not attempt a higher temperature than that, nor for any great length of time. These plants are cold-loving subjects and are more satisfactory in a house that never goes above 50° at night. Primula obconica is now blooming freely and can be kept in bloom until spring if grown cool. These plants are particularly useful in filling Christmas baskets. Care must be taken in the handling of these plants by persons who are at all subject to poisoning from coming in contact with this, rhus, or other poisonous plants, for they sometimes cause a very troublesome and irritating eruption of the skin.

Ardisias.

The berries of the ardisias should now be turning a bright red and the foliage taking on that beautiful glossy appearance which makes this plant so popular at the holidays. Where these plants are grown in great heat the berries do not color as brightly, and the leaves lack that thick, leathery texture and glossy appearance, and the plants are not so satisfactory in the houses. They also chill very easily, and if this happens the berries drop off. It is much better to finish them from this time on in a bright, sunny house, with good ventilation; this will tend to color up the fruit and give the plants a much healthier appearance, and they will prove more satisfactory. We have seen these plants, where grown cool and not forced, hold their berries until the next year's crop was borne. Keep a sharp lookout for scale on ardisias; they quickly get covered with the brown scale unless carefully watched, and when these insects appear constant washing is the great remedy. Clean off the first that appear. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Catch Crops.

With the close competition that the greenhouse man is up against at the present day it does not pay to have any of the bench room idle, or if a crop shows that it is not going to succeed and be remunerative it had better be thrown out and the room occupied by something that will pay. The several different plants and flowers have their seasons, and when they are done a succeeding crop should be all ready prepared to take the place. It therefore pays to have some catch crop ready in cases of this kind. There are many annuals that can be grown and carried along in small pots and if not used and eventually discarded the loss is small. These, if planted out in the benches, will bloom in the early spring and give a very welcome variety to the flowers of that season. There are many flowers grown today that were first grown as catch crops, such as the antirrhinum. Among others which might be grown this way are the centaureas, either bachelor's buttons or sweet sultans, nasturtiums, lupines, calendulas, eschscholtzias, salpiglossis, schizanthus, stocks and others. There are also many of the early blooming perennials which can be lifted and heeled in where they can be easily obtained during the winter and transplanted to the greenhouse. Among these are Coreopsis lanceolata, Aquilegia cerulea, gaillardias, heuceras, sweet william, and others which the grower has in stock. A dealer will always find customers who appreciate these flowers, which are often not seen during the winter months, and by having the stock of a few of these odd things one can often plant out a section of a bench that otherwise would not be returning any revenue, and thereby prevent loss.

Begonia Rex.

With the advent of steady firing and a warm propagating bench the cuttings of Begonia Rex should be started at once if good plants are desired for spring and summer growing. These plants are very ornamental when well grown and the leaves can be used in much floral work. These plants are raised from either shoot or leaf cuttings, but where many are propagated the latter method is generally employed. Well matured leaves that are healthy and vigorous are selected and two methods can be adopted. The leaf can be cut several times through the midrib and its branches and then placed on the propagating bed and the cuts pegged down to the sand. A wire in the shape of a hair pin will do this. Or the leaf may be cut into triangular pieces, with the rib as the apex, and these cuttings inserted in the sand as other cuttings are with the point down. Another method sometimes adopted is to cut the leaf in two parts lengthwise and the two halves are stood erect in the sand. The cutting bench should be shaded and if covered with glass and kept close the propagation will be more rapid and successful. The small leaves will shortly protrude from the sand and when the roots have attained a length of half an inch or more they can be potted in soil consisting of two parts loam, one part leaf-mold, one part well-rotted manure, and one part sand. They will require a warm temperature, and when watering be careful not to wet the foliage, especially where the sun shines upon them, or holes in the leaves will be the result. They should be shifted into larger pots as required and as the plants grow coarser soil may be used in the potting. They make much handsomer plants when grown in shady locations rather than in the full sunlight.

Stevia.

The early stevia will now be coming into flower, but if the plants are in pots, and there are a good large number, they should not be brought into flower all at once. By keeping some of the plants in a cool location they can be retarded so that plants may be had in bloom up to February. A house or deep frame where the night temperature can be kept just above the freezing point will hold them in check and they can be brought in as desired.

The dwarf variety is very easily handled in this manner, but the tall plants are not so easily moved around. Keep the plants well tied up for the joints are very brittle and break down easily, and the long variety should be very carefully handled even after the sprays are cut, for they break down with their own weight when in flower.

ERIE, PA.—J. V. Laver, the well-known grower of this city, has purchased the Wm. F. Kasting Co. range, which is devoted to roses, and will operate the same as a wholesale establishment in connection with his retail store.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Thanksgiving.

Now is the time to plan for this important flower selling event. It is one of the holidays that people arrange for beforehand, much of the business being done before the final day. The dwelling is always put in order for Thanksgiving; it is the great home-coming time when everything is to look at its best; there will be flowers wanted for vases, and the table must look its best for the feast, but before this, the palms, ferns, and other house plants must all be in place, adding life and beauty and a finishing touch that only nature can give.

To meet this demand, which is one of the features of the trade in early November, there are a number of suitable plants in medium to larger sizes that should be in every wide awake florist's stock. A dozen or two specimens in from six to 10-inch pots, in jardinières or baskets standing on pedestals about the shop, give the place a live, up to date appearance. As these move off they should be replenished—there is nothing like a full stock to please customers. Among the first selections are the kentias, both Belmoreana and Forsteriana, single and made up. The green tubs are more popular than the pots, and most of the stock is now grown in these handy receptacles. Arecas are coming in again; they will do almost as well as the kentias, and nothing is more beautiful and decorative than a bushy areca.

Ficus pandurata, with its broad odd-shaped leaves, is very striking; if the leaves are kept polished with a dry cloth, showing the white veins, they are sure to attract much attention. F. utilis is another fine specimen in this family, while the old F. elastica still has many friends. Dracenas fragrans and Massangeana are both very ornamental and popular house plants. Pandanus Veitchii, with its striped leaves, always takes the public's fancy and in many houses will do very well. For color, there is nothing more effective than the crotons; while not so hardy as the others, they are almost certain to find customers who, attracted by their brilliant coloring, take them for what they are. The aspidistra fills the bill for the people "who have no luck with plants"—it can be sold with a guarantee.

Nothing is more salable or adds so much to the decorative effect of a store as the Boston fern and its numerous large family; these graceful ferns are easily the most popular of house plants and no stock is complete without them. If the height of the ceiling will permit, well furnished plants in pairs, suspended by chains or cords running through pulleys attached to the ceiling, one plant balancing the other, add greatly to the effect and fill up the high space so objectionable in some stores. A line of pot covers and jardinieres, kept fresh and clean, will often find purchasers in connection with plants, if the attention of the buyers is called to them. In some shops all plants are kept in such receptacles and priced together.

All kinds of supplies should now be in stock or anything needed ordered at once. It is not necessary to buy heavily of any one article unless something exclusive may be secured by taking the whole stock. Flower bowls and holders are still good, although no longer the novelty of the last two years; they had a wonderful sale.

Plant baskets are now filled by some of the growers quite as well as they are done by the artists in the stores. The latest styles and colorings are selected, the liners filled with choice plants, which after a two or three weeks' start at the greenhouse, are then exposed for sale in the stores. With the addition of cut flowers in tubes and a ribbon decoration, they are most attractive and salable.

For a window decoration, baskets of fruit and flowers are very appropriate. When nicely arranged they certainly catch the eye and often the dollars. A tall open-work gypsy basket, filled with fancy apples and pears and topped with flowers, is effective, the fruit being readily seen through the open willow-work in the bottom. A number of smaller baskets of flowers with bunches of grapes tied with ribbons to the handles, which can be suspended to fill the center of the window, will be found good sellers.

The regulation grain sheaves and corn stalks, with partially husked ears and other evidences of a good harvest, make a showy and seasonable window, though by this time lacking in novelty. Variety may be given by a display of college ribbons and pennants, foot balls and other such paraphernalia, featuring the final college foot ball game that is played in nearly every large city on that day. Corsages of violets and other flowers, tied with college ribbons, should be prominently displayed, for which there is generally great demand.

Advertising is in order, which if judiciously done by neatly printed folders mailed to each patron, and desired customers from selected lists, is bound to give good results. Great publicity can be obtained through the columns of the daily press, if one's business will warrant the expenditure. There are always quantities of cut flowers used for Thanksgiving day; no one with guests in the house would think of sitting down to the table without a few flowers. At some special dinners the decorations are quite elaborate. High vases, with long stemmed chrysanthemums well above the line of vision, and a grouping of low baskets and vases of fruit, chrysanthemums and autumn leaves along the center, with a few smaller vases of Mrs. Ward roses, make a pretty and seasonable setting.

It should be some one person's business to see that the goods in the store are all placed where they will give the best decorative effect and at the same time be conveniently near to the customers who may be interested or prevailed on to making purchases. At busy times this orderly placing is often overlooked, but its importance will warrant its being properly looked after. The holiday buying brings many strangers and others who only come in occasionally, and to them the store should look at its best.

Birthday Reminders.

Here is, to us, a new idea that illustrates one entertaining side of American married life.

A well-known florist sends out indiscriminately to prosperous and supposedly affectionate husbands a cheerful little postal card. On it is written, "Date of my wife's birthday—remind me of it."

The affectionate husband mails it back to the florist.

Then, every year, on the birthday of "the dear one," or a day before, the florist rings up the husband and says, "What about your wife's birthday? Any flowers?"

The husband says, "Thanks very much for reminding me. Send up a box of roses, with 'Much Love and Devotion' written on a card. Don't forget to remind me next year."

The wife gets the box of flowers on her birthday and the card with all the love and devotion. The husband pays the bill and all is serene in that happy American home.

The husband goes down to his work making money.

The wife leans back in her straight front or crooked front corset and says to all her friends as they come in and roll up their eyes when they see the flowers, "Yes, Henry never forgets."

Dear Henry doesn't forget, thanks to the florist.

How many American homes are kept happy and smooth by these intelligent reminders?—Chicago American.

Louisville Decorations.

The F. Walker Co. arranged a very handsome decoration November 16, the occasion being a debutante ball at the Woman's Club. The walls of the ballroom were draped with smilax and rustic baskets filled with ferns were placed in all of the windows. In the center of the ceiling was a dome of smilax from which fell garlands of the same supporting Chinese lanterns. The stage where the musicians were seated represented a Chinese garden with a background of ferns, palms and bay trees.

Spanish Irises Outdoors.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise whether Spanish irises are hardy in Illinois and the middle west.

O. W.

Yes, perfectly hardy and will increase with the years, usually flowering stronger than the newly imported bulbs. In heavy soil, add plenty of sand; no sand needed in light alluvial soil.

E. O. O.

Illinois.

I had always considered Spanish iris as not perfectly hardy for outdoor planting. Last fall we had an order from one of our customers to plant in her yard one thousand Spanish irises in separate colors. Before planting these irises I made inquiries among all florists in our locality, and one and all said Spanish irises are not hardy here. However, I went ahead and planted the bulbs in a very exposed location, covered about December first with leaves and then forgot all about the transaction. Imagine my surprise when the same customer phoned me the other day that she wished me to plant 2,000 more Spanish irises, as those planted last fall made a most beautiful show and were the admiration of all her friends and neighbors.

I believe most florists are laboring under the impression these irises are not hardy and am glad to answer "O. W.'s" inquiry. I feel sure that many of these bulbs can be sold at retail if recommended to customers as hardy.

Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co.

AN UP-TO-DATE SUPPLY HOUSE.

This company has a splendidly equipped building. Frederick Burki, its president, formed the company primarily to handle the product of his large establishment and that of a few other growers of the neighborhood. More growers soon sought his market; then supplies were added, and now, in the large store of three floors, each 40x110 feet and a basement of similar size, all with high ceilings, there is to be found a wonderfully full and assorted stock of everything in florists' supplies. Wire designs are made in quantity on the third floor, labor-saving machinery being a great factor. Three car loads of corrugated boxes, bought before the rise, are a valuable asset, as is a large stock of florists' wire, also gathered in last year. The second floor is the basket department; four factories supply this stock in addition to the imported line. It is a very large and up-to-date assortment. Wax and artificial flowers occupy a large space, they being in great demand with the country trade. The first floor gallery contains a full line of ribbons, chiffons, letters, etc.

The cut flower business is transacted on the main floor, large refrigerators in the rear, store the stock when necessary. An old-fashioned ice box, now cooled by a cold storage plant, is fitted with zinc trays or drawers, in which can be stored 30,000 short stemmed roses, and Mr. Langhans, the chief here, says they are much better kept and handled in this way. The carnation section of the box, or room, is kept cool with fresh air from the outside.

The basement has a large auxiliary box for wild smilax and other greens and peonies in season. Great bins are filled with sphagnum and sheet moss.

The automatic refrigerating plant and a large furnace in which all garbage and old flower stock is consumed have sections here. Boxwood, which is handled in large quantities, is all received direct from the growers by express, which insures its fresh condition. T. P. Langhans and W. A. Clarke are members of the firm, in charge and always on the job. Taking it all in all, this is one of the most complete supply houses of the country.

MODEL RANGE AT BAKERSTOWN.

When the ranges of glass that constitute the flower growing department of this great business loom suddenly into sight as one reaches the summit of the hill on the road from the station at Bakerstown, Pa., some 22 miles from Pittsburgh, its great extent, over 900,000 square feet, nearly all visible at once, is most surprising, even to the visitor who expected something large. The place is built on both sides of a ravine, at the bottom of which are two ponds that hold rain and spring water, which is pumped to an elevated tank on an adjoining hill, which furnishes the pressure. This is brought to a temperature of about 60 degrees, required for watering and syringing, during the winter season by a series of steam coils. The heating plants are also situated in the ravine; there are eight return tubular boilers of 150 horsepower each.

This is an intensely practical place—the houses are all Lord & Burnham iron construction, some in the very large carnation range form a series of roofs with narrow gutters, covering the slope of the side of the hill. This house must be 500 feet each way. The condition of the plants in this range and in two other large houses, 30x450 feet, is such as would gladden the heart of any grower. They show a health and vigor and wealth of buds that reflect great credit to the men in charge.

Two beds, five feet in width and 450 feet each in length, are filled with plants for stock from which the first bunch of cuttings have been taken. The varieties are those that are difficult to get shoots from when forced for flowers. About 300,000 young plants are raised—it takes 200,000 to fill the houses. Some are sold, and where stock is small they are doubled up in planting so as to insure full crops. When the stock plants are thrown out in the spring, carnations from small pots are planted close together in their place, where they are pinched and make stocky, bushy plants that are wonderfully benefitted before planting out time. Asters follow when these go outside and help to keep up the "jingle of the shekels" until the stock carnations again demand the space.

The flowering carnations are an all the year round crop, the old stock holding out until the young plants are ready to take their place. The varieties favored are White Wonder, their standard in its color; Winsor, which does not split for dark pink, and Mrs. Ward, Enchantress Supreme and Delight for light pink. White Perfection is best in hot weather. Planting commences

August 1 and goes on as fast as possible. Bone flour, sheep, and liquid manure are the stimulants when necessary, but good compost is the first essential. The carnation benches are five feet in width.

Three long benches of yellow daisies were a feature. These were planted in troughs six inches in width across the tables and about 12 inches apart. This is done to get them root-bound, so as to ripen the wood and make them throw flowers. Selected cuttings for these were rooted the first two weeks in June. In making cuttings, plants that show a short, stunted growth are avoided; only free-growing, lively looking shoots will make flowering wood—the heavy, closely leaved shoot that produces one large flower is particularly to be avoided.

The roses are kept to a high standard—there are about 75,000 plants. Fifty thousand of these are Killarneys, two-thirds pink, the balance white, some of them double. Richmonds are a feature and are done wonderfully well. A large house of Ophelia is easily up to its reputation full of long-stemmed buds. Mrs. Ward, some Shawyer, Cecile Brunner, J. L. Mock, which is one of cut-and-come-again kind, and Mrs. Russell, which latter does not quite fill the bill here for quantity, make up the assortment. In one-half of a 50x400-foot house Killarney was being manipulated to be at its best at Thanksgiving, the other end for Christmas. After then, no more pinching until near Easter, when some long stock was thought advisable.

Asparagus is an important product; two very large houses are filled with stock for strings and sprays. There are also several quite large blocks in some of the other houses. Wires, similar to carnation supports, are used to keep up the sprays and give more light and air to the beds.

A low range of ridge and furrow houses are filled with chrysanthemums—28,000 plants. Nothing could be done better than these, planted in ground beds, green-leaved to the very soil; the large varieties grown two stems to a plant, supported with iron rose stakes, with one wire to each row the length of the bed, to which the tops of the stakes are fastened with a short clip. Pompons were masses of flowers, nicely supported with wires, as in carnation beds—a fine assortment. The large varieties favored were Smith's Advance, Polly Rose, Unaka, Golden Glow, Razer, the Chadwicks, Pink and White Chieftain, Bonaffon, Maud Dean and Old Time Ivory. There was a fine bed of Golden Wedding for late.

Ten thousand cattleyas, labiata just going out, and triana, a splendidly budded lot of plants that will be at their best at the holidays, filled a large house.

Much of the rose stock is grown on raised benches, with tiles laid the cross way to allow for drainage and circulation of warm air to the roots. Much importance was attached to this feature at first, but now it is being done away with as benches have to be replaced, the beds without tile having been found to do equally well, particularly as their soil is very porous.

Frank Kocher, the superintendent, under President Burki a grower of national reputation, has had charge of the place since 1902, when the first houses were erected and the splendid condition of the various stocks show him to be one of the most skilled growers of the country.

The McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

This wholesale commission and florists' supply house occupies all floors of its building on Sandusky street, the first for their outflow, while the upper stories are the store rooms and wire work and basket departments, where a large force is kept busy working up stock and getting out special designs and baskets to order. The Company also has a large greenhouse establishment of some 80,000 feet of ground, covered with glass, the specialty being roses and carnations. Chrysanthemums are also grown.

The new chrysanthemum, Mrs. M. R. Morgan, originated with this firm. It is a beautiful Golden Wedding color, one of the sensations of last year's Cleveland show. They found a ready sale for 5,000 blooms this year. They are having a great booking for young plants. A white sport is being carefully propagated. In addition to stock of local consignors, this company handles choice roses, lily of the valley, orchids, gardenias, etc., from eastern growers, who find the Pittsburgh market an excellent one for high grade flowers at the best market price.

For the past 18 months there had been an excellent demand until only recently, in fact, Mr. McCallum said, the past week or two had been the first time in that period when there was any semblance of a glut and cold weather of the last few days had righted things again. He is sure that business will be good from now on, with a demand at good prices for all high grade stock.

A. W. Smith Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

This splendid flower store is one of the largest in the country. Situated at the corner of Liberty and Sandusky streets, in the heart of the retail district, it is passed daily by many thousands of people. Its front on Liberty street is 30 feet, with a depth on Sandusky of 90 feet. Very large, continuous bulk windows give the interior an almost greenhouse illumination. A continuous and very ornamental ice box, 80 feet in length, borders one side of the store. On a row of irregularly placed tables are displayed plants, vases of flowers and all the up-to-date bric-a-brac of a first class store. The very high ceiling affords space for a 10-foot wide gallery, 80 feet in length. The work room and offices are on the third floor—a very large space, 60x90 feet, well fitted up for the various departments.

This is the home of the dollar box of flowers. This feature was started by the firm about 15 years ago, and was extensively advertised to get everybody in Pittsburgh and vicinity familiar with the house of A. W. Smith Co., Florists, and became so popular and taxed their facilities to such an extent at holiday seasons, that they had to cut it out at all such busy periods, but the firm still advertises in street cars for week-end sales. Their sales for these boxes for special occasions grew from one thousand to two until finally they were swamped with orders for over 3,000 for Valentines Day. When asked if a reputation for $1 boxes lowered the quality or cheapened business in the eyes of the public, Mr. Smith said he believed it did to a certain extent, but many of their customers were of the wealthy class, who were always sure of getting high grade flowers with them. They cater, however, to the middle class, who are the largest buyers, and he believes the extensive advertising was profitable as it brought them much of that trade of which the dollar box was but a small part. The company has taken up landscaping, which is now an important department, employing an office force of architects and draughtsmen and at times, in spring and fall, a very large number of outside men.

Much of the cut flower and nursery stock is grown at Canfield, Ohio, where they have 200,000 feet of glass. Another establishment, in the suburbs of Pittsburgh, of some 50,000 feet is stocked with decorative plants, and here also is forced their bulbous stock for the store.

Everything is done on a large scale, requiring a regular force of over 200 employees. It is one of the show places of the city—a revelation to the out-of-town visitor.

'Kasting Co.'s Formal Opening.

The Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., had the formal opening of its new and commodious wholesale house, 568-570 Washington street, November 16, the entire establishment being thrown open for the inspection of the trade and their friends. A description of this model building is best given by starting with the basement where the power plant is located which operates the ice-making machine; also, the elevators, both freight and passenger. Here is also the storage room for shipping cases, vases and such other sundries as are in constant use. The main floor is given over almost exclusively to flowers, except the space reserved for the cases for ribbons, chiffons, etc., that are wanted in small quantities. The ice box, extending nearly the entire width of the store, is of the latest design and very commodious. This forms a partition separating the salesroom from the receiving and shipping departments at the rear. Large tables here are conveniently arranged for handling the stock.

The second floor is an up-to-date supply house, where baskets, doves, ribbons, paper, crepe, designs of all kinds, thread, string, etc., are kept in quantity. The rear of this floor is given over to a first-class wire factory where all the firm's wire work is made. The third floor is light and well ventilated and is admirably adapted for use as a show room for flowering and foliage plants, where at Christmas, Easter and other occasions customers can choose their plants and have plenty of room in which to make their selections. The fourth floor is used to house large stocks of moss, etc.

On the occasion of the formal opening the third floor was given over to dancing and refreshments, the visitors being welcomed by E. C. Brucker, surviving active partner, who was ably assisted by Wallace Eiss, secretary of the company, and La Fay Wilkey, executor. Messrs. Klinkenmeyer and Deutcher and Misses Cassidy and Nolan, all of whom are associated in the sales and office departments, were also on the reception committee. Wm. F. Kasting, Jr., John Kasting and Miss Laura Kasting were also present and helped to perpetuate the name of Kasting.

Horticultural Society of New York.

The exhibition of the Horticultural Society of New York, which was held in the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Central Park West, New York, November 9-12, was if anything a greater success than those of previous years and was attended daily by thousands of delighted visitors. While the specimen chrysanthemum plants did not compare in size with those staged last year, they were seen in greater numbers, the quality could hardly be improved upon, and their splendid arrangement in the main hall produced a marvelously striking color effect. The exhibits in the cut bloom section were also of high order. Among the odd shaped plants on display, many novelties came in for much attention. Two fan-shaped plants of different colors grown in the same tub, presented pink on one side and white on the reverse, while a bush grown to a steamboat shape complete with smokestack, etc., was another center of attraction. Roses, carnations, orchids and flowering and foliage plants were also featured with excellent stock.

In the chrysanthemum plant section, open to all, the awards were as follows: Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y. (John Canning, Supt.), five first prizes; W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y. (R. M. Johnston, Gr.), three first and three second prizes; Chas. Mallory, Port Chester, N. Y. (W. J. Sealey, Gr.), and G. D. Barron, Rye, N. Y. (James Linane, Gr.), one first and one second prize each; F. E. Lewis, Ridgefield, Conn. (J. W. Smith, Gr.), two second prizes; J. R. Lamar, Glen Cove, N. Y. (Robt. Marshall, Gr.), one first prize.

In chrysanthemum cut blooms, open to commercial growers, Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., was first with seven first and one second prizes. Scott Bros., Elmsford, N. Y., captured second honors in the class for the collection of 25 varieties also in the two collections of pompons. In the chrysanthemum classes for non-commercial growers, the following were successful contestants: Adolph Lewisohn, Duke's Farm, Somerville, N. J.; Henry Goldman, Deal Beach, N. J.; Frederick Sturges, Fairfield, Conn.; Miss M. T. Cockcroft, Saugatuck, Conn.; Mrs. Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y.; Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Mrs. E. S. Beyer, Mt. Kisco, N. Y.; A. N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass.; G. B. Schley, Far Hills, N. J.; Adrian Iselin, Jr., H. M. Tilford, Tuxedo, N. Y., and E. L. Meyer, Huntington, N. Y.

In the division for rose cut blooms, open to commercial growers, F. R. Pierson Co., Cromwell, Conn., was first in the classes for 50 American Beauty and for 50 red, Louis A. Noe, Madison, N. J., and Chas. H. Totty, taking second honors respectively in the classes named. In the classes for 50 white, 50 pink and 50 yellow, Louis A. Noe captured the blue ribbons, with Chas. H. Totty second in the two last named. Mr. Totty was also awarded a silver medal for a variety not in commerce. Non-commercial growers who secured awards were: Richard Delafield, Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; P. Heeremans, Lenox, Mass.; Duke's Farm, Mrs. E. C. Converse, Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. J. H. Flagler, Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Pauline Boettger, Riverdale, N. Y., and H. M. Tilford.

In carnation cut blooms in the commercial class, the Cottage Gardens Co.,

Queens, N. Y., captured high honors for 50 white; also a silver medal, sweepstakes for the finest vase and a diploma for a new variety. Leading contestants for honors among the non-commercial growers included Thomas Aitchison, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Mrs. E. S. Bayer, Henry Goldman, W. B. Thompson, H. M. Tilford, Mrs. E. C. Converse, Mrs. Payne Whitney, G. B. Schley, F. Heeremans, Mrs. J. C. Brady, Gladstone, N. Y., and D. E. Oppenheimer, Yonkers.

In the foliage and decorative plant section, open to all, F. R. Pierson Co. was awarded first prize for a splendid display of Nephrolepis exaltata and its varieties. A splendid exhibit of bay trees staged by the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., also took first honors in its class. The non-commercial exhibitors were W. B. Thompson, winner of the society's silver cup and $50 in cash for group of plants occupying 150 square feet; Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mrs. Pauline Boettger, and G. B. Schley.

In the orchid groups, the Julius Roehrs Co., J. A. Manda and Lager & Hurrell were all first prize winners in the various classes. Thomas Moore, Hackensack, N. J., and Samuel Untermeyer, Yonkers, N. Y., were first and second respectively in four classes open to non-commercial growers. The Clement Moore special prize for hybrid, not the largest, but for the finest plant, was won by A. N. Cooley with Laeli-cattleya Firminii. This plant was also awarded the sweepstakes prize for being the best orchid plant exhibited.

Special prizes were awarded to Young & Nugent, John Scheepers & Co., Inc., Adolph Lewisohn, Roland R. Conklin, Albert Crane, R. Mortimer, Mrs. Wm. Barr, Geo. Giatras, Mrs. H. Darlington, Mrs. J. C. Brady, Frederick Sturges, Mrs. F. A. Constable, Clement Moore, Chas. Mallory and Wm. Shillaber. Chas. H. Totty was awarded certificate of merit for display of chrysanthemums and Duke's Farm received a silver medal for grapes and melons.

In the decorated dinner table for eight persons, chrysanthemum blooms only with any appropriate foliage, Mrs. Payne Whitney was first, W. B. Thompson, second and Thos. Aitchison, third.

The judges were Wm. Robertson, W. H. Waite, Wm. Mackay, Geo. Foulsham, Alex. Robinson and Thos. Wilson. The total attendance was 193,000.

Texas State Flower Show.

The third annual exhibition of the Texas State Florists' Association in conjunction with the Dallas Woman's Forum was held at Dallas, November 15-17, and proved to be the most successful in the history of the association. The premium list covered a wide range of subjects, with divisions for florists of the state only, those from points outside of the state and separate classes for amateurs. The entries were numerous and well staged and the competition in many of the classes was keen. Liberal prizes were donated by the following: E. C. Amling Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, Kroeschell Bros. Lake Geneva Flower Show.

The twelfth annual chrysanthemum exhibition of the Lake Geneva Gardeners' Association, held at Horticultural hall, November 10-12, was a great success, the quality and arrangement of the subjects staged, being of the best and the attendance very satisfactory.

In the main hall the "Queen of Autumn" reigned supreme; huge exhibition blooms, graceful singles, dainty pompons, and anemones were all here in bewildering display, and in the class for large groups, these four types were blended with palms and ferns into one artistic whole. The prize winners here were J. J. Mitchell (A. J. Smith, Gr.), first; Mrs. F. T. A. Junkin (A. Johnson, Gr.), second; Mrs. N. W. Harris (A. Montgomery, Gr.), third. F. D. Countiss (A. Martini, Gr.), had an arrangement differing slightly from the others. This evidently did not meet with the judges' favor.

In the class for group of singles, Mrs. A. C. Allerton (R. Blackwood, Gr.), took premier honors, C. L. Hutchinson (W. P. Longland, Gr.), being second. The latter exhibitor was first for group of pompons. A special prize was awarded Mr. Wrigley, Jr. (C. Lockwood, Gr.), for a group composed of both of these types.

In the class for 12 Wm. Turner, A. J. Smith led with very fine examples, being closely followed by A. Johnson and R. Blackwood. For 12 yellows A. J. Smith again won with Col. Appleton. For 12 pink, R. Blackwood was first with Elberon, C. Lockwood, second, and A. J. Smith, third. For 12 crimson, R. Blackwood and A. J. Smith won in the order named, showing F. T. Quittenton and Crimson Pockett. For 12 blooms, any other color, A. J. Smith won with Mad. L. Rousseau, while for 12 blooms, four varieties, R. Blackwood and C. Lockwood took first and second respectively.

The class for 10 blooms, 10 varieties, brought three competitors, R. Blackwood leading, A. J. Smith second, C. Lockwood third. For six blooms of Turner, R. Blackwood was again to the fore, while six, any other white, was annexed by Mrs. Boissot (J. Balsdon, Gr.). For six blooms one variety, incurred, Odessa was the winning flower, being exhibited in first place by R. Blackwood, A. Johnson, second, C. Lockwood, third. For six blooms pink, A. Johnson led with Well's Late Pink, C. Lockwood and R. Blackwood following in the order named. The same order was maintained in the class calling for six crimson. R. Blackwood scored again with six bronze, with Bronze Brighthurst.

Special mention must be made of the very fine specimen plants exhibited by R. Blackwood, A. J. Smith and A. Johnson, the former exhibitor's plant of Anna being awarded a certificate of merit. Other fine varieties were Greystone, Nellie Pockett and Klondyke. For singles in six-inch pots, A. Johnson, and W. Wahlstedt, gardener to Mrs. H. H. Porter were the respective winners. A. J. Smith led for single stems in the same size pots. This exhibitor also won for group of palms, using kentia, latania, and phoenix in good condition. A. Montgomery won in the group of foliage plants, using crotons, pandanus, dracaenas, etc. For specimen fern, A. J. Smith won with a fine piece of Polypodium Mandanum, while for three ferns, A. Martini won with good examples of nephrolepis, adiantum and polypodium. For six begonias, A. Johnson led with Mrs. Peterson, C. Lockwood second with Lorraine and J. Balsdon, third, with B. fuschoides. Single plants, A. Johnson, with Cincinnati. For basket of plants, Wm. Wahlstedt scored. Anything not scheduled, was won by A. J. Smith with vase of Liliun giganteum.

Roses and carnations were staged in the meeting room and were exceptionally fine in quality. For 18 blooms of American Beauty, A. J. Smith was awarded a certificate of merit. In the class for 12 Ophelia, C. Lockwood, R. Blackwood, and A. Johnson were the respective winners. For 12 white, R. Blackwood and A. Johnson won in the order named, both using Kaiserin Augusta Victoria. My Maryland produced three competitors, R. Blackwood, first, Ed. Swift (R. J. Sampson, Gr.), second, C. Lockwood, third. R. Blackwood won from A. Johnson for vase of yellow, both entering Sunburst. This he repeated with Hoosier Beauty, C. Lockwood being second. Mrs. Chas.

Russell produced but one entry, A. Johnson, with nice flowers.

In the class for 12 white carnations, A. J. Smith led, A. Johnson, and C. Lockwood being second and third. For light pink, Sensation, shown by A. Johnson, took the honors, A. J. Smith following with Philadelphia. In dark pink, this order was reversed, the varieties being Northport Beauty and seedling 1912. In the class for crimson, A. J. Smith won from C. Lockwood, both using Princess Dagmar. Twenty-five blooms, mixed, brought three entries; A. J. Smith, A. Johnson, and J. Balsdon winning in the order named. Vase of cut flowers, other than chrysanthemums, was won by R. Blackwood, using roses, A. Johnson, second, with Liliun Melpomene and Asparagus elongatum; C. Lockwood, third, with a mixed vase of Browallia speciosa, Cuphea platycentra and stevia.

Of vegetables and fruit there was not an extensive display, but the quality was of the best. A. Martini, A. Johnson, R. J. Niles, J. Balsdon, A. Montgomery, and C. Ackerson were the prize winners in the different classes.

The judging was efficiently carried out by Messrs. Head, McNaughton, and Francis, of Lake Forest, Ill.

Cleveland Flower Show.

The executive committee will meet November 22 in the office of Wm. G. Mather, president of the Ohio Horticultural Society, to receive the final report of the second annual Cleveland flower show from M. A. Vinson, manager. At the same time plans will be started for the third annual show to be held on a big scale in the Coliseum, November 6-11, 1917.

The following is an additional list of awards not included in judges' report of November 11:

CERTIFICATES OF MERIT.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., group of novelty chrysanthemums not for competition.

Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., group of pompon and single chrysanthemums, not for competition.

John A. Then, Chicago, new carnation Thenanthos.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., new pink pompon chrysanthemum "Little Gem."

H. P. Eells, Cleveland, O., Asparagus Sprengeri.

HONORABLE MENTION.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., new chrysanthemum "Barbara Davis."

Nag-ir-roc Gardens, Wickliffe, O., group of palms and stove plants, and vase of pompon and single chrysanthemums.

Anna Dean Farms, Barberton, O., vase Sunburst roses not for competition.

New Orleans Flower Show.

The floral display which was a feature of the national farm show, held at New Orleans, La., November 11-19, was the largest ever held in that city and far ahead of anything before seen in the south, every florist in the city participating. Chrysanthemums were the feature, both specimen plants and cut blooms, and especially interesting to the public were the perfect types grown in 5-inch and 6-inch pots. There was also a good display of pompons and anemones. Practically every flower known in the south was included in the exhibition and the general arrangement of the exhibits was exceptionally good. Chas. W. Eichling was superintendent of the show and the judging was in the hands of Emile Vallejo, pioneer florist; Alfred Weller, of Audubon park, and Fred Broecker, of City park.

A feature of the fair, at all times surrounded by admiring throngs, was a beautiful crown of flowers, designed by Harry Papworth, of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co. On an immense pillow of yellow chrysanthemums rested the royal symbol of Rex, its gold represented by hundreds of yellow pompons, the lining, by rich colored Louisiana violets. It was thoroughly original and gorgeous, and typified New Orleans. H. C. T.

Texas State Florists' Association.

At the annual meeting of the Texas State Florists' Association held at Dallas, November 15-17, the committee on resolutions composed of H. O. Hannah, A. Y. Koehle and H. Kaden, reported as follows:

We, your resolution committee, appointed by you at a called meeting of the association, do herein report as follows:

First, the association extends sincere thanks to the ladies of the Dallas Woman's Forum for their earnest and continued work, for the concessions obtained by them, their constant attendance and enthusiastic support and zealous work in making this the best state flower show ever held by the Texas State Florists' Association.

Second, we thank the Dallas florists for their earnest work and their financial aid and their complete success in arranging exhibits and decorating the building.

Third, we extend our sincere gratitude to every exhibitor, but especially to those outside of our state for their magnificent and abundant display in cut flowers and plants. Much credit is due them for the success of the show and for which every florist should reciprocate.

Fourth, we extend thanks to everyone outside the state, who so liberally donated to make the show a success.

Fifth, we appreciate and thank the Dallas press and the trade papers for the space, good words and publicity given the show.

Sixth, we thank the citizens of Dallas for their attendance and liberal patronage.

We, your resolution committee, appointed by you at a called meeting of the association, herein report as follows upon the death of our much beloved fellow craftsman, Thomas Joy of the Joy Floral Company, of Nashville, Tennessee:

We express our sincere sorrow and sympathy to his bereaved family in their great loss. We recognized in him a man of great merit, who made the world more beautiful by his life and scattered sunshine and cheer in his association. His life among us was like an unfolding rose bud and we believe across the River in the Paradise above, it will unfold to a life of eternal happiness.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this association, a copy be furnished his bereaved family and a copy furnished the trade papers.

ALTOONA, PA.—John Forbes, formerly head gardener at the August Belmont estate, Newport, R. I., will take charge of the Schwab estate here, December 1.

OTTAWA, ONT.—Scrim's on Catherine street, held its annual chrysanthemum show, November 9-11, and it was largely attended by the public. This year's exhibit was excellent both in quality of stock and arrangement, the variety being a noteworthy feature.

Cincinnati.SLIGHTLY IMPROVED MARKET CONDITIONS.

Business has shown a slight improvement since the time of the last writing, but it is not substantial enough as yet to make any material difference. The supply, though not as large at it was, still can more than take care of all present demands. A few days of cold weather last week were succeeded by balmy weather this week. Chrysanthemums are still in a glut and the chances are that this condition of the market will continue up to Thanksgiving. Roses, too, are very plentiful. Carnations are in a supply that is too large for present wants of the retailers. The Easter lily supply, too, is more than ample for present needs. Receipts of sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids are equal to requirements. Calla lilies and Paper Whites have only an ordinary market.

NOTES.

P. J. Olinger has one new boiler at his greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., all set and ready for use.

J. A. Peterson & Sons are selling many begonias for the Thanksgiving trade.

C. E. Critchell has been having a big demand for roses.

Visitors: William Coats, Montgomery, Ala.; Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and G. A. Beckman and wife, of Middletown, O.

H.

Kansas City, Mo.GOOD SALES AT SATISFACTORY FIGURES.

The supply of chrysanthemums has been heavy during the past week, but has shortened somewhat and allowed the stores to clean up and at slightly advance prices. All sizes were to be had, but the fancy blooms which sold as high as $1 went best. Roses continue plentiful, but prices are remarkably moderate owing to chrysanthemum supply. Carnations are increasing in numbers daily and show better quality. White and yellow narcissi are seen in better supply and California violets are enjoying a good sale.

NOTES.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. had a big week in both local and shipping orders. Stock of all seasonable varieties is arriving in good shape from the greenhouses. Mrs. Fred. Lamb, who was formerly manager of the city store five years ago, will take the position again January 1.

A. F. Barbe reports good business, especially in funeral work, of which he has had a big run. Chrysanthemums, roses and carnations are plentiful here and he has everything in tip-top shape for the Thanksgiving rush.

W. J. Barnes is having heavy cuts of chrysanthemums, carnations and white and yellow narcissi. Pot plants move well. The week was marked by a heavy call for funeral designs.

The Amateur Gardeners' Association at a meeting November 16 elected officers for the ensuing year and arranged for cups and prizes for the spring show.

F. L. Horst has joined the store force at Arthur Newell's. Business here is said to be very good and the biggest Thanksgiving business ever is expected.

H. Kusik & Co. report business increasing daily with plenty of good stock. They received 2,000 rolls of Christmas frieze last week.

Ed. Humfeld has received his azaleas from Belgium and says they look good. He will push them to be in for the Christmas trade.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. is making big preparations for the Thanksgiving business. Business in general has been very good.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports business good in all departments. Stock is plentiful and the quality very good.

L. M. Gilday Floral Co. reports a good run on corsage and funeral work, with good sales of chrysanthemums.

T. J. Noll & Co. report that stock cleans up nicely. Orders for holiday supplies are also coming in well.

The Longview Farm & Floral Co. is cutting fancy carnations and chrysanthemums.

Visitors: Wm. Fuhlbruegge, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, and H. G. Knowlton with A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

E. J. B.

Indianapolis, Ind.SATISFACTORY SALES AND FAIR PRICES.

Weather, the coldest previous to Thanksgiving in many years, was welcomed by the local trade, as it held back the crops and curbed the glut. Prices are fair and the demand, especially for roses and carnations, is satisfactory. Chrysanthemums are seen in wonderful array in all of the stores, the large varieties not detracting from the popular pompons. The supply is plentiful, the quality fine and the demand fair. Pot plants are still holding their own, with chrysanthemums and ferns in the lead. Azaleas are arriving from abroad, but are not up to their usual standard.

NOTES.

The E. G. Hill Co. had a very attractive and elaborate opening at their local store November 16-17. There was a wonderful display of chrysanthemums—pompons, singles, seedlings and large specimens—roses, standard and novelties of recent introduction, orchids, bouvardias and other flowers.

The Temperly decorations in the banquet hall at the Claypool hotel during the convention of the W. C. T. U. were splendidly executed, the color effect being carried out with yellow and white chrysanthemums. Some very fine Bonnaffons have been a feature at the Temperly store this season.

Stale chrysanthemum blooms of inferior varieties have been falsely advertised by two department stores as "Large, beautiful chrysanthemums at 5 cents each." Street boys and transients have also disposed of much cheap stock, which tends to decrease sales.

B. F. Hensley has added a new car to the delivery service of the Hensley Flower Shop and a large auto truck has been purchased which will transport stock from the range, at Knightstown, to the store.

Frank Melick has taken a position as head grower at the National Co-operative Show Gardens at Spencer, Ind.

Baur & Steinkamp are planning to erect one new house in the spring.

Visitors: Allan Humason, Chicago; Edwin Morner, Shelbyville, Ind.; C. F. Meyer, New York; J. G. Chisholm, Cincinnati.

Detroit.VERY LOW PRICES PREVAIL.

Chrysanthemums dominate the market at present, and these with every item on the list of available flowers, are suffering alike from the low prices which are inevitable when the supply is so much in excess of the natural demand. Special sales of chrysanthemums and roses are alone responsible for the moving of the enormous stock this market has been afflicted with this fall, and but for these sales, with their low prices, the results for the growers would be still more deplorable than they are. With the prices of everything entering into the growing of flowers much advanced this year, little encouragement is held out to the greenhouse men, who have, despite the disadvantages under which they labored, produced stock, if possible, superior to that of former years, and are forced to dispose of it at prices not at all commensurate with the cost of growing. Hope, however, is held out for better conditions when the weather is colder and the season advances. The football game at Ann Arbor, Mich., November 18, was responsible for an outlet for thousands of yellow chrysanthemums, but still the supply keeps up and it is likely that the crop will end before Thanksgiving as the late varieties are now being cut. The azalea importations are now arriving and as some were caught in transit during the excessive cold period, frozen plants are added to the florists' troubles. The coal question, too, is worrying many who are unable to keep supplied even at the excessive prices demanded, and very little encouragement is given by the dealers, for early relief from the present situation.

NOTES.

Chas. H. Plumb is building a bungalow at Point Tremble, near Algonac, on the shore of Lake St. Clair, and here he and his family will spend the summer months hereafter.

Ernest Herman, who has been Beard Bros.' foreman for the past 12 years, has left that firm and intends to take a well earned rest. J. F. S.

Pittsburgh, Pa.STREET FAKIRS REAP HARVEST.

Again the street fakirs had another glorious week. Plenty of all kinds of stock made it possible for the "street boys" to reap a harvest. The retailers make their usual complaint, but what can be done? The stock has to be sold, and if the retailers do not buy it all, the wholesale houses do the next best thing—sell it to the fakirs. It looks as if stock will shorten up very soon and prices will hold firmer, which will please everyone. Chrysanthemums are still holding the boards, with all other flowers just as plentiful. Toward the end of last week roses were selling a little better and may continue on the advance. Carnations are selling about the same as last week. Violets have had quite a call, which helps to hold up the price. Sweet peas are not arriving in such great quantities so far. Lily of the valley is still scarce. Some Paper Whites are on the market, but have little call. Lilies are still selling at low prices. We all look for better conditions this week.

NOTES.

Randolph & McClements have been very busy with weddings all week.

A full account of the florists' club banquet will be given next week.

M.

The Late William H. Donohoe.

William H. Donohoe, formerly well-known in the retail trade of New York, died suddenly of pleuro-pneumonia, in that city, November 14. He at one time conducted a retail store on 28th street, near Fifth avenue, which was an unfortunate enterprise. He later went to Boston and was there for several years; we believe, with different firms. During the past summer, he was at Newport, R. I., with one of the New York firms that conduct summer stores in that city. He was a clever designer, decorator and salesman. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Anna G. Donohoe, and by his father, Frederick Donohoe, who is well-known in the florist and seed trade of New York. The deceased was about 43 years old. His funeral was held at the Church of the Holy Innocents, New York, November 16. Interment was in Woodlawn cemetery.

THANKSGIVING.

Advertisers and correspondents will please note that on account of Thanksgiving THE AMERICAN FLORIST will go to press one day earlier next week, and we trust they will mail their copy as early as possible.

REMEMBER freight shipments in box cars are traveling now at great risk. Freeze-ups are imminent in November and a drop to 20 above zero will damage nursery stock as well as more tender plants.

AZALEAS at auction in New York, Tuesday, November 21, 100 cases, 14 to 16-inch plants, went at 28 to 32 cents. A few cases of specimen plants were sold at $1.50 each. Bulbs went at fodder figures.

Pottery Prices Advanced.

Makers of pottery have announced an increase of 20 per cent in prices. This is the third advance in a year.

American Carnation Society.

Chrysanthemum Gall Midge.

Attention is called to the possibility of serious injury in commercial chrysanthemum houses by this recently introduced insect, an European species, which has been reported during the past season from such widely distributed localities as Maine, Delaware, Oregon and California, not to mention intermediate or Canadian points. This small gall midge passes most of its life within the gall, consequently it is easily distributed with infested plants and this accounts for the wide dissemination noted above.

Last year this new American pest caused serious injuries in a commercial chrysanthemum house in Michigan, and subsequent reports indicate equal damage on the Pacific coast. All portions of the plant are attacked, especially the newer growth, badly infested chrysanthemums being dwarfed, the stems are frequently greatly swollen and the plant so distorted as to possess no commercial value. The individual galls are only about one-twelfth of an inch long, oval, and are usually marked by more or less swelling, the gall itself frequently lying at an oblique angle to the leaf or stem surface. Breeding is practically continuous throughout the winter under greenhouse conditions. The midge itself is a frail, reddish fly only about one-fifteenth of an inch long. One of the easiest methods of detecting young and relatively inconspicuous galls is to allow the leaf to slip through the loosely closed fingers, a process which readily discloses the presence of slight swellings.

There is no very satisfactory method of fighting the pest after it has once become established in a greenhouse, and chrysanthemum growers are advised to use every practical means of preventing the introduction of infested plants. Badly infested chrysanthemums should be burned (they are practically worthless) as they are simply breeding places from which the insect may spread to uninfested plants. Repeated fumigation with hydrocyanic acid gas may be of some value as a repressive measure, though by no means entirely effective.

State Entomologist, Albany, N. Y.

Burpee's Hybrid Gladioli.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Referring to your illustration in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of November 18, page 914, of our exhibit of gladioli at the chrysanthemum show of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, a mistake is made in calling them primulinas hybrids. The gladioli we exhibited were all our new Fordhook hybrids, although, as I have been using primulinas in some of my crosses, a few of the spikes exhibited clearly showed the primulinas blood. They were, however, distinctly named Fordhook hybrids and the cards stated clearly that they were cut from plants the seed of which was sown June 13 and not July 1. GEORGE W. KERR.

— 1917 —

Our Novelties for 1917 are the best we have ever had. The finest of the year in the large flowering type will be—

LOUISA POCKETT

Mr. Pockett, who raised both varieties says that Louisa Pockett, will easily displace Wm. Turner as the best white in cultivation. From our knowledge of it I can endorse this statement.

In 1906 I distributed Beatrice May, which remained our standard white for years. Five years later in 1911, I distributed Wm. Turner and now after a lapse of five years, in 1917 I will distribute this sensational white that surpasses all others—Louisa Pockett.

This is a seedling from Turner but a larger flower and heavier grower.

Other splendid Novelties for 1917 will be: Nag-Ir-Roc, W. H. Waite, Pres. John Everitt, October King and Bol d'Or, January delivery, 2½ inch pots, $16.00 per dozen; $100.00 per 100.

We will also distribute Schaeffer's Phenomenal Japanese Anemones and our new Singles for 1917, are as usual, the Finest in the World.

HEAVY SUPPLY OF CARNATIONS.

A feature of the market during the past two weeks has been a tendency toward a glut in carnations, which brought down prices as low as 50 cents a dozen. They are now firming, with 75 cents as the standard. Carnations this season are very fine stock. A new variety of deep pink is the favorite. The cuts of chrysanthemums are slowing down very rapidly, with the prospect that they will be scarce for Thanksgiving. Prices still range from $1.50 to $5. Pompons are about gone. Roses, though not abundant, have been meeting requirements, and there will be a fine crop for the holiday trade. Some florists believe that red varieties will have passed their best yield a little too soon to realize fully on the high prices which always prevail at Christmas time. There will be plenty of other colors. Violets are prime stock and in unusual favor, at $1 a bunch. The first sweet peas are in, but are small, 50 cents a bunch being the selling figure. A week or two hence will see ample quantities of more desirable stock. The lily of the valley situation remains a problem, florists being unable to meet the wants of consumers, even at nearly double the prices of a year ago. In anticipation of a record trade, florists are giving much attention to receipts of azaleas, poinsettias and other Christmas stock. Business is moderately good, and looms up large for the immediate future, because of many important approaching social events.

NOTES.

A $2,000 planting contract is being taken care of by the Livingston Seed Company at the state capitol grounds. This includes a hedge of California privet around the entire 10-acre space, to replace the historic iron fence that has enclosed the grounds for a generation. A number of catawba trees are being planted, which will line the promenade from the McKinley monument to the capitol steps.

Charles F. Meyer, the well-known bulb importer of New York, was here last week. He reports that it is practically impossible to get lily of the valley pips and prophesies a complete famine in this country later.

CHOICE SHIPPING ROSES

RUSSELLS—We are growing the finest Russells arriving in this market. All visitors to the greenhouses in the Chicago district say that our Russell are the best here.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade. The roses which we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

STOCK IS NONE TOO PLENTIFUL.

Stock is none too plentiful at this writing and a few brisk days would find the market completely cleaned up in all lines. Chrysanthemums are not as numerous as they have been and what stock in this line that is now being offered is bringing very satisfactory prices. Some fine white and yellow Chadwick, Indian Summer and a few late Bonnafon and Enguehard are included in the many offerings and are having a good call. Pompoms are seen in large numbers and there are enough to go around, but the receipts are not quite as heavy as they have been. In pompoms there are a large number of varieties being offered with Mrs. Beu, Billy Primrose, Quinola, Golden Wedding and E. D. Godfrey having the best call. Roses are rather scarce, especially in the shorter stemmed grades, and while there are plenty of long stemmed flowers to go around, there is no great surplus to speak of. Mrs. Chas. Russell and American Beauty are in good demand and clean up early at high prices. Sunburst, Ophelia and Richmond are reaching the market in at $3.00 and $4.00 per 100, but these instances have been rare and the bulk of the stock is selling around $2.00 per 100. Orchids are scarce and so are gardenias, which are in brisk demand. Sweet peas are in good supply, but a couple of large orders would clean up the offering in a hurry. Lilies are seen everywhere in quantity and are hard to move at anywhere near reasonable prices. Paper White narcissi are to be had in quantity, and the same holds good for calendulas. Daisies, snapdragons, stevia, bouvardia, forget-me-nots, sweet alyssum, strawflowers, mignonette, cornflowers, and cut cyclamens are to be had and at times clean up well. Violets have sold better this week than they have for a long time and at times were scarce. Lily of the valley is in brisk demand and continues to clean up quickly at high prices. Pussy willows, red winter berries, wild smilax, boxwood and other green goods are in large supply. Thanksgiving orders are starting to arrive and from present indications there will not be any too much stock offered, although there may be enough to go around with the possible exception of chrysanthemums, pompons, lily of the valley and certain varieties of roses. Out-of-town buyers will find it to their advantage, as we mentioned last week, to place their orders well in advance.

AMLING TO MOVE.

The E. C. Amling Co. has leased the main floor and basement of the Durand building at 169-175 North Wabash avenue, directly across the street from its present location, for a term of 10 years and expects to occupy it about January 1, 1917. The Amling Co. has been crowded for room for some time and as it was impossible to secure available space adjoining the present quarters it was necessary to do the next best thing and that was to secure space elsewhere. The Durand building was found to be the most suitable and will give them about 10,000 square feet of floor space counting the large balcony on the main floor, which is practically two and one-half times larger than the space they are now using. The building is 60x120 feet with a basement 80x120 feet, and will be placed in first class condition as rapidly as possible. The Amling Co. still has a lease on the store it now occupies which will be on the market as soon as the new quarters are ready for occupancy. When the basement in the Durand building is fitted up properly the firm might possibly sublet to others provided there will be any space to spare and it is understood that there are already applications for same.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. received five cars of azaleas last week and four more are expected at any moment. The stock came through in pretty good shape, considering conditions and insures the firm of its Christmas and Easter supply. This firm has had an exceptionally brisk demand for pot chrysanthemums this season and are practically sold out already. Their cyclamens and begonias are in grand condition and are greatly admired by the many visitors to the greenhouses. Otto W. Frese, of the store force, visited the greenhouses, November 18, and is more than pleased with the unusually fine condition of the stock in general throughout the entire range.

Erne & Klingel are strong on lilies and all other seasonable cut flowers, and are featuring a particularly fine grade of smilax.

AMERICAN BULB CO., IMPORTERS OF FLORISTS' NECESSITIES
172 N. WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL.

Martin Goerger, of Goerger Bros., Arlington Heights, was in the city buying coal this week and had difficulty in securing what he needed for immediate delivery at $5.00 per ton, which is considerably more than his old contract price calls for and which his regular dealer so far has failed to deliver. Nearly all the growers are meeting with the same experience and are having all kinds of trouble to obtain a large enough supply to carry them through the winter, even at the advanced prices. Mr. Goerger says that his brother Martin, who is associated with him in business, and is serving in the German army, had one of his legs smashed by a shell, according to a letter he received from his sister early last February.

Peter Reinberg is in good crop with Sunburst and Ophelia roses, which Felix Reichling reports are in brisk demand at the store. Emil Reichling says that the new rose Champ Weiland will replace Killarney at the Reinberg greenhouses next season. A large crop of Mrs. Chas. Russell are in sight for Christmas and will come in handy, owing to the small number of American Beauty roses that are now being grown here.

Zeck & Mann are handling a fine supply of sweet peas and will have a large quantity to offer for Thanksgiving, in addition to all the other seasonable offerings, if the weather is anywhere near favorable. This house is moving large quantities of asparagus, for which it is headquarters.

A. B. Barber, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O., was a visitor November 16. He is interested in the Park Flower Shop Co., Inc., which also has stores at Cleveland, Akron and Youngstown, O.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are receiving a large supply of choice carnations from the V. Bezdek greenhouses at Wilmette, particularly White Wonder and Winsor, which are second to none in this market.

R. J. Mohr, formerly with A. Lange, and later with A. T. Pyfer & Co., is now employed in the supply department of the A. L. Randall Co.

Sam Seligman is showing the American Bulb Co.'s customers fifteen new corsage ribbons.

Wietor Bros. are having a good call for pompons, particularly Billy Primrose and E. D. Godfrey, which N. J. Wietor believes are the two best late pink varieties being grown today. This firm will have a large supply of chrysanthemums to offer for Thanksgiving, including Indian Summer, Seidewitz and Chadwick. Some fine Killarney Brilliant roses and Rosette carnations are included in the regular shipments from the greenhouses.

L. A. Tonner has a pecan shelling factory at her home where quite a number of young ladies are employed and does quite a business in this line which is a side issue with her. O. A. & L. A. Tonner, of which firm she is a member, is booking quite a large number of orders from the trade for pecans and will be pleased to supply anyone with their Christmas supply at very attractive prices.

E. F. Winterson and Fritz Bahr escorted a party of fourteen horticulturists of Highland Park, through the West Park system last Sunday, November 19, and found everything in splendid condition, especially the chrysanthemum display at the Garfield Park conservatories where August Koch took the visitors in charge.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. had quite an exhibit at the Texas State Flower Show, held at Dallas, Texas, November 15-17 and as usual won a large number of first prizes, including the blue ribbon on American Beauty roses. The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. had an exhibit of hot bed sash.

Bassett & Washburn will be in heavy crop with carnations for Thanksgiving and will also have a good supply of roses to offer. Business has been good all week at this establishment with stock of all kinds clearing up completely every day.

The firm of J. A. Budlong is now comfortably situated in its enlarged quarters and everything is all set for the Thanksgiving rush. Manager Schupp is enthusiastic over Budlong's present location which is second to none in the city.

Sidney Buchbinder, manager of Buchbinder Bros., manufacturers of florists' refrigerators and store fixtures, is the proud owner of a new Winton Six. He has just taken his third degree in Masonry in Washington Park lodge.

The A. L. Randall Co. is having a special sale on Christmas ribbons this week in the supply department. In the cut flower department a splendid shade of Ophelia roses is attracting the attention of the many buyers.

Percy Jones is strong on carnations and Paper White narcissus and will have a heavy supply to offer for Thanksgiving. Chrysanthemums and pompons are also being handled in quantity and are in brisk demand.

Rudolph Kurowski says that business in the greenhouse manufacturing line is holding up remarkably well and that the John C. Moninger Co. never was busier at this time of the year than it is right now.

O. J. Friedman has added a Ford to his delivery service. It is finished in olive green and gold lettering and is in keeping with his magnificent Michigan avenue establishment.

French & Salm, Union Grove, Wis., are cutting from a splendid crop of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which they are consigning exclusively to the E. C. Amling Co.

The Henry Wittbold Co. has been incorporated for $50,000 and will make its headquarters at Central and Nanzic streets in Evanston.

Andrew Bensen, orchid collector for Poehlmann Bros. Co., will make another trip to South America, leaving sometime in December.

Gustav Raedlein of the Raedlein Basket Co., has been confined to his home for several days with rheumatism.

At M. C. Gunterberg's store violets have been in good demand all week and cleaned up nicely every day.

Hoerber Bros. are cutting from a fine crop of white and yellow Chadwick chrysanthemums.

The George Wittbold Co. has moved its offices in its new retail store building and it is very likely that the store proper will be ready for occupancy in a few days. Wittbolds certainly have a magnificent establishment and it is well worth going a long distance to inspect. This firm has a beautiful supply of boxwoods, aucubas and lauracerasus on hand and is in splendid position to handle all orders.

H. E. Philpott left for St. Paul, Minn., November 21, after spending a few days in the city. He is financially interested in a new range of three Dietsch houses at St. Paul, which he built for Frank Gustafson last summer. After spending a few days there he will leave for his home in Winnipeg, Can., returning here in time for the Christmas holidays.

At A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, chrysanthemums and pompons are arriving in large quantities every day and everything points to a good supply for Thanksgiving. American Beauty roses and orchids are in brisk demand at this establishment, and clean up quickly at good prices.

Mrs. Irby, of the Flower Shop, Memphis, Tenn., was in the city this week, buying stock for Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Kyle & Foerster are pleasing their trade with a choice grade of stevia, which they are handling in quantity.

The Lincoln Floral Co. has opened a retail store at 3154 Lincoln avenue near Belmont.

Vaughan's Seed Store is offering Thanksgiving holly of fine quality.

Visitors: Geo. Schmal, representing Kluis & Koning, Boskoop, Holland;—Terrell, Warsaw, Ind.; H. W. Buckbee, Rockford; Martin Reukauf, with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; F. W. Heckenkamp, Jr., Quincy; Julius Staack, Moline.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Morrison, Thursday evening, November 16, President Henderson in the chair. Peter Knowe, Robert Windler and A. L. Vaughan were elected to membership and Alfred Torchiana, 508 South Dearborn street, and Chas. T. Johnson, Morgan Park, were proposed for membership. The transportation committee presented report on the convention trip last August and a vote of thanks was extended to the St. Louis Florists' Club for the courtesy of its members to the convention party during the short stop-over in their city. Resolutions on the death of the late Wm. F. Kasting and John W. Poehlmann were adopted by standing vote.

Andrew Benson, well known orchid collector for the Poehlmann Bros. Co., who has been absent on a prolonged business trip, was presented with the handsome cup won several months ago. In taking possession, Mr. Benson thanked the club for the excellent care given the trophy during his absence and promised a paper on some of his experiences in the native haunts of orchids for the December meeting, expecting to leave on another trip soon after.

Fred Lautenschlager for the committee on the Floral Art and Novelty Show, held at the Hotel LaSalle November 12, gave an exhaustive report of the event and discussion of this and other flower show matters was suggested for the December meeting.

Allie Zech introduced the subject of California shipments of flowers to this and other cities in the middle west during the past few weeks, and the wholesalers and growers in attendance showed considerable interest in this recent development.

A. Henderson reported on the publicity communication received from Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, which was referred to the executive committee.

In the selection of officers for the ensuing year, the following were placed in nomination, the election to take place at the December meeting:

For president, Fred Lautenschlager and W. H. Amling.

For vice-president, Paul Klingsporn, Nic Miller and Emil Reichling.

For treasurer, Nic Miller, Otto Amling, Ed Murett and M. Barker.

For secretary, Allie Zech and Guy W. French.

For trustee, A. Henderson, W. J. Keimel and Aug. Jurgens.

Messrs. Lautenschlager, Miller, Barker and others declined nomination.

OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS PROMISING.

The past week, from a weather standpoint, has been so different from that of a year ago, that one can hardly realize that winter is here. Sleigh bells merrily jingled along the streets, heavy coats and every indication of February was our portion. But now it is back to normal with the possibility that we will have our usual slush for Thanksgiving. The supply of stock is large enough to meet all requirements and the quality is good. Carnations are improving. Chrysanthemums are still in the lead, with supply plentiful and quality up to the average. Several debutante parties last week brought the trade some nice orders as did two weddings. From now until after Thanksgiving will doubtless be a busy time. Greenhouse stock looks good and the poinsettias and other Christmas flowers will be plentiful.

The flower show given by direction of Commissioner Malone of the department of parks was the most successful affair ever held in Elmwood music hall.

TRADE IS QUIET.

Business in general has been a little slow during the past week. Receipts have fallen off considerably due to the cold snap and a blizzard last week put the finishing touches to all outdoor stock which had been coming in. Pompoms are still very plentiful but good chrysanthemums are scarce, the late varieties just beginning to arrive. Easter lilies are in large supply. Lily of the valley, too, is more plentiful.

Roses are moving fairly well but long stock is on the short side. American Beauties are fairly good sellers. Carnations have dropped in price somewhat, the supply having increased considerably the past few weeks. Violets are in excellent condition and the demand fair. Greens are in good supply.

NOTES.

The J. M. Gasser Co.'s retail store had a small flower show of its own the past week. Table decorations, including a bridal couple (dolls) and all the other accessories, decorated baskets and vases. A large crowd continually passed in and out, viewing the floral decorations.

The Smith & Fettes Co. has added two salespeople to its force, Miss Neal, formerly of the Crane Co., and Miss Lyberger from Akron, Ohio.

Advance orders for boxwood indicate the stock will be in big demand. The quality this year is better than ever.

SUPPLY SHORTENS BUT QUALITY IS FINE.

Cold weather during the past week has shortened the supply of stock but the quality is fine. The condition of the chrysanthemum stock has improved, some of the earlier varieties having disappeared and made room for the late sorts. Bonnaffon, Golden Wedding, Silver Wedding, Chadwick and Eaton, white and yellow, are in the lead at prices ranging from $10 to $25 per 100. Roses are arriving in better quality and the supply is sufficient to meet all demands. Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty and Killarney Brilliant are the leaders in popularity and clean up well at from $3 to $10 per 100. American Beauty is the scarce item and the demand is heavy. Some are arriving in poor condition but the quality stock sells at from $1.50 to $4 per dozen. Carnations are still plentiful but since the supply in other lines has shortened, the demand has been fairly good and prices hold firm, quotations being from 75 cents to $2 per 100. Pompons have a good demand and the supply is fair. The fancy move well but the common varieties are moved at sacrifice prices. Lilies clean up well and the supply of lily of the valley is fairly good with a brisk demand. Orchids are scarce. Smilax and Asparagus plumosus clean up well at good figures. Advance orders for Thanksgiving are beginning to come in and a good trade is anticipated. The outlook for fall business with both wholesalers and retailers is promising.

NOTES.

C. A. Kuehn has returned from a few days trip, having visited Bloomington and Peoria, Ill. He says all indications point to excellent Thanksgiving business. He is assured of a good supply of fine chrysanthemums. Some good Eatons are already in evidence.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has some very fine pompons, violets and carnations. Al. Gumz reports good business, especially during the past few days. This firm handled one order for 50,000 carnations for tag day.

The wire department at the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.'s establishment is very busy making up a supply of wreaths in all sizes to meet the demands of the Christmas trade.

Fred Foster conducted a special sale of chrysanthemums in one of the department stores. He reports satisfactory results at 10 cents per bloom.

J. Brix, of the Brix Flower Co., is a daily visitor to the market. Business, especially in funeral work, has been good at this establishment.

George H. Angermueller reports excellent business in all departments. Fred is on the sick list and Harry is taking his place.

Nat Kingsley was a heavy buyer during the past week and reports business at the Mullanphy Florists satisfactory.

H. G. Berning is featuring some very fine Russell and Ophelia roses.

GOOD STOCK BUT DEMAND LIGHT.

Saturday, November 18, the wholesale cut flower trade livened up somewhat, and hopes were entertained, the conditions being such that a decided improvement could be looked for. Monday opened up very slowly, with no immediate prospects of much importance, this being a great disappointment for everyone concerned. Cattle-yas are scarce, which has caused an increase in price with prospects of them being higher before Thanksgiving. Chrysanthemums still reign supreme, though not as plentiful as a week ago. There are some Bonnaffons coming in, and prospects are that quite a number will be used in connection with the Princeton-Yale foot ball game, though the wholesaler's did not have any advance orders to indicate this. There are also some good Enguehard, Turner and Dean and the prices, while not high, are a little better than a week ago. Some very good carnations are coming in, but the demand is not sufficient to clean up. Prices therefore, are very low. The frosts of November 17-18 put an end to outdoor flowers, and an improvement in inside stock is now looked for. There is a good supply of violets with very little call. Lily of the valley is in good demand. Sweet peas are very good; the quality is better now than it has been for some time. Snapdragons are plentiful; also some very fine pansies and Paper Whites are coming in with a very good demand. There is a plentiful supply of greens.

NOTES.

A. R. Burton, in charge of the plant department of Henry F. Michell Co., Inc., reports that the recent display at the chrysanthemum show has caused a demand for the standard and newer varieties of hardy chrysanthemums, of which they had a fine display. The young ladies of the office force of this progressive firm have formed a basket ball team, and play their first game at Riverton, on Thanksgiving eve. Miss Pavlick is captain and Miss Carhart, secretary.

S. S. Pennock, the enthusiastic president of the American Rose Society, has called a meeting for the afternoon of November 22, in connection with the forth-coming rose show, to be held in Philadelphia, next March.

H. A. Dreer, Inc., are featuring a fine window of vegetables and also one of the newer varieties of hardy chrysanthemums. Bulbs are in active demand, some varieties being completely sold out.

Zieger & Sons are sending in some fine chrysanthemums, especially Turner. The writer saw a fine bed of scabiosa, which had been brought in and from which some fine flowers were being cut.

Kruger & Co., of the Reading Terminal flower market, are featuring chrysanthemums, especially Bonnaffons, in expectancy of a demand for the Princeton-Yale game. A. Lanser reports business brisk.

S. S. Pennock, John Dodds, and Robert Craig, officiated as judges at the flower show last week, held at Balti-

TRADE SHOWS SOME IMPROVEMENT.

During the latter part of the past week there was more activity in the wholesale district than has been seen for months. A cold wave, to some extent cut down the supply of roses and prices picked up. There has been a long and discouraging period of dullness, but it now appears that better times are at hand. Although there are yet plenty of chrysanthemums on the market, many of them are beginning to show the infirmities of age; there will doubtless be chrysanthemums on the market until Christmas, but they will soon have fallen from their high estate. The chrysanthemum season is short, but in the light of recent experience, there are a number of dealers in this district who believe it to be entirely too long. We are by no means decrying the chrysanthemums; in a way, and in reasonable numbers, they are fine, but their growing is overdone and that should be an undisputed fact to every man in any way connected with the florist business. American Beauties are pushing up a little in price, 35 and 40 cents each being now the asking prices for the best specials. Cattleyas are scarcer and good stock is running from 50 to 75 cents each. Good gardenias are worth about $3 per dozen. There is no extraordinary movement in lilies and lily of the valley. Lilies are worth about 4 cents per flower, lily of the valley $4 to $5 per 100, though it takes fine stock to command the latter price at this writing, but prices on the latter are liable to frequent fluctuations. Since the war in Europe began, lily of the valley has been the little joker in the cut flower business—"now you see it, and again you don't." Violets are of better quality and prices are higher at this writing, 75 cents per 100 being paid for the best. The Yale-Princeton football game at Princeton, N. J., November 18, caused some movement in violets and yellow chrysanthemums, but that was merely an incident in the trade. Another incident was the horse show at Madison Square Garden during the past week, where at least one firm that had a large box decoration, bought chrysanthemums, instead of the artificial flowers, that they used on a previous occasion. The writer may be old fashioned in some of his notions, but has always believed, and now believes, that the real florists should once and for all, cut out this artificial flower business. In writing this I have no prejudice against the dealers of artificial flowers, though it has been stated that they employ children, or at least some of them do, at starvation wages. This is a free country; let them go their way, and let us go ours in handling nothing but natural flowers.

November 20.—There is no enormous increase in business, but stock moves better, due partly to the thinning out of the chrysanthemums, though there are yet enough of them about to supply all demands. Roses, we would say, are doing much better. Carnations are picking up and lilies and lily of the valley move fairly well. Sweet peas and Paper White narcissus are slow. Violets went up to $1 per 100 for a few hours November 17-18, but "pride goeth before a fall" and they soon fell to 60 cents. The best cattleyas are going at 75 cents and $1 each.

NOTES.

George M. Stumpp, for many years a well-known and highly respected retail florist of this city, and father of G. E. M. Stumpp, who now conducts the business at Fifth avenue and 58th street, reached home, November 17, as a passenger on the Holland-American liner New Amsterdam. He returns hale and hearty after an absence of two years and six months, spent in Germany. He says Germany is not suffering and will eventually dictate peace terms. While not all of us may agree with the latter statement, we give him credit for the honesty and courage of his convictions.

John Changuris, well known in the retail trade of this city, has just returned from a four years' absence in the Canadian northwest, most of which was spent in Saskatchewan. He went to Minneapolis at the time the S. A. F. convention was held there, and kept on going. He is now back with his brother (as partner) in the Orchid Florist Co., 106 West 57th street, and the Central Park Flower Market, 980 Sixth avenue. He is a clever young man and we are pleased to see him prosperous.

J. G. Leikens and wife have returned from Newport, where they had a successful summer's business; at least, Mrs. Leikens and the staff had, J. G. having spent most of the summer on the border as an officer of the Seventh regiment, N. Y. infantry. They report business as improving. Ralph Armstrong, Madison avenue and Forty-seventh street, is another retailer who has had a successful season at Newport and is now very busy in his New York store.

Changuris Bros., otherwise known as the Orchid Florist Co., 106 West 57th street, have recently erected a nice conservatory in the rear of their store and stocked it with fine palms and ferns. They have also made extensive improvements in their main store, which being very near to Carnegie hall, is becoming a popular resort.

The steamer New Amsterdam, which arrived from Rotterdam, November 17, brought large consignments of azaleas and other plants and bulbs to various firms, McHutchison & Co., the MacNiff Horticultural Co., J. M. Thorburn & Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, the Julius Roehrs Co., and others receiving much stock.

The Wholesalers' Protective Association had a banquet at one of the leading hotels on the night of November 18, which we learn was a very enjoyable affair. Fred Atkins, of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., was the guest of honor.

Wadley & Smythe, 491 Fifth avenue, arranged a fine decoration for the box of Mrs. Stotesbury, of Philadelphia, at the horse show in Madison Square Garden, the past week. Thousands of chrysanthemums were used, being renewed each day.

At G. E. M. Stumpp's we found business active. The whole force and many customers are rejoiced to have George M. Stumpp back with them after his long sojourn amid scenes of war activities.

At the Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, we have noticed many attractive features both in window and other interior decorations and Manager Perry advises us that business is good.

N. Christatos, who for a number of years has conducted a fine store at Sixth avenue and 58th street, advises us that business is improving. He always makes a fine window display.

The proprietors of the Flower Basket Shop, 147 West 44th street, have taken the entire building which they occupy and will soon have a much larger and finer store.

At William P. Ford's, 107 West 28th street, we have recently noticed very fine stock of the leading varieties of roses, also fine Spencer sweet peas.

George L. Stillman, the well known dahlia specialist, of Westerly, R. I., was recently in this city. He has made a great success with dahlias.

Johnson & Millang, Inc., have opened a branch store at 165 West 34th street. They are handling an extensive line of plants and bulbs.

land, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

VISITED New York: J. C. Vaughan,
Chicago.

TULIPA CLUSIANA is imported from Turkistan.

SPIREA clumps are smaller than usual, crop light.

DEMAND for flower seeds has opened unusually early this season.

DUTCH crops of vegetable seeds are very short and prices are high.

ASPARAGUS PLUMOSUS NANUS seed, new crop, is now coming forward.

SWEET CORN in nearly all varieties will be very high in price, according to prediction.

SPANISH IRIS and Gladiolus Colvillei bulbs, long delayed in transit, have reached New York.

VAUGHAN'S list of flower seeds for florists and seedsmen is the first to reach us this season.

GLADIOLUS BULBS in the United States are proving to be only half an average crop this year.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—The Empire
Seed Co. has been incorporated by H.
E. Stevens and others, with capital of $5,000.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade, November 22, were as follows: Timothy, $4.00 to $5.75 per 100 pounds.

FALMOUTH, KY.—The Bokhara Seed Co. is remodeling its warehouse and installing additional motor driven seed-cleaning machinery.

ARNOLD RINGIER, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is attending the annual meeting of the Indiana Cannery at Indianapolis this week.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½-inch staves and 17½-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2/5 of an inch.

BOUQUET GREEN is very scarce both east and west due to the early snows which put a stop to the picking. The present outlook is for not more than half the usual output.

TAMPA, FLA.—The Allen & Reils Seed Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 and will enter the seed and brokerage business.
The officers are D. C. Gillett, president; H. F. Reils, vice-president, and
A. L. Allen, secretary-treasurer.

NEW YORK.—Counter trade in bulbs and seeds has slowed down materially within the past 10 days.—Johnson & Millang, Inc., now doing a plant and bulb business in the Coogan building, Sixth avenue and Twenty-sixth street, have opened a branch store at 165
West Thirty-fourth street.

French Seed Crops.

One prominent French firm has advised its American customers that on account of existing conditions it is now impossible to make contracts for vegetable and flower seeds. It has proposed to arrange for the growing of seed crops according to the needs of customers, in annuals as ordered for 1916 and biennials for 1917, and to offer at time of harvest such stocks as may be available basing prices on the cost of production.

Dutch Bulbs for Fodder.

Planting stocks of crocus have been extensively sold and shipped to Germany as fodder for cattle. Salable bulbs of English and Spanish iris have been disposed of for the same purpose.
In all over 50 carloads have gone.
Prices ranged from $1 to $3 for 220 pounds. Narcissus bulbs, planting and salable sizes of certain varieties, have also been sold, some say for crushing and making oil.

Reductions of 10 to 20 per cent have been made in plantings of leading kinds of Dutch bulbs for 1917.

By Their Seeds Ye Shall Know Them.

In the recent discussion of free seeds in the national legislature Senator
Kenyon read an editorial from the Marshalltown (Iowa) Times-Republican of March 26, 1915, in part, as follows:

"By their seeds ye shall know them.
Congress has adjourned. It has passed the usual appropriation bill and made the customary distribution of worthless seeds to the voters as a cheap sop for past loyalty.

"If every recipient of garden seeds would plant them and then vote accordingly at the next congressional election, what a world of new faces would be noticeable in the halls of congress. We tried planting some of them several years ago with the following result:

"The lettuce seed brought forth fruit in the form of leaves about as thick as a cabbage leaf and of a texture resembling a palm-leaf fan. We had had visions of the tender succulent variety, but, although I had just paid a $50 dentist bill, I was unable to make any noticeable impression. We took some to an old lady who had the reputation of having more jaw action than any one in town and told her if she liked it to come over—we had a plenty. She never came. I spoke to a friend that owned a corn shredder, but he refused to give it a try out, as the machinery was not guaranteed against anything tougher than a dried corn stalk. We then conceived the idea that a valuable forage crop had been overlooked and so fed some to a cow, and for weeks we could see her, even in her leisure moments, in a masterly attempt to put it away for keeps. The result was that we fed her on bran mash for two weeks to enable her to rest up and be normal.

"One day we had congressional salad from these selfsame vegetables, with appropriate dressing. They say time dulls all memories, but that salad still holds a vivid place in my memory, and I never will forget the congressman responsible for sending the seed except in the election booth. By their seeds ye shall know them."

LANCASTER, O.—M. M. Miesse is now cutting some very fine Grand Rapids and head lettuce, also cucumbers. He expects to have ripe tomatoes January 1.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Mushrooms, home grown, 35 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 12½ cents; radishes, $1.50 per 100 bunches; celery, 75 to 90 cents, open crate; tomatoes, 10-lb. baskets, $1.00 to $1.40; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.75 to $2.50.

New York, Nov. 21.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $4.00; cucumbers, 75 cents to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.50 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 10-lb. basket, $1.50 to $1.75; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 50 cents to $3.00.

Potato Crop in New Brunswick.

The provincial secretary for agriculture is quoted as stating that the potato crop in New Brunswick is about 10 per cent smaller than in 1915. The estimate given by him is 7,300,000 bushels from 40,000 acres, compared with 8,384,951 bushels from 41,217 acres in 1915. In a recent letter to the American consulate, one of the largest potato shippers stated that the f. o. b. price was then 80 cents per bushel in carload lots, and that the smaller crop was probably due to lack of potash in the fertilizers used. This element was very scarce at the time of planting in the spring of 1916. The price has gone up so early in the season that farmers have exported in greater quantities than usual up to this time.

Potato Association of America.

The third annual meeting of the Potato Association of America, held at Washington, D. C., November 13-14, proved to be one of the most interesting in the history of that organization. The sessions were well attended and a great amount of interest taken in the papers presented. Representatives were present from 11 of the large potato producing states in the union. The exhibits were for the most part of excellent quality. Over 300 plates were displayed. This included, besides the varietal plates, some 75 plates of seedlings, and about an equal number of South American strains. In addition to this were displayed a number of by-products manufactured from the potato.

The name of the association was changed from the National Potato Association of America to the Potato Association of America; the word "National" being dropped for the purpose of conforming with the wishes of Canadian potato growers.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Lou D. Sweet, Denver, Colo., president; J. F. Milward, Madison, Wis., vice-president; Wm. Stuart, Washington, D. C., secretary-treasurer; E. R. Smith, Kasoag, N. Y., and Henry G. Bell, Chicago, members-at-large of the executive committee. The next annual meeting place was not decided upon but will be determined later by the executive committee.

Leaf-Spot Disease of Tomatoes.

Under the above title, the botanical department of the Michigan Agricultural College experiment station, East Lansing, has issued Technical Bulletin No. 25, covering the investigations of leaf-spot, which throws much light on the structure and life history of the fungus causing the disease.

The earliest indication of the disease is a water-soaked spot which can be distinguishable with a hand lens. As the spot grows larger it becomes more or less circular in outlines and shows a definite margin, the color varying from black to grayish-white. Not infrequently the spots coalesce. The disease is commonly found on the stems, manifested by small, slightly elongated dark spots which are not so clearly defined as those on the leaf. The disease has never been seen in Michigan as affecting the fruit in the field, however.

As a means of control, wintered-over diseased vines should be destroyed and greenhouses and field kept free from trash. Spraying the plants with Bordeaux mixture is also recommended in event the plants in the field are staked. Failures to control the disease by spraying are due, it is said, to lack of thoroughness and timeliness.

SALEM, O.—J. E. Bonsall and wife have left for the south, where they will spend the winter, following their usual custom, returning in time for spring planting.

PYFER & OLSEM,

Wilmette, Ill.

Oklahoma City.

Storemen say that since election, business has been very fine. Among the cut flowers, the chrysanthemum has the very front position just now of course. The local crop was probably never so good as this year. The variety, Mensa, in both white and yellow, has proved a good seller; it surely has a distinct appearance of its own, and will no doubt be grown in larger quantities another year.

J. W. Furrow is attending the flower show at Dallas, Tex.

Mrs. Eager is spending a week in Tulsa, Okla.

Some of the boys in Stiles Co.'s store are not yet certain who has been elected president and all bets are being held up.

S. S. B.

MANISTEE, MICH.—Thousands of fine chrysanthemum blooms at the range of Joseph Clarkson in this city, in addition to stocks of roses, calla lilies, cyclamens, azaleas, primroses, violets and carnations, are in fine condition and present a wonderful color scheme.

White Pine Rust.

ALBANY, N. Y., November 20.—Representatives of the United States department of agriculture and of agricultural departments of Canada and more than a dozen States began a two days' session here today in an effort to devise ways and means for preventing the spread of white pine blister rust, which threatens pine trees valued at $260,000,000 in the eastern and northern belt.

New Roses at Bagatelle.

A trial of new roses will take place in the Park of Bagatelle in 1917 and 1918, as in previous years. The plants, as far as possible, to be raised in pots, and at least five of each variety sent before April 15, 1917. A notice must be appended as to their origin and parentage, stating if necessary, the special treatment required for the plants. The jury will study, during two seasons, the flowering qualities and habit of growth. Plants are to be forwarded to Roseaie de Bagatelle au Bois de Boulogne, Eugene de Neuilly-Porte-Maillot-Paris, and communications to Le Conservateur des Promenades de Paris, 4 Route du Champ d'Entrainement, par Neuilly (Seine), France.—Horticultural Trade Journal.

Grape Leaf-Folder Control.

The grape leaf-folder, a small "worm" which folds portions of grapevines over it, feeding within this shelter, can be controlled satisfactorily, say entomologists of the United States department of agriculture. Spraying regularly with arsenical solutions, crushing the larvae by hand in the folded leaves during the growing season, and burning all dead leaves and trash under the vines in the fall, are the control measures recommended in a recent publication, department bulletin No. 419, by J. F. Strauss.

A satisfactory arsenical for use in combating the leaf-folder is arsenate of lead. This may well be applied in a fungicide such as Bordeaux mixture, a single application then serving as a treatment for disease and other insect pests. The first application should be made shortly after the blossoms fall in the spring. This should dispose of the first brood of grape leaf-folders effectually, but, if the pest appears later, the application should be repeated.

The grape leaf-folder is distributed throughout the United States, but is most troublesome in the central and middle Atlantic states. The moth, of which the grape leaf-folder is the larva, has dark brown, opalescent wings, bordered with white. The body is black crossed by two white bands in the female and one in the male. The fully grown larva is about an inch long, yellow-green on the sides and somewhat darker above with scattered, fine, yellow hairs on each segment.

The larva begins folding the leaf when about two weeks old, by spinning fine silken threads across a portion of the leaf near the edge, each strand being shorter than that preceding, gradually drawing the leaf over. Within this shelter the larva feeds, skeletonizing the portions of the leaf within reach.

National Association of Gardeners.

Plans have been completed for the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners to be held in Washington, D. C., December 5-6. The new Ebbitt House has been selected as the headquarters of the association during the convention. The lecture hall of the new Smithsonian Institution has been placed at the disposal of the association for its business meetings.

Members are requested to register with the secretary at the association's headquarters by nine o'clock on Tuesday morning, December 5, when they will be furnished with complete details of the two days' programme which will be one full of interest and sufficient activity to keep the visitors occupied during their stay at Washington. While the purpose of holding the convention will not be overlooked, it has been decided to make the meetings as brief as possible without interfering with the business that is to come before them, in order that the visiting members may have all opportunity possible to enjoy the many interesting points in and around the Capital city.

Congress will be in session and an opportunity will be provided the gardeners to observe how the laws of our country are enacted. On their visit to the department of agriculture's buildings they may learn how the government grows its plants while their visit to the mint will enable them to see how money is made. An automobile trip through the park system of Washington and a journey to the country estate of George Washington, at Mt. Vernon, are a part of the entertainment.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Azaleas.

Keep the azaleas well spaced out as they begin to come into flower. The buds should be swelling rapidly and beginning to show color by early December. Never allow the plants to suffer for water, and where any are shipped out or carried into the residences they should be well watered before being taken out of the greenhouse. All plants that are sent away should be safely covered, and with azaleas it must be taken into consideration that they have been grown in a very warm temperature, and they chill easily. Plants that are forced as hard as these are to have them for the holidays, are damaged very quickly if they get chilled, even if they do not get frost-bitten. We have known azalea plants to look all right when undone, but the blooms wilted and never came out. Six to eight thicknesses of newspaper with a heavy outside paper should always be used in doing up these plants and more if the weather is severe. If the plants are not far advanced enough to have them in for Christmas a little higher temperature will be required, for to have them in at that date is a necessity in order to get the best price. Watering or syringing with warm water will assist some, but we do not like to do this unless absolutely necessary to get them in on time. Plants that are too far advanced can be moved into a cooler house, which will greatly benefit them for house culture.

Cinerarias.

As fast as these plants require it they should be repotted and shifted to larger-sized pots. They are growing rapidly and should receive no check or they will become stunted. Keep them in a cool temperature, that they may be strong and sturdy, and above all things now do not crowd them, but space them out often; when the leaves begin to touch go over the bench and space them out. These plants are beautiful in early spring if well grown, but if they become crowded and get drawn they are but poor specimens. When the larger plants begin to show their buds, if they are in as large pots as can be easily handled a watering of liquid manure will help them finish their flowers. They are strong growers and great feeders and where the pots are full of roots will need a little stimulant. Constant watchfulness for aphids is required in growing these plants. Frequent fumigations will be necessary or standing on tobacco stems will keep the insects in check.

Poinsettias.

The plants are now forming their showy bracts and the worries of the grower are nearly at an end, for if they have come through to this time in good condition the disposal of the plants and flowers is all that remains to be done. Until the highly colored leaves have attained their full size, however, the same equal temperature should be maintained and then if found advisable a little drop in the temperature can be allowed, but it is far better to do this gradually and not subject the plants to too sudden a variation. The plants should now be all neatly tied to a stake and, as before remarked, the neater the stake the better the appearance of the plant. It always has seemed strange to us that a grower will spend time and money in producing a crop and then spoil the appearance or the best sale of the plant by using a cheap ill-looking auxiliary in attempting to save a penny. These plants can be disposed of at a good remunerative price if properly handled, and nice-looking, painted stakes can be afforded. The plants grown for cut blooms should be kept tied erect that they may have straight stems. In the cutting and marketing of these blooms much disappointment and failure has been experienced by many growers, the bracts wilting very soon after cutting, and where this occurs they never recover. Some growers place the stems on a red hot coal immediately after they are cut and thus seal the end.

Christmas and Holiday Trade

Others plunge the stems in hot water, and both are said successfully to prevent wilting. Another plan is to wrap the blooms in wet newspapers, similarly to the manner of handling cut adiantums, and then placing the stems in deep jars of water. It will be found necessary to adopt one of these or some other method to prevent the blooms from wilting or many will be lost.

Lily of the Valley.

It is often remarked that it is surprising more florists do not force lily of the valley for the holidays. While the forcing of this flower throughout the season had much better be left to those who make a specialty of it, for the demand during the winter is not at all steady, and for the smaller grower to attempt to grow his supply would be hazardous and probably result in so much waste that he would lose in the end. But well grown pots of lily of the valley at Christmas will always be disposed of and there is more or less demand for the cut blooms at that time, and a small amount can be grown and a good profit obtained. Well selected cold-storage pips are necessary—it would not pay to attempt to grow the freshly imported stock—and a place in the greenhouse where the pipes can be enclosed and the pots kept dark with a temperature of 80° maintained. It is not necessary to build an enclosure of wood, for bagging or old carpeting may be hung under a bench and shelves provided that will enclose a space large enough to grow what pots may be required. Three weeks with cold storage pips in this kind of an enclosure will bring it in on time, but the inexperienced grower had better take a little longer and if the flowers come too early, as soon as the bells form the pots can be moved into a cool house and they will be much improved; in fact, they should have a few days in the light to give the foliage proper color. When the pips are received the roots should be cut so that they can be placed in the shallow bulb pans, and then planted in clean sand, the tops of the pips being just even with sand with a dozen pips in a four-inch pan or 25 in a six-inch pan. Water with warm water to settle the sand about the pips, and if they stand above the sand when it settles fill in to the top of the pips, and then place the pans in the warm enclosure. Keep the sand wet and always water at a temperature as warm as the enclosure. When the flowers begin to show, care should be taken not to wet them when watering. As soon as the first bells begin to open place them in a partly shady location in a little cooler temperature and in a day or two they can be placed in full sunlight in a house with a temperature of 60°. They will then harden up nicely and keep longer.

PATERSON, N. J.—The Flower Shop has taken temporary quarters at 215 Market street. A new building, in which it will occupy a model store when completed, is being erected at the old location.

PORT DOVER, ONT.—Thos. A. Ivey & Sons, Ltd., have placed a contract for an additional house, 60x300 feet, to be devoted to roses, which will make their range one of the largest in the Dominion. Another house of similar dimensions will be erected in the fall of 1917.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Debutante.

The demand for flowers for the "coming out teas" is one of the greatest factors in the early fall business. The retailers, who by push and initiative, have become leaders in their various localities, get the most of this trade; it comes to them because they carry large stocks of the best flowers and at all times show unique and novel creations as samples of their skill, or as orders about to be delivered. In these large shops there is always a quantity of made up work early in the morning for funerals, later in the day for debutantes, weddings and other social activities, all of which impresses the visitor or prospective customer with the standing and ability of the firm.

There is nothing too good for the young lady who is to be formally introduced to society. Generally the daughter of wealthy parents, with alike well-to-do relatives and friends, the gifts of flowers are as a rule elaborate and so numerous that at times it was feared the custom was being overdone, their arrangement as they arrived at the house being difficult. Every available space in the receiving parlors was soon filled, on the mantels, piled high on the piano, back of the pictures, pinned to the lambrequins and curtains, fastened to palms in the decoration suspended from chandeliers and in addition tables had to be placed in halls and adjoining rooms to hold them, for all must be displayed so as to be seen by the donors. As many as two to three hundred bouquets and baskets have been counted at the reception of one of these popular young buds, there being great rivalry amongst them as to who would have the greatest number.

With each recurring season there is a more or less demand from the same customers, which taxes the ability of the florist in producing something different from previous orders. New varieties of roses offer more color combinations in connection with the many small flowers of other kinds that are now being grown by specialists, one of the most beautiful being the double pink bouvardia, which made a great hit last year. All kinds of orchids are much favored by those with whom price is no object.

The florists' supply men are alive to their opportunities and new creations in baskets and hampers, all with water holding receptacles, are features of each year's catalogue. Artistic designs, showing expert workmanship and unique colorings, many of them made to carry out the ideas of some of the leading houses and for their use exclusively are kept under cover. Certain lines are sold to only one firm in a city, who will make a special feature of it for the season. Baskets and hampers have been very popular for the debutantes in the past few years. There is such variety in shapes, colorings and sizes, and as all have liners for water, the flowers keep much longer than the loose clusters and bouquets. A line of Japanese baskets and vases, all of exquisite workmanship, of recent importation, are very suitable, particularly when filled with chrysanthemums.

Huge bunches of American Beauties or choice chrysanthemums are always popular for those who want a showy effect; with the former, a bunch of the miniature polyantha roses at the ribbon, in contrast to the large flowers, is always sure to be favorably noticed. Yellow pompons used the same way, with immense yellow chrysanthemums, always make an attractive finishing touch. Selected autumn leaved branches, or sprays of highly colored crotons are very effective arranged with chrysanthemums of almost any color.

The single and anemone flowered type of the chrysanthemum, as now grown by some specialists, in their various soft and brilliant tints of color from white with yellow centers, as in Garza, to shades of yellow and bronze, beautiful mauves and pinks, bronzy reds and other tones, lend themselves to wonderful color combinations. The newer pompons, than which nothing could be more beautiful, are effectively used by themselves or in the finish of baskets filled with larger chrysanthemums, the contrast between the large and small flowers adding materially to the value of each.

The colonial bouquet still holds its own in the place of honor at the debutante tea. There is the greatest range in its construction; any kind of a small flower may be used. All the polyantha roses are especially appropriate, or in fact tight buds of any variety. To give color effects and relieve the set appearance every kind of blossom in the shop is drawn, quartered and so reduced as to fit into any desired constructive or color scheme. An edging of lily of the valley, one, two or three rows deep, backed up with a more or less elaborate silk fringed and tufted bouquet paper, and the final touch then given with an elaborate ribbon on the handle, makes a combination that will bring to the surface all the feminine adjectives of admiration.

At many of these functions, however, there are quantities of gifts from the relations and friends in moderate circumstances, or others who may be called on to attend a number of such receptions during the season. For these, the bunch of two or three dozen roses, the small basket, or a dozen choice chrysanthemums, with the necessary ribbon, can all be made into finished and acceptable gifts. On almost everything from the flower shop, an appropriate ribbon adds a finishing touch that is nearly always necessary and greatly enhances the appearance of the piece. A line of expensive glass and bric-a-brac, choice vases, some with figures and others elegant in design, are seen in some of the shops; these are filled with choice flowers for those who desire to send something of a substantial nature that will always be remembered in connection with the occasion.

With the beginning of the season, those who cater to this class of trade, should be in the best possible state of preparedness, full of original ideas and everything at hand to carry them out. The social columns of the daily press make a feature of all these fashionable functions, giving dates and very often photos of the debutantes. With such advance information, it is possible for the wide awake florist to place himself in touch with possible customers who might otherwise have the nearest possible road to success is not known of his existence. Taking advantage of these recurring opportunities is what spells success and bridges over one dull time after another, until assured.

K.

Randolph & McClements, Pittsburgh, Pa.

This progressive firm of retail florists, one of the largest in the country, and by some claimed to hold the premier position, is now owned solely by Samuel McClements, who purchased P. S. Randolph's interest in the business, but still trades under the old name. No one can meet "Sam" McClements without being impressed with his personality; he is overflowing with magnetism. Himself a tireless and enthusiastic worker, he has in his organization a number of live wires, who are always on the alert to carry out his ideas and keep the house to the front. Very little of importance goes on in Pittsburgh and vicinity (and this vicinity is a large one), without the house of Randolph & McClements having the affair in charge, or being a large factor in the work. Six large trucks are kept constantly employed in the delivery service, and in addition, there are six touring and other styles of motor cars, all of which are at times pressed into service.

The store and show houses on Penn avenue, in East Liberty, are very efficiently arranged, the store proper being equipped with ice boxes, show cases and tables, on which all that is newest in baskets, vases, in fact everything novel, are artistically arranged. In the rear of the store is the work room, and behind that the large shed or corridor, which extends the width of the greenhouses. This will accommodate four large auto cars, which can be loaded without danger from frost or inclement weather. The greenhouses and the large show house in front, adjoining the store, are kept full at all times of the best foliage and flowering plants of the season. The greenhouses at Allison Park contain over 150,000 feet of glass, all in good order. The entire stock is handled at the store. A large crop of chrysanthemums, of varieties that cover the season, were still being cut a week prior to Thanksgiving. Frequently from 1,200 to 1,500 flowers a day are required to meet the demand, and sometimes more. The system of rotation here is perfect; the day a 50-foot space in the chrysanthemum tables is available, it is immediately filled with a prepared follow-on crop. Snapdragon from four-inch pots, stock Jellies from six-inch, were planted out in the same soil, and places were already found for cinerarias in pots and other flowering plants. Japanese lilies were also being staged as room was made. A chrysanthemum house had been planted with two-inch Boston ferns, which make good four-inch stock for window boxes in spring. A house of Calendula Orange King was fine; another of Primula obconica in fine strains, was even now well in flower. Twenty thousands table or dish ferns, and 6,000 poinsettias give an idea of stock quantities here.

House after house is filled with ferns of the Boston type. Cibotium is probably grown here more largely than in most commercial establishments; one house contains 250 plants in seven to ten-inch tubs—wonderfully fine stock. Crotons are seen in quantity, splendidly colored. Pandanus, aspidistras, palms and other foliage plants are here by the house full. Bamboos are counted one of their best decorative plants—some specimens here are 10 feet in height. They are very durable if not allowed to dry out and if damaged respond quickly after a month or two in the greenhouse.

With its additional bulb cellars, cold storage houses and pits, this is one of the most efficient growing places in the country, the entire stock of which is sold at retail. Carl Lindroth is superintendent here and every section of the place reveals his master hand. He is a most enthusiastic and capable plantsman.

NORTH BILLERICA, Mass.—Miss May McAdams, with the Manning establishment here, is on a Florida trip.

CLEVELAND, O.—The Women's Florists' Club of this city has elected the following officers: Mrs. George Bate, president; Mrs. Herman Knoble, vice-president; Miss Gray, secretary; Mrs. Frank Friedley, treasurer.

ITHACA, N. Y. — Professor David Lumsden of the New York State College of Agriculture has secured a three months' leave of absence, during which time he will make a study of the retail florists' trade and research work in orchids and tropical plants at Buffalo, N. Y.

WITH THE GROWERS

P. S. Randolph & Sons, Verona, Pa.

A half hour's run on train and trolley from Pittsburgh, brings one to the very practical establishment of P. S. Randolph & Sons at Verona, Pa. There is about 60,000 feet of glass of Lord & Burnham's best iron construction.

Foliage plants are a specialty here. A number of the popular flowering varieties, such as cyclamens and poinsettias, are also grown in quantity. A decorative plant, which should be much better known, is the bamboo. This is grown in quantity and always meets with ready sale. It is raised from cuttings and it can also be propagated by division, but the cuttings make much the best stock, having a bushy lower growth which is lacking in the divided plants. Samuel McClements, who uses this plant extensively in decorations, says it is the most valuable in the whole lot for the purpose—that with the bamboo and cibotium he can produce almost any decorative effect. It is of rapid growth, a bushy plant, standing 4 to 6 ft. in a 12-inch to 14-inch tub, perfecting in about 16 months. A house of Phoenix Roebelenii showed fine form. Cibotiums were also a feature. Several houses of well colored crotons are up to the Randolph standard. The new Nephrolepis Verona is one of the best of that sporty family; it somewhat resembles Elegantissima compacta, but is a looser grower, with a stronger midrib and not quite so heavy a frond. It does not fill up closely in the center like most of this class and should be in every grower's collection. Fifty thousand were sold here last year. Poinsettias in low pans were seen in quantity, mostly bordered with Verona ferns.

A novelty here is a pink poinsettia—nothing fakey about its color, a beautiful shade of pink, a strong grower and one that Mr. Randolph is working up as fast as possible.

Pandanus Veitchii has a large house to itself. Phyllanthus alba, with its marbled white and green foliage, is a valuable plant, giving a unique appearance wherever used. Hibiscus Cooperii, with its finely mottled red and green foliage, is much used in basket work. The Glory fern was seen here in perfection in four and six-inch pots. A large house was given to the Boston and a new sport of Scottii of a denser and darker green foliage. The edges of the tables in nearly all the houses were lined with variegated periwinkle and hardy ivies in three-inch pots, all in good growth. The residue and smoke from a cement factory, four miles distant, cost the Messrs. Randolph $1,200 to $1,500 a year in trying to keep the glass clean. It is a most unfortunate handicap for which there appears no redress. Labor is another important factor here, $3.50 per day having to be paid for unskilled men. Mr. Randolph is, however, fortunate in the assistance of his two sons, Paul S. and Samuel M., who have been admitted to the firm. They are bright young men, full of snap and initiative, and will undoubtedly be a great factor in the coming years.

Peter Reinberg, Chicago.

The immense ranges of glass that comprise this establishment have not been added to or changed in any way for the past 10 years. Twenty years ago the craft looked on in amazement as additions of 100,000 to 200,000 feet or more were annually added to this wonderful place. Today the houses stand as efficient as ever, save for the oily, dust coating to the glass that comes from the encroachment of the constant traffic on the oil-soaked streets. That the stock grades high is proved by the cleanup every day in the Chicago market.

Two million feet of glass, covering 30 acres of ground, producing from the very first profitable crops, which continue to this day, and will the present season, probably show even better results, is the reward for Mr. Reinberg's courage and forethought in the establishment of this business. The blocks of houses are all built on the ridge and furrow plan so popular in the west years ago. The roofs cover spaces 27 to 29 feet in width by 300 feet long. Inside every possible foot of space is filled with roses, all in splendid vigor; not a touch of mildew, insects or blemish of any kind is to be found. All the stock is grown on benches about a foot from the ground. The greatest care is taken to keep the floor of the house, the walks and underneath the the two outside rows being tied to one stake, which leaves an opening for light and air down the middle.

The heating has all been changed from overhead to two pipes, 1¼-inch each, under every bench and near the ends of the houses for twenty-five feet, an extra pipe. This heat under the bench keeps their feet warm, dries the beds out, admits of more watering, and is found much better in all ways than the overhead, next the glass system.

MRS. CHAS. RUSSELL ROSES AT PETER REINBERG'S, CHICAGO.

benches as clean as that of a well swept room; there is no breeding or hiding place for insects, which Emil Reichling, the foreman, believes is the greatest factor in guarding against them. While all the roses appear to be up to a high standard of culture, some varieties in their excellence stand out more prominently than others. Russell is especially fine—there are 62,700 plants of this popular rose. With some it does not pay, but as done here it is very near, if not the leader, in the returns. Milady is said to be much better than Richmond. At one time this grand red was thought unbeatable; now all here must give way to Milady, which will be their red for next season. The American Beauty block is also very fine. Ophelia is a winner here as elsewhere, but Mr. Reichling says it may have to go, being a very likely victim for the midge, a minute insect which affects the buds. This pest nearly ruined crops of roses here a few years ago, but has entirely disappeared, due to cleanliness, vigorous smoking and applications of air-slaked lime to floors and soil in the benches twice a year.

A number of beds in the several varieties have been run, as they call it, "straight through," several seasons without rest and appear to look as well as those which were cut back and rested. In benches of all kept over stock, soil is removed down to the roots, application given of bone meal and tankage, fresh soil filled in, and on they go.

All stock is on own roots—Mr. Reichling finds no advantage in the grafting. His roses are as good as any he has seen from grafted stock and quite as prolific. His two-year-old Richmonds are grown four rows to a bench, Manure water, from cattle manure that has been steamed, is given every two weeks. A mulch of half horse and half cattle manure is given every three months.

The temperature of most of the houses is 58 to 60 degrees at night, except for Russell and Milady, which require two degrees more. For two weeks before Christmas rose houses are kept low, running 52 to 54 at night, to harden the buds and give them good lasting and shipping qualities.

The carnation range at the farm, three miles distant, is one block of 19 houses, 25x300 feet, on the ridge and furrow plan, without division—just a five-acre space covered with glass and filled with 200,000 carnations on benches, a very grand and glorious sight to the lover of the "divine flower." There are about a third each of white, shades of pink and red. The varieties are: White—White Wonder, White Perfection, White Enchantress. Light pink—Alice and Enchantress. Dark pink—Mrs. Ward, Rosette, Rose Pink Enchantress and Good Cheer. Red—Champion, Herald, Aviator and Belle Washburn.

Stock for planting inside is rooted early and worked into 3½-inch pots, and in early spring plunged outside. It is planted on the tables after Memorial day and grown on in the houses.

Every foot of this vast space is in splendid vigorous growing condition, the plants being very stocky and full of buds and opening flowers. System is everywhere apparent in all the departments of this wonderful establishment, which is a great credit to Peter Reinberg, and his able foreman, Emil Reichling.

Wietor Brothers, Chicago.

With three large, separate ranges of glass, all within a block or two of each other, Wietor Bros. have a plant in which is produced an enormous quantity of stock. The house units are of about uniform size, 30x300 feet, joined together, ridge and furrow plan, with gutters six feet in some ranges to nine feet in height in others. They were erected by the J. C. Moninger Co. some time ago, and while old style, from the healthy, vigorous condition of the stock in all the ranges, appear to be as efficient as many of the more modern structures.

Roses, carnations and chrysanthemums are the specialties. Chrysanthemums, while an important factor, are used as a rotation or catch crop, occupying space during the summer and fall that is used for rose cuttings and grafts, and also for a large rooted chrysanthemum cutting business which is growing rapidly, over half a million being handled last year, beside 100,000 which they require for their own planting. The cuttings, when rooted, are planted close together on tables, never potted; these lift easily, and being strong, vigorous stock, give great satisfaction. Large quantities of all the popular varieties from the tiny baby pompon up to the huge and late Chadwicks—varieties all timed to be on edge in succession for the two months of the season. Pompons and singles are largely grown. Buckingham is the best pink single, a splendid flower. Golden Climax is a winner, a pompon, tall grower mid-season, a bronzy yellow, better color than Quinola, which is also largely grown; Mrs. Beu, a good late bronze; Godfrey, a single pink, like Buckingham, but late; Eugene Languelot, Fairy Queen, Lillia, a good white, and Baby, white and yellow, are all favorites here.

In the large flowered section, Oconto is their best early white, better than Smith's Advance. Zenobia is a good early yellow and White and Pink Chieftain, Bonnaffon and the Chadwicks give good results.

Roses are done very well here. Fifty thousand American Beauty in four blocks in separate places, give an idea of the magnitude of the business. Gustave Weidenhoff, the foreman, is an American Beauty grower of experience, having made this rose a specialty from the first, and they are all in fine condition. Ophelia is also seen in large blocks, growing like a weed. Killarneys, White, Pink and Brilliant; Sunburst and Richmond, are the leading kinds. As to American Beauty, Mr. Weidenhoff believes that young plants, having an early start in May, will produce more flowers in a season than kept-over plants, but they do keep some into the second season. Young stock should be strong and vigorous, set out as early in May as possible; there must be a heavy, stocky growth, so as to be able to stand the loss of foliage when cutting commences. A light, slender plant takes too long to recover. He had an idea that even with the best of care, American Beauty does not produce as in the early days.

Tea roses are carried over two and even three years, but not longer. Soil is changed each season, removing as much as possible without damaging the roots and renewing with the best compost. The soil must have a good deal of clay in it for best results. It is a costly item with them, as it has to be all hauled quite a distance.

Carnations are an important crop, over 200,000 plants being required to fill the houses. All appear to be in tip-top condition, of as good growth and full of buds as any grower could wish. They are all field grown stock, planted inside late in July and early in August. Alice looked particularly promising; also, a new pink of Gloriosa shade of remarkable growth, having flowers now with stems 42 inches in length. One-half of the entire crop is white, one-quarter light pink and the balance dark pink and red. Their varieties are: White Enchantress, White Wonder and Matchless, white; Enchantress, Alice and Nancy, light pink; Rosette and Mrs. Ward, dark pink; Victory, Bonfire, Carnegie, Champion and Nebraska, red.

HARTFORD, CONN.—The New York Floral Co. has opened an attractive flower shop on Main street. Stephen and Julius Campass are the proprietors. Excellent opening business is reported.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society held a special session in Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, Pa., on the afternoon of November 22. There was an attendance of 23 persons, representing the Philadelphia Florists' Club and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

A very full discussion took place relative as to where the best place would be to fix upon for the spring exhibition of March 20-23, 1917. The discussion was finally brought to a head by a motion by Joseph Heacock, recommending the holding of the next annual meeting and exhibition of the American Rose Society in the First Regiment armory, the same to be held March 20-23, 1917, and was duly seconded. The motion was put by President Pennock and unanimously carried. It was moved that a committee be appointed to engage the armory hall, and upon motion it was moved and seconded that the president be directed to appoint George Burton as chairman of said committee. The matter of a manager for the exhibition was gone over with care, and it was moved that the secretary cast one vote for Adolph Farenwald as manager. It was further moved that a local secretary be appointed, and Fred Cowperthwaite was designated for that position. A committee on the exhibits of private gardeners and to solicit the same was appointed. William Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa., as chairman. Other committees were named as follows:

Committee on commercial exhibits—George Burton, Chestnut Hill, Phila-

. Schedule committee for cut flowers—Harry O. May, Summit, N. J.; Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J.; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.

Official headquarters to be at the office of S. S. Pennock, 1612 Ludlow street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The matter of providing a refreshment stand was discussed and referred to the manager with power.

The matter of complimentary tickets to the members of the Philadelphia Florists' Club and the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, who assist in the work of the exhibition, was referred to Geo. Burton. The distribution of tickets to the press to be left with W. F. Therkindson. The matter of the price of tickets was discussed at some length, and it was resolved that florists, merchants or seedsmen who wish to buy tickets for distribution shall pay at the rate of 25 cents each in lots of 100, and that the regular ticket of admission shall be 50 cents. In regard to children's tickets at reduced rates, this to be left in the hands of the manager and ticket committee.

A motion was made that it was the sense of the American Rose Society and of this meeting, that a resolution of thanks be extended to the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society for the use of this horticultural hall, and the courtesies extended to us, and that the secretary be directed to forward this sentiment in an official communication to the society. Motion put by President Pennock and unanimously carried.

MITCHELL, S. D.—William Dethlefs, proprietor of the Davison County Greenhouses in this city, has opened a splendidly equipped retail store, the opening day marking the commencement of his sixth year in business. Starting with one greenhouse, there are now six in his range, and with the addition of the retail store, he now has an establishment second to none in the state.

Milwaukee.MARKET EVENTUALLY CLEANS UP.

The tide has changed at last and everybody is looking forward to a brighter future, and for very good reasons, too. Conditions for growers and wholesalers mainly have been far from satisfactory since the flood of cut chrysanthemums first began, but with the majority now a thing of the past, and prospects are good. It was not until November 24 that the wholesalers could report a cleanup, which, coupled will be elected, and while it is always well attended, President Schroeder would like to have an especially large attendance, as other matters of importance are to come up.

A reward of $50 is being offered by Herm. V. Hunkel for information leading to the recovery of his Hudson touring car No. 79,431, which was stolen from in front of the Holton & Hunkel Co.'s wholesale house Tuesday, November 21. At this time of writing it is still "a goner."

day last; he was too busy to say more than "Hello!"

A visit to the J. M. Fox & Son store last week, found their ice box well filled with high-grade cut flowers as usual; they cater to the better class of trade and always buy the best. Business continues good, they claim.

F. Ernst, at Thirty-seventh and North avenue, has been quite busy with funeral work of late and claims business is good, contrary to reports from some of the other retailers.

Gust Rusch & Co. report a cleanup November 24, the first time in many a day. Gust claims it meant hustle all the time, and not much to show up financially at that.

Gust Pohl, who claimed that he would cut about 10,000 yellow Bonaffon chrysanthemums, had still about half of them to be cut when seen November 22.

E. O.

Los Angeles.GOOD STOCK IS SCARCE.

There is a scarcity of good stock in all lines, some of the late varieties of chrysanthemums constituting the bulk of the supply of that flower. Lily of the valley is practically out of sight and good roses and carnations are not in overabundance. And so it goes. Zinnias, marigolds and centaureas are used as fillers in many of the windows.

NOTES.

Wright's Flower Shop, Inc., seems well supplied with chrysanthemums. A shipment of Mexican ivy had just been received at the time of the visit of the writer. This store is well supplied with stock and anticipates a brisk business this winter.

Paul J. Howard's horticultural establishment is a busy place at present. Quite a force is kept employed in the drafting room and the salesroom is well stocked with foliage plants and a full line of Dutch bulbs, in addition to much other stock.

The Redondo Floral Co. has been very busy during the past week; two of the force here are laid up with the grippe. Sweet peas are seen here and they are handling quite a quantity of them. Chrysanthemums are not as plentiful as they have been.

Howard & Smith are having good business both in cut flowers and nursery stock. They do a big business in landscape designing and planting.

The Broadway Florists are busy as usual. They are getting in decorative plants and green.

CARNATIONS AT WIETOR BROS., CHICAGO.

with the coming holiday, ought to put business on the right track again. With most of the mid-season chrysanthemums and pompons out of the way, roses, carnations, violets and a few of the old standbys, will again command attention. The recent cold snap, together with the always shortening days, reduced the supply enough, so that by November 25, prices in general went up a notch, but they will have to go quite a pace to keep up with the increased cost of production, which is getting more serious as time goes on.

NOTES.

On December 6, the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., will discontinue their Third street store and transact all their business from their new store at 419 Milwaukee street, which was opened some time ago. The store at 349 Third street was opened as a flower store in 1894 by Edlefsen & Scott; in 1896 Mr. Scott returned to his home city, Pittsburgh, Pa., leaving Mr. Edlefsen sole proprietor for about 9 or 10 years, at which time the present Edlefsen-Leidiger Co. was organized. In 1912, Mr. Edlefsen sold out his complete interest, moving to Lorane, Oregon, his present home. Miss Rose Semler, now vice president of the firm, began her career as saleslady with the Edlefsen & Scott firm in the spring of 1895. Two others, who started there that same year in July, are Gust Rusch, of Gust Rusch & Co., and Eugene Oestreich, of the Heitman-Oestreich Co.

C. C. Pollworth and wife returned from their annual hunting trip in the northern part of Wisconsin November 22 with a good sized deer. Clem reports the arrival of two car loads of azaleas, some of which were nipped by frost during transit. As they were not all unpacked at the time of conversation, the full amount of damage could not be ascertained.

The next regular florists' club meeting takes place December 7, at 8:15 p. m. At this meeting officers for 1917

Lancaster Florists' Association.

On the afternoon of November 16 thirty good men and true of this association made an automobile tour, visiting a number of growers in Lancaster county, Pa. At Elmer Weaver's, mignonette, calendulas and sweet peas were all prominent. A new tomato, named Napoleon, was very prolific, one plant producing half a bushel of fruit. The new carnations, Nancy and Alice, were making good, but not quite up to Supreme. Aviator, Belle Washburn, Alice Coombs and Theo look well, while Akehurst, almost discarded at first, is now a leading sort. A white also looks good.

Chas. W. Weaver's place, adjoining, is the sweet pea center of this section; three 400-foot houses show one in crop, one coming and a third with the plants well up; the heating and glazing of the house not quite completed. A new Peirce steam trap has just been installed. Mignonette of quality fills a large house, a splendid looking crop.

H. B. Weaver was next seen. Here carnations are the specialty, a large Lord & Burnham house being filled with them. Alice looks like a winner here. Jacob Weaver's, of Witmer, was the next stop. Two new seedling carnations, a yellow of great merit and a very large flowered cerise, a great keeper, both look to be commercial sorts. Cutting across the country, we came to the establishment of Elias Lefevre, whose quality carnations were seen growing in the best carnation soil in the county. Pink Perfection and White Wonder, as seen here, would be a revelation even to Fred Dorner, could he see them.

John Shreiner and A. Denlinger, two growers for market, were found to have a good general stock. A good crop of chrysanthemums had been cut at Shreiner's, while the latter's carnations were in full crop, to be followed later by vegetable and flowering plants. Both these growers follow closely the rotation of crops, never allowing any idle bench space.

Enos Lefevre had carnations in good shape; also a line of bedding plants. A seedling incurved pink chrysanthemum of exceptional color was a feature.

J. Wade Galey's new greenhouse of King construction was a noted feature here. Carnations are his specialty. The stock was exceptionally fine, as near perfection as possible. The whole place was a model of neatness and efficiency.

The day was completed with the club meeting in Lancaster at 7:30 sharp. Rudolph Nagel exhibited fine blooms of Chadwick chrysanthemums. H. K. Rohrer, chairman of the recent flower show committee, reported it a success in every way. A motion was passed thanking local and out-of-town exhibitors, who had helped so much by their displays. The annual banquet is to be held in December. Chrysanthemums were the topic of the evening. The following list contains the varieties found to have good commercial value:

THANKSGIVING SUPPLY ADEQUATE.

The supply for Thanksgiving is extremely large and should prove equal to all demands upon it. Up to the first of this week, business had shown some improvement, but could not yet be regarded as good. The chrysanthemum glut continues and it will take a heavy demand to clean it up. Roses are still in a heavy supply that is larger than actual needs at the time of this writing. As soon as the chrysanthemum receipts let up roses should come into their own. Carnations are plentiful. The same is true of Easter lilies and callas. The first stevia of the season came into the wholesale houses last week. Other offerings include orchids, lily of the valley, a few sweet peas, violets, and Paper White narcissus.

NOTES.

A. K. Davis is again opening a flower store. This time his location is Newport, Ky.

The R. G. Kootz Co. is moving from their present location on Opera place, to the Gwynne building, at Sixth and Main streets.

P. J. Olinger's cut of his new red carnation, Radium, is holding up nicely; it is proving popular in the local market.

The William Murphy Co. has a good assortment of chrysanthemums for their Thanksgiving business.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in an excellent lot of new roses.

Farrel & Co. will open a new flower store on Sixth street, near Main.

Visitors: C. L. Osborn, Sidney, O., and C. Falkenheim, representing the Basket Novelty Co., New York.

CLUB MEETING.

The florists' club meeting, November 21, was well attended and the proceedings were highly interesting. About 20 members were present with President E. A. Feters in the chair. Before the meeting opened a splendid dinner was served, as is customary at this meeting place, Hiedelberg cafe, 25 Broadway. For some time many of the members were of the opinion that club meetings once a month would be better attended and more real good work accomplished and the matter was fully discussed at this meeting and a decision made to have the future meetings on the first Thursday of every month and the hour six o'clock in the evening, when dinner will precede the club work.

NOTES.

Walter E. Cook, of Cleveland, was present at the meeting and made a vigorous plea for active work of the club, which he said was much needed and pointed out some features that would be most valuable to the members. He urged the practice of making more exhibits of local grown stock to stimulate interest. He highly commended the work of the private gardeners, who he said showed much enthusiasm and enterprise in the direction of exhibits of their products. In the discussion that followed, it was learned that the private gardeners of Grosse Pointe, Mich., where so many of Detroit's wealthy business men reside, are being organized, and the members are to be invited to attend our next club meeting. The influx of heavy shipments of chrysanthemums from California early this fall, brought out a spirited discussion, and the growers present deplored this departure from the retailers' usual disposition to patronize home industries as much as possible, but the retailers answered that at the time, local grown stock was not available in sufficient quantity.

J. F. Sullivan's greenhouses had a narrow escape from destruction by fire Nov. 21, when live embers issuing from the chimney, fell upon the dry shingle roof of the service shed attached to the houses. The fire when discovered in the early morning had made considerable headway, but the vigorous work of the neighbors and employees soon had it under control. In the shed at the time was a stock of over 50,000 bulbs yet in the original cases, and seven hundred azaleas that had been unpacked the day before. Fortunately only a portion of the large roof was destroyed. The loss was fully covered by insurance.

Walter E. Cook, in the name of the Forest City bowlers, issued a challenge for a match game, and offered a cash prize of $10 for the highest individual score. Sidney Beard offers a similar amount to be contested for under the arrangement of the four captains to be selected at the first game to be played Thursday evening, December 7.

Michael Bloy and Albert Pochelon were appointed a committee to provide speakers for the club meetings throughout the year and the selection of the subjects for discussion will be in charge of the same committee.

Bowling will be made a special feature of entertainment the coming season and games will be played every Thursday evening at the Broadway alleys adjoining the meeting place of the club.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

The first flower show under the auspices of the florists' club was held in the ball room of the Anthony hotel, November 16-17. The affair was a decided success, both retailers and wholesalers exhibiting, and the room was at all times thronged with visitors. The exhibits were all well staged and included four decorated tables for a bridal party in addition to many vases and baskets of choice roses, chrysanthemums and other stock in variety. W. J. & M. S. Vesey exhibited a choice collection of orchids. Other firms who made displays were: Flick Floral Co., Markey Bros., Doswell Floral Co., A. J. Lanternier & Co., Ed. Wenninghoff, and New Haven Floral Co. The show will be an annual event.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Co. recently received a large shipment of Scotch heather. This firm had several large wedding decorations during the past week and a number of Thanksgiving orders.

Arthur A. S. Shurtleff, landscape architect of Boston, Mass., gave an interesting lecture at the Chamber of Commerce, November 24, his subject being, "City Planning."

W. J. & M. S. Vesey cut 400 orchids last week from their six orchid houses. These blooms were all ordered for Thanksgiving requirements.

The florists' club will hold its December meeting at Lanternier's store, 1203 Calhoun street. H. K.

Richmond, Ind.

Fred H. Lemon & Co. have an up-to-date store on Main street. It is very conveniently arranged and filled with a choice line of baskets and other florists' bric-a-brac. A pretty card stand, with a central electric fixture, is a feature. The greenhouses in the suburbs contained a great variety of stock in good succession, all of which is sold in the store.

It is chrysanthemum time at the E. G. Hill Co. They aim to have the late varieties, the Eatons and Chadwicks in quantity for Thanksgiving; all are grown one flower to a plant and are shipped by the thousand lots to Chicago, Cincinnati and other neighboring cities.

Miss Helenthal and sister, of Columbus, Ohio, were visitors at the E. G. Hill Co.'s establishment during the past week, inspecting the seedling roses. They were delighted with the many beautiful new varieties.

Jos. H. Hill Co.'s carnations are in full crop for Thanksgiving, also the chrysanthemums. The crop in the mammoth new rose house is coming on with great vigor, Ophelia and Mrs. Ward being particularly fine.

The Advance Co. is making preparations for a record breaking business the coming season. From the number of estimates asked for it looks as if there would be extensive building the coming year.

John A. Evans Co., manufacturer of the Challenge ventilators, has had a very good season. Mr. Evans reports numerous inquiries for new work—much more than is customary at this season.

G. R. Gause & Co., on National avenue, have a good retail trade, selling their stock at the greenhouses. Business has been good this fall. K.

Portland, Me.

Hiram Dyer and his son-in-law, Mr. Small, have completed their greenhouse at South Portland and will start business in the spring. Hiram's many friends wish him success.

At the greenhouses of J. W. Minnott & Co., Inc., some very fine chrysanthemums and carnations are being cut. These two crops are usually leaders at this establishment.

The service building has been enlarged and a propagating house built at the Sawyer Greenhouses at Woodfords.

Roland Barrows and George Meloon of Gorham were recent visitors and inspected several of the ranges in this city.

G. I. S.

QUIDNICK, R. I.—J. H. Cushing, a retired florist, well known to the trade in this vicinity, died here recently.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—An explosion of greenhouse boilers on the estate of John D. Rockefeller caused considerable damage, November 26.

OBITUARY.

The many friends of William L. Kroeschell, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., well known Chicago firm of boiler makers for the trade, were greatly shocked to learn of his death, November 23, when he was found dead at the Illinois Athletic Club. Mr. Kroeschell's health had been poor for some time. For many years he took an active interest in floricultural affairs, more especially those of his city and state. The excellent work of his firm on behalf of the wholesale florists of Chicago during the recent strike of expressmen, is gratefully remembered and he always took a prominent part in all deliberations affecting the trade, giving liberally of his personal aid and financial resources. With others of his firm he was largely responsible for the success of the great meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, held in this city, September 26-29, and within the past few weeks he was similarly identified with the Floral Art and Novelty Show, of the Chicago Florists' Club, at the Hotel LaSalle. He was a member of the Chicago Florists' Club and a life member of the Society of American Florists, American Carnation Society, American Rose Society and the Illinois State Florists' Association, and in close touch with every movement for the welfare of the trade at all times.

Mr. Kroeschell was born in Nashville, Tenn., May 22, 1855. The family moved to Chicago and he was educated in the Chicago public schools. He first entered business on the board of trade. From 1881 to 1900 he was a member of the commission firm of Gerstenberg & Kroeschell. In 1900, upon the death of his elder brother, Mr. Kroeschell entered the firm of Kroeschell Bros. Co., with his remaining brother, Charles Kroeschell. He was secretary and treasurer of the company, which manufactures greenhouse and other boilers and also was secretary and director of Kroeschell Bros.' Ice Machine Co. He was a member of the Chicago board of trade, the Royal Arcanum and the Illinois Athletic Club.

Mrs. Kroeschell, two daughters, Mrs. Paula Butz and Mrs. Ida Von Armon, a brother, Charles, a sister, Mrs. Cora Frommann, and his mother, Mrs. Bertha Kroeschell, survive.

The funeral, November 26, was private. The floral offerings, representing all sections of the country, were numerous and beautiful.

S. J. Reuter.

S. J. Reuter, founder of the well-known firm of S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., growers, with establishments at West-erly, R. I., New London and Norwich, Conn., and Boston, Mass., died November 24, aged 65 years. Some years ago he was stricken with paralysis, but later visited Europe and returned somewhat improved, but for several months his health has been steadily failing.

Mr. Reuter was a native of Germany, where for many years he conducted a fine business in the growing of cut flowers before coming to America and starting the establishment at West-erly. Since his illness the business has been ably conducted by his son, Louis J. Reuter.

The deceased was highly respected by all who knew him and had many friends in the trade. He was buried with Masonic honors November 26. The casket was covered with many beautiful floral offerings. Among those prominent in the trade who attended the last sad rites were Patrick Welch and W. H. Elliott, Boston, Mass.; E. A. Pierce, Waltham, Mass.; Peter S. Byrnes, Wickford, R. I., and John Young, New York. A widow, one son and two daughters survive.

A. F. F.

Sewickley Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Sewickley Horticultural Society was held November 14 with Vice-president R. Boxel in the chair. The various committees of the chrysanthemum show made their reports, showing that all did their share in making it the success it proved to be. A vote of thanks was extended to all of the committee members. J. Barnet read a communication from the secretary of the National Association of Gardeners regarding the coming convention of that organization, which will be held at Washington, D. C., December 5-6 and announcing the appointment of Mr. Barnet as chairman of publicity for this district. His remarks were well received and as the members are in sympathy with the work of the N. A. G., there should be a good attendance at the Washington meeting. Nominations for officers for 1917 being in order, the following were proposed: For president—John Barnet, R. Boxel, A. E. Bonsey, and J. Carman. Vice-president—A. Davidson, and Robt. Taylor. Secretary—Manus Curran. Treasurer—Wm. Thompson, Jr. Executive committee—Wm. Gillies, Wm. Thompson, A. E. Bonsey, A. Davidson, R. Boxel, J. Carman, J. Barnet, Wm. Beeler, and T. Jones.

Manus Curran and T. Barnet were appointed a committee to attend the next meetings of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club and the Western Pennsylvania Horticultural Society and get things started for the proposed show for 1917.

It was left to the executive committee to arrange for a ladies' night in January. A most interesting paper from the National Association on Gardeners, entitled "Horticulture as a Profession, from the Standpoint of a Gardener," was very ably read by John Carman, to whom a vote of thanks was accorded. The next four meetings will be called to order at 7:30, instead of 8:00 o'clock. Twenty-one applications for membership were received.

SPHAGNUM MOSS is likely to be one of the short items before May.

DURING the nine months of 1916 exports from Argentina to this country were $56,782,000, imports $90,280,000.

JONQUIL CAMPERNELLES, formerly a French product, is now coming from Holland, making delivery later than formerly.

AMONG the protests forwarded to the Board of United States General Appraisers during the week ending November 18 was the following: "Wheat treated with sulphur dioxide, used in the manufacture of funeral decorations. Assessed at 15 per cent."

Carnation Crystal White.

We are in receipt of the following communication from the Cottage Gardens Co., Inc., Queens, N. Y., under date of November 21:

"The impression seems to be widely prevalent in trade circles that the Cottage Gardens Company's new carnation, Crystal White, is to be disseminated this season. The company is at a loss to know where this impression originated as it has never been their intention to send out Crystal White until next season, and they never made any statement that could be construed otherwise. The only carnation they are sending out this year is Cottage Maid and they wish to assure the trade that Crystal White will not be on the market until the season of 1917-18."

French and Belgian Needs After War.

A. B. Farquhar, the well-known manufacturer of agricultural implements and machinery, says he found that from the parts of France and Belgium occupied by the Germans they had carried away all the machinery and everything that would be valuable in the re-organization of factories. The French expect to regain Alsace-Lorraine, but foresee that industrial plants there will be wrecked or dismantled. Losses, mainly industrial, in northern France and Belgium, have been estimated at nearly $3,000,000,000. Mr. Farquhar says that great quantities of machinery "must be bought" by the French after the close of the war. "Almost every kind of machine used in modern industry" will be needed, and "any American maker of machinery can confidently turn to that market for lucrative business on the day that peace is declared." He inquired about farm implements. In a talk with the French Minister of Agriculture I said to him: "We hear a great deal in America about the necessity for rebuilding your industries. But we know almost nothing about your needs. What about the farmers?" He turned to a secretary and called for a report. It was brought, and the minister answered: "When peace comes here are some of the things French farmers will need at once: 120,000 plows, 17,200 tractor engines, 8,000 to 10,000 threshers and so on." This is an example of the opportunities that will open to our manufacturers of machinery and implements. And I believe that the same is true of almost every trade in France. Foreign goods and the machinery to make their own goods must be had in large quantities.

SHORT THANKSGIVING SUPPLY FEARED.

Cool and cloudy weather during the past week shortened the supply and in consequence business has been greatly benefited. The growers are holding back much of the crop. The local supply at present would not be adequate to meet the Thanksgiving day rush. Chrysanthemums dominate the market and prices have stiffened, medium sized blooms selling at $3 to $4 per dozen, while fancy stock is moving at $5 and $6 and in some cases as high as $9 per dozen. Roses show improvement in every way. American Beauty is very good but the supply is not large. Lily of the valley, sweet peas, violets and orchids are working in fine and are much used. Lilies are good and the supply of white and yellow narcissi is growing better. Cyclamens and chrysanthemums sell well in the plant sections.

NOTES.

The Masonic charity ball in Convention hall, November 25, was one of the season's big events and practically every florist in the city had his share of orders for decorations, etc. Smilax, palms and chrysanthemums, both cut blooms and plants, were used in large numbers. One of the most attractive boxes was that arranged by Samuel Murray, boxes of Lorraine begonias at the front and large ferns and choice vases of brilliant chrysanthemums at the rear showing to splendid advantage.

During the past week the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports a good increase in business over that of last year. They will not be able to cut enough of their own stock to meet the heavy demand that is assured for Thanksgiving day but are fortunate in having plenty of good stock ordered. Advance orders arrived earlier this year than usual.

T. J. Noll & Co. have a large supply of good stock and will be well supplied with chrysanthemums, roses, lily of the valley, violets, carnations and orchids. A fine line of American Beauty is a feature here. Medium sized chrysanthemums are scarce but the large ones in fancy varieties are plentiful.

W. J. Barnes is cutting fine Yellow Eaton and Frick chrysanthemums for his Thanksgiving trade; also, good carnations, stevias, white and yellow narcissi and a good supply of orchids. He will also feature begonias and chrysanthemums in pots.

The Rosery had one of the largest decorations of the season, November 22, at the Country club. Box trees studded with 500 cut roses and 700 large chrysanthemum blooms were used in connection with other stock.

To be added later on to the store force of H. Kusik & Co., the arrival is announced of a twelve pound boy, November 23. Shipping trade at the store is reported better with a good supply of excellent stock.

A. Mohr is cutting fine chrysanthemums, snapdragons, carnations and sweet peas. Lorraine begonias and cyclamens are in fine shape. He has 2,000 lilies and a fine lot of pot roses coming on for Easter.

Miss J. E. Murray is now able to be at the store a little each day. She reports trade good and some fine stock coming in. A large Italian wedding, November 26, kept her force hard at work.

John Stevens will cut fine Yellow Eaton and Bonaffon chrysanthemums for the Thanksgiving trade. They are of unusual size.

Arthur Newell reports everything in good shape with plenty of orders on hand.

MARKET CONDITIONS MUCH IMPROVED.

The market has shown a marked improvement over last week. Chrysanthemums have not been so plentiful and have brought slightly better prices. Pompons are still very much in evidence, and will continue so until Thanksgiving day. Large chrysanthemums will be scarce for this day, growers holding everything possible to fill orders already booked. Carnations are in good supply and the demand good. A few calla lilies arrived and snapdragon is good stock, in all colors. Roses are cleaning up nicely, some very good stock arriving daily—Rhea Reid, Mme. Perrie, Ophelia, Killarney and a few Russell. American Beauty is off crop, only a limited amount arriving. Sunburst and Ward are moving nicely, and the cool weather has brought stock up to fine shape. Lily of the valley can now be had in any quantity. Violets are moving better than for some time, stock is exceptionally fine. Greens have been a little short of the demand, especially long asparagus. Southern smilax, laurel wreathing and boxwood are having an excellent call.

Six Splendid Volumes Five Now Ready

The Sixth Volume in Preparation.

This work is Prof. L. H. Bailey's latest and greatest achievement and will undoubtedly stand as a monument to him. This is not a revision of the old Cyclopedia but a brand new work containing features not dreamed of at the time of publication of the original cyclopedia which was a pioneer work. The old cyclopedia of Horticulture, it will be remembered was a cyclopedia in fact as well as in name, whereas the new Standard Cyclopedia of Horticulture is a gardener's manual as well as a cyclopedia and contains features that make it equally adaptable to the amateur and to the professional, to the man without education or the man with high literary tastes.

If we wished to buy table ferns we would go to George Schubert, for he has them both in great quantities and variety, and it would be impossible to find a finer or cleaner stock. He also grows thousands of kentias from seed, and we were interested in seeing the little fellows pushing their heads through the soil after their sleep of months.

John Tschupp & Co. have been cutting very fine chrysanthemums and have already started a great stock of geraniums and other bedding plants. At a time when there is such a demand for pots, they have been fortunate in securing theirs.

The extensive range of E. G. Asmus' Son is now showing fine roses in all the leading varieties, American Beauty excepted. At a later date we hope to give a more extended sketch of this range.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

A change in weather conditions brought an improvement in the market. Stock is inclined to be scarce. Chrysanthemums are still at their best and the demand is very good. Bonnaffon and Eaton are two of the varieties which can be had in quantity and bring prices ranging from $10 to $15 per 100 for the former and $2 to $3 per dozen for the latter. Some very fine pink are to be seen and clean up well at $3 per dozen. Roses are scarce and the quality of same is poor. It appears that most of them are out of crop. This seems to be especially true of Russell and American Beauty. The demand exceeds the supply. Carnations are plentiful and some very fine stock is offered at $20 per 1,000. Violets are of good quality and there are enough of them to meet all requirements. The best sell at 60 cents per 100. Paper Whites are in good demand at $2 per 100. Pompons are plentiful this season with quality better than ever. They sell in bunches at 30 to 35 cents and in single sprays at $5 per 100. Stevia is beginning to arrive and finds ready sale at 50 cents per 100. The market is well supplied with lilies the price being $10 per 100. Lily of the valley is also plentiful, the best being quoted at $6, inferior grades as low as $4. Orchids are scarce and with the brisk demand sell readily at $9 per dozen. Greens clean up well at nominal prices.

NOTES.

The retail florists' association held its regular meeting November 20 in the Mission Inn. The matter of advertising was taken up and discussed. Fred Weber, Jr., secretary, and F. X. Gorly, chairman of the advertising committee, reported that everything would be in readiness and an expert in advertising would be on hand at the January meeting. The membership of the association is steadily increasing.

At the meeting of the Florists' and Nurserymen's Union No. 14134 the nomination of officers resulted as follows: For president, I. Erickson; for vice-president, Henry Duernberg; for secretary, E. Y. Ellison; for treasurer, M. W. Uhl Schmidt. It was announced that the Christmas party would take place December 4.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has on display daily a fine assortment of fancy chrysanthemums. Dave Geddis has them all very nicely arranged in baskets which attract the buyers. In this way, in addition to the cut stock they sell quite a number of the baskets.

The roses from the Pilcher greenhouses are coming better every day and they find a ready market at the establishment of the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.

Henry Berning is selling Bonnaffons in thousand lots. In addition to a fine assortment of other stock some very fine violets are seen here.

The finest quality of pompons and Bonnaffons are a feature at the Windler Wholesale Floral Co. Business here is reported good.

The downtown florists are busy with orders for funeral work and social functions.

A new flower shop will be opened shortly at Larch and Manchester streets.

FUNERAL ORDERS BULK OF TRADE.

Business is erratic with only an occasional spurt to use up the large supply of chrysanthemums now on hand. Big business is lacking as all large social functions are tabooed and in consequence a lack of decorations. Funeral work forms the bulk of trade. Roses are fine, especially American Beauty, Russell, Shawyer and Ophelia, all of which are No. 1 stock, the first named bringing from $15 to $35 per 100, the others being quoted at from $6 to $12 per 100. Carnations, while not plentiful, have improved in quality and are moving at from $2.50 to $4 per 100. Lilium longiflorum at $15 and callas at $10 are scarce. The heavy cut of chrysanthemums is now practically over and the supply has shortened considerably, but there are singles and pompons galore. Cattleyas at $35, lily of the valley at $4.50 and violets at 75 cents to $1 are other popular items. Stevias and poinsettias have made their appearance.

CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the florists' and gardeners' club was held November 21, a chrysanthemum exhibition being the feature and the attendance was large. The Lord & Burnham Co. gold prize was awarded to George Thompson for six finished blooms of Wm. Turner. For best vase of chrysanthemums, R. Jennings was first, with George Thompson, second and W. Allan, third. The Thompson entry also captured first honors in the competition for vase of singles; also certificate of merit for singles and pompons. Geo. Hollis also secured certificates of merit in these classes.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: George Thompson, president; A. Simpson, first vice-president; H. G. Dillemath, second vice-president. Executive committee—G. A. Hall, Thomas Manton, E. F. Collins, F. Fletcher, F. D. Clark, D. Mackenzie and John Thomson. Representative to the national exhibition—Thomas Manton.

NOTES.

Simmons & Son issued invitations for a reception at the opening of their new store on Yonge street. The event was well attended, the store was nicely decorated throughout and many pleasing novelties were displayed. An orchestra furnished a splendid programme. This establishment is one of the most up-to-date in Canada and this progressive firm deserves success.

John H. Dunlop has a new seedling rose which shows great promise. Several firms in the United States have already made bids for the stock. It is a good bright crimson, erect and of good growth, more double than Richmond and has a good stem. His pink seedling, No. 6 also shows great promise. Although cut back for the Christmas trade, stock in general here is in good shape and a good crop is expected.

H. G. D.

Louisville, Ky.

Several shipments of azaleas from Belgium arrived here recently frozen and in very bad condition. Among the local trade who received badly damaged or totally worthless stock are the New Nanz & Neuner Co., Jacob Schulz Co., F. Walker & Co., Henry Fuchs and the Kunzman Floral Co.

CHOICE SHIPPING ROSES

RUSSELLS—We are growing the finest Russells arriving in this market. All visitors to the greenhouses in the Chicago district say that our Russell are the best here.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade. The roses which we are receiving in large quantities direct from our greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, enable us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower. Order here.

EARLY THANKSGIVING DEMAND IS GOOD.

Trade was very quiet last week up to Friday, November 24, when the demand started to improve and the market took a sudden change for the better. The early Thanksgiving demand is good and from present indications stock of all kinds will be pretty well cleaned up before the rush is over. American Beauty roses are very scarce and are selling at high prices with an early cleanup each day. Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are none too plentiful, either, and like American Beauty roses, are unusually good property. Red roses are scarce as are roses in general, as far as that is concerned. Chrysanthemums and pompons are in fairly good supply, but are moving freely at satisfactory prices. Carnations are plentiful but are selling well and it would not be at all surprising if they cleaned up for Thanksgiving. Violets are in good demand and are selling at higher Thanksgiving prices than in former years. Gardenias are very scarce and so are orchids, which are sold almost as quickly as they reach the store. Lily of the valley is still on the short side and the better grades continued to bring $6.00 per 100. Sweet peas are none too plentiful, but stevia and Paper White narcissus seem to be in larger supply. Daisies and calendulas are selling well and so is what little mignonette there is arriving. Lilies are seen in large quantities at many of the stores, but do not appear to be in much demand. Snapdragons are in better supply and a large quantity of

Cut Flower Buyers Should Read This

With the new connections we have made the past six months with the foremost growers in this part of the country we are in a position to offer you the most complete variety of cut flowers controlled by any one concern. This means that we are equipped to handle all of your orders to your entire satisfaction.

strawflowers are still included in the offerings. Green goods in general are in large supply with the possible exception of Asparagus plumosus, which, at times, the past week has been rather scarce.

NOTES.

Andrew Chronis is more than pleased with the increase in sales at the Alpha Floral Co.'s store this month, and is making a tremendous showing and strong bid for the Thanksgiving business. This firm always carries a large and complete line of stock, including all the novelties, and, judging from the large number of gardenias on hand at all times, one would believe he has a corner on the local production.

Oscar J. Friedman, 516 South Michigan avenue, reports trade as very good and that last week was the best seven days' business he has experienced since Victor Bergman has been with him. This store is always kept in apple-pie order and the window displays are always so original and unusual that the people passing by on Michigan avenue make it a point to stop and admire them.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are enjoying a good cut flower and supply business and are more than pleased with the Thanksgiving demand.

M. C. Gunterberg received a postal card handsomely decorated with violets this week from Vincent Van Keuren and wife, of Elyria, O., who were formerly in the violet growing business at Rhinebeck, N. Y., and consigned their output to her. They are now engaged in the retail grocery business in that city. Miss Gunterberg in speaking of market conditions says that she does not remember when violets sold at such high prices at wholesale the week before Thanksgiving as they did this year.

The A. L. Randall Co. is having a special sale on glassware this week and is disposing of a large number of its electric store fountains, which are selling like hot cakes and are seen featured in many of the leading retail establishments. W. W. Randall, who started out on a business trip through Wisconsin last week, was suddenly taken sick at Manitowoc and forced to return home. He is feeling much better at this writing and will soon be ready to start out again.

Chas. Erne, of Erne & Klingel, received word from Terre Haute, Ind., November 25, that a gas stove exploded in the home of his brother-in-law, Jake Russell, of that city, and that Mrs. Russell and her two children were severely burned. A later dispatch contained the sad news that the youngest child, a one-year-old boy, had died from his injuries and that fears were entertained for Mrs. Russell's recovery. The oldest child, a three-year-old girl, will likely recover.

The firm of Percy Jones, Inc., has been located in its present quarters since it started in business and has the reputation of occupying one location longer than any other wholesale florist in the city. This firm is now using the space that was at one time formerly occupied by 17 wholesale florists and the rapid increase of its business is due to the able management of H. Van Gelder, president of the company.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a fine supply of American Beauty and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses of splendid quality, for which the demand is very heavy. Tim Waters of the supply department, reports the arrival of a car of Italian grasses for the holidays. The demand for baskets at this establishment is keeping the force busy getting out late orders for the Thanksgiving trade.

Guy M. Reyburn has returned from a business trip to New York and other eastern cities, where he completed arrangements for the new wholesale firm of Guy M. Reyburn & Co., with headquarters at 160 North Wabash avenue.

Allie Zech says that Zech & Mann's sales so far during November are away head of the same month's entire sales last year, and that the Thanksgiving business this year will also run considerably ahead of 1915.

Michael Henry Moore, 522 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., was in the city buying stock for Thanksgiving this week. He had a 40-inch advertisement in the Milwaukee Sentinel, Friday, November 28.

Carl Weiner, of the Chicago Printed String Co., manufacturer of advertising string, reports business as rushing, with new inquirers from the trade every day, at 305 South LaSalle street.

Demosthenes Papatony, 228 West Madison street, is up and about again, after being on the sick list for several weeks.

The E. C. Amling Co. is busy getting things in shape at its new quarters, which it expects to occupy about January 1, 1917.

CHICAGO, ILL.

Bassett & Washburn are so busy with their Thanksgiving business that the office force was called upon to help out during the rush and even Mrs. Washburn was on the job early and late for several days the opening of the week. Everything points to a grand cleanup in all lines at this writing at this establishment.

At J. A. Budlong's store the out-of-town demand for stock for Thanksgiving is exceedingly brisk and Manager Schupp and his assistants are finding that their increased store space is none too large during a heavy rush. Budlong's have without question one of the finest locations in the city.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is doing a fine Thanksgiving business, which started with a rush and will end in a grand cleanup if the present demand continues. Manager Klingsporn and his assistants are working like beavers to get out all the orders on time.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are having a heavy out-of-town call for stock for Thanksgiving and the local demand also promises to be good. Carnations and roses are in good supply here but a cleanup is expected before the week is over.

Frank Washburn and Ed. Washburn, of A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, were in the city on business this week connected with the new range of Moninger houses that they will erect next season.

The Southern California Flower Market, of Los Angeles, Calif., has opened a wholesale store in room 406 at 30 East-Randolph street. S. Kitasawa is in charge and is assisted by Louis Anrola.

Schiller, the Florist, has started an advertising campaign in the elevated cars, which is attracting much attention. George Wienhoeber and John Muir are using the surface cars regularly.

The John Kruchten Co. reports business as good for Thanksgiving and had several calls from out-of-town wholesale florists for stock this week.

Visitors: L. P. Harley, Hartford, Mich.; Robert Karlstrom, representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; Frank Gorly, St. Louis, Mo.; A. Peterson, Decatur.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—Pedrine & Filpelli have opened a store at 453 Bush street and will specialize in greens.

NO OVERSUPPLY AND PRICES STIFFEN.

The volume of business has not increased, but as the supply of stock in nearly all lines is not any too plentiful, prices have made an advance. Chrysanthemums are bringing better figures and carnations are now moving at from $2 to $3.50 per 100, while violets are in good demand with supply below requirements. Lily of the valley is scarce and the quality is not up to standard.

NOTES.

Plans are being discussed for a treat to visitors to this city during inaugural week in the form of an amaryllis show. A similar exhibition was held four years ago in the government greenhouse at which there were about 600 amaryllis bulbs in bloom.

The chrysanthemum show of the Gude Bros. Co. attracted nearly as many visitors as the chrysanthemum exhibition recently held by the government. The store was artistically arranged with oak foliage and southern smilax.

Geo. Lavalley is contemplating the erection of two more houses each 25x150 feet to be ready in the spring. His Spencer sweet peas and calendulas are the finest that are brought to this market.

The local trade are patiently waiting to see whether there is to be an inaugural ball in 1917, an event that will benefit the florists of this city to the extent of thousands of dollars.

TRADE INDICATIONS BEST IN YEARS.

Business as a whole in the florist line has shown much improvement in this vicinity and indications point to one of the best seasons in years. A noticeable feature is the increase in the number of cash sales. Shipping business shows an increase and a call for the better grades of stock and payments are generally prompt. Stock in all seasonable varieties and of fine quality is being received. Chrysanthemums and carnations in the standard varieties are in good supply, but no novelties are to be seen here. The public appears to be satisfied with the old standbys, but this is not true of roses—the rose shows have educated the flower buyers to be on the lookout for something new. Rather early frosts cut down much of the outdoor stocks of many kinds and prices advanced accordingly for greenhouse varieties. Disproving the old idea that roses could not be grown under glass in this section, some very fine Ophelia, Chatenay and Sunburst are seen. Sales of small pot plants have been numerous with prices showing a slight increase. No first-class pot chrysanthemums are to be seen however.

NOTES.

Since returning from Kennewick, S. L. Harper had the end of his thumb severely crushed and for a month has had a serious time with blood poisoning. He says the thumb feels as if it was a foot long and it is always sure to be on the job any time there is a chance for it to "get a good bump."

The Northwestern Floral Co. reports improved business. Their carried over benched carnations were a great success—plenty of fine flowers early.

C. H. Lundgren, who leased the Harper establishment on Pacific avenue which the latter traded some time ago, has given up his lease. Some dissatisfaction.

The Hayden-Watson Co. reports a good increase in business both in local and shipping orders. Cash sales are better than they have been in two years.

The California Florists have better smiles these days than have been noticeable for some time. Improved business.

John Hamilton has opened his store on Eleventh street for the season. He reports business better than last year.

No building is being done here this season. S. L. H.

TRADE CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Retail business was normal the first part of the week, but very active the latter part, Saturday being a banner day. Surplus stock has gradually decreased until it looks as if the supply for Thanksgiving would be rather limited. Roses in all varieties are of good quality and demand, bringing from $3 to $10 per 100. Sweet peas are becoming more popular and plentiful, and range from $1 to $1.50 per 100. Chrysanthemums are still the leaders with carnations, violets, lily of the valley and lilies gaining better foothold.

NOTES.

There will be a meeting of the local convention committees of the American Carnation Society at the Claypool hotel, Wednesday, December 6, at 8 p. m.

Another attractive seedling chrysanthemum has been put on the market by Ernest Rieman. It is a very attractive pink single.

Edwin M. Morner, of Shelbyville, had as his guests several Indianapolis florists at his opening, November 21.

The W. C. T. U. convention improved counter trade, especially in the corsage bouquet line.

Otto A. Beyers, of South Bend, Ind., has been attending the Odd Fellows' convention here.

The December meeting of the state florists' association has been postponed.

The local store of the E. G. Hill Co. recently purchased a new delivery car. The Tomlinson Hall flower market enjoyed good business all week.

Bert Stanley has just returned from a hunting trip.

WHOLESALE MARKET MUCH IMPROVED.

The condition of the wholesale cut flower market is very much improved, the supply and demand being more balanced. Chrysanthemums are in demand, a good supply of the later varieties coming in and bringing fair prices. Pompons are plentiful, the better sorts selling well. Carnations are popular. Lily of the valley is scarce and there being a good demand, the price is high. Lilies are still in excess of requirements. Orchids, hybrids, Trianae and labiata are scarce and the tendency of the prices is upwards. Roses are in good demand, shipments being lighter with prices advancing. The supply of American Beauties is equal to the demand. Violets have strengthened in value and improved in quality. Paper Whites are increasing. Bouvardias, pansies and stevias are coming in, while the call for autumn foliage and wild smilax is very good. Altogether conditions warrant a prosperous Thanksgiving.

NOTES.

A meeting of the American Rose Society was held in the club room of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, November 22, and there was a good attendance. President S. S. Pennock called the meeting to order and after some discussion, it was decided to hold the show on the dates of March 20-23, in the First Regiment armory. Everybody present was very enthusiastic, and conditions point to a very successful show. There was also present: John Welsh Young, Henry F. Michell, Charles Meehan, W. K. Harris, J. F. Zieger, Benjamin Hammond, secretary; Harry O. May, treasurer, and Robert Pyle.

Among the visitors this week were: Mr. Deal, of the W. W. Johnson Co., England; H. A. Bunyard and Mr. Malandre, of New York; Max Gordon and Edward Dupuy, of Whitestone, N. Y.; Julius Roehrs, of Rutherford, New Jersey.

Franklin Ely, of the flower seed department of the H. F. Michell Co., reports a good demand for flower seeds for early sowing, as well as winter flowering varieties of sweet peas.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., have a very attractive window display of bird houses, one of the specialties of this house.

At the Leo Niessen Co. everyone is on the move and the indications point to a very busy Thanksgiving.

The J. W. Colflesh Co. reports a good demand for English ivy, of which this firm makes a specialty.

Robert Craig reports an unusual demand for pot plants of every variety.

Berger Brothers are featuring some splendid chrysanthemums.

PRICES SHOW UPWARD TENDENCY.

Business continues fair, but there is no boom. While the chrysanthemums have to some extent thinned out, there are yet plenty to supply all demands. Carnations are not in surplus and are wholesaling at $3 and $4 per 100. Such varieties as Cottage Maid bring $5. On account of the football games, November 25, there was quite a flurry in violets. About 400,000 came in on November 24-25 and cleaned up at $1 to $1.50 per 100, according to quality. Special American Beauties run from 30 to 40 cents. There is not much change in tea roses, but the tendency is upward. A cold wave, which always, to some extent, reduces the supply, has struck the city; this, with the approach of Thanksgiving, is likely to stiffen prices. Orchids, lilies and lily of the valley are firm.

November 27.—The market is fairly active and indications point to a good week's business. There will be plenty of chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving, but there is no probability of a surplus in any stock.

NOTES.

William H. Kuebler, the leading Brooklyn wholesaler, says that: "Prosperity has not struck us yet." Brooklyn is largely a residential section for people of moderate means, and he says that on account of the high cost of living the people have not the money to spend on flowers. This is a feature which others in the trade have been considering. Without the great middle class, the florists could not live and do business; at least, it would be a very small proportion of them that could. The outrageous prices that are being exacted for the necessities of life is making it prohibitive with many to indulge in luxuries.

Archibald C. Weeks, librarian of the Brooklyn Entomological Society, has written to the Sun denying that the English sparrow is a nuisance. He says that the sparrow is a most industrious destroyer of noxious insects and noxious weeds. He reiterates what others have stated, that the sparrow stays close to human habitation, leaving the fields and forests to the other birds. We have always thought that much of the prejudice, in this country, against the English sparrow, was on account of his Christian (or first) name and not his habits.

The pot situation seems to be growing worse. Not only have prices been raised, but even at that growers are complaining that they cannot get pots that they now greatly need. We learn that in this vicinity, during the past week, a number of men were laid off from greenhouses because no pots were available. If this keeps up for any length of time, it is safe to say that a number of growers will take up lines of growing in which fewer pots will be needed.

The news has been received that Henry Siebrecht, Jr., of this city and New Rochelle, has been married in Pasadena, Calif., to Mrs. Francescina Miner, also of this city. Henry Siebrecht, Jr., was at the Panama Pacific Exposition in charge of the horticultural features for New York, Bolivia and Italy. He was awarded a gold medal. It is stated that the newly married couple will live at Pasadena.

CHAS. SCHWAKE & CO., Inc., 90-92 West Broadway, New York.

A very neat and well conducted retail store is located at 485 Eighth avenue, of which Alexander Scommadau and his sister, Matilda, are the proprietors. This business was established over 50 years ago by their father, the late Richard Scommadau, who died a few months ago, and though the location has been changed, there has never been a break in its continuance.

C. Spengler and wife, 342 Second avenue, are interesting people, having had a good retail store in that locality for 34 years. C. Spengler went to work for the old firm of Hanft Brothers, in 1873, going into business for himself in 1882. Mrs. Spengler is also a good florist, and both are well informed on the leading events of the business since they embarked in it.

Some of the finest American Beauties reaching this market are being received by Badgley & Bishop, Inc., 34 West 28th street, from Duke's Farm, Somerville, N. J. Superintendent Macdonald is an all around horticulturist, and in the past his exhibits have won valuable prizes at the shows held in this city.

H. L. Baylis, who represents Dailledouze Brothers and Edward Asmus in the New York Cut Flower Co., is handling fine roses and carnations from the former firm and fine roses and an exceptionally fine grade of lily of the valley from the latter.

One of the busy retail stores of the East Side is that of Theodore Karampas, the St. Mark's Florist, 131 First avenue. He not only keeps a good stock of cut flowers and plants, but also conducts a side line of jewelry and musical instruments.

John M. Hunter & Son, of Englewood, N. J., are shipping to Charles Millang exceptionally fine stock of the carnations, Champion, Enchantress Supreme, Ward and White Enchantress; also, Ophelia and other standard varieties of roses.

One of the popular and active retailers of the West Side is John J. Curley, 532 Eighth avenue. "Honest John," they call him. He is popular with the theatrical people, and they patronize him freely, both on occasions of joy and sorrow.

George Vock, salesman with the New York Cut Flower Co., for Frank Abrams and Julius Chevalley, of Blue Point, L. I., is handling good carnations of the varieties Christmas Pink, Enchantress, Ward, Beacon and White Wonder.

At Traendly & Schenck's, 436 Sixth avenue, in addition to a great stock of fine roses, we have recently noticed particularly fine chrysanthemums of the varieties Goldmine, Wm. Turner, Odessa and Wells' Late Pink.

Joseph Morichard, supply salesman for the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., who has been very ill of pleurisy, is slowly recovering. He is being well cared for at the home of Manager Rigby.

George J. Polykranas, 104 West 28th street, is receiving very fine chrysanthemums for so late in the season. They comprise Enguehard, Glenview and other good varieties.

George Peters & Sons, of Hempstead, L. I., are bringing to the New York Cut Flower Co., where they sell their own stock, a good assortment of carnations and pompons.

H. E. Froment, 148 West 28th street, continues to receive a great stock of all the standard varieties of roses from the range of L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J.

J. J. Coan, Inc., has received the first yellow narcissi of the season, which brings 50 to 75 cents per dozen. He is also handling a fine line of mignonette.

Alexander M. Westwood, the retailer of the Pennsylvania terminal, has been having a great sale of violets during the football season. He catches them coming and going.

Alexander Donaldson, of Englewood, N. J., is bringing to the Cut Flower Exchange a variety of good stock in chrysanthemums, carnations and callas.

M. C. Ford, 121 West 28th street, is now handling a fine variety of stock in roses and carnations. In chrysanthemums his Goldmines are very fine.

Clarence Slinn, 123 West 28th street, is receiving good stock of both double and single violets, these being his specialty, and they are selling well.

At Alexander McConnell's business is good. At this store we have noticed fine window decorations with begonias of the Lorraine type.

The George W. Crawbuck Co., Inc., have got their new store in fine shape and their business is improving rapidly.

B. S. Slinn, Jr., in the Cut Flower Exchange, received about 200,000 violets November 24-25, and sold out well.

Mrs. Retta E. Rankin, manager of the House of Ferns, 41 West 28th street, reports business improving.

COLD WEATHER BRINGS IMPROVEMENT.

The first cold spell reached this city last week with the temperature falling to 15°. This seemed to put more snap into the business than any time before. It has been the custom before a holiday for the business to fall off considerably, but not so this year. Chrysanthemums still have the call with good white and pink on the scarce list. Yellow Bonnaffons are about the only good ones to be had now and always find ready sales. Short roses have more demand than the longer grades and often the best are sold at the prices of shorts. Carnations are very good. Violets and sweet peas are selling well. Pompons have quite a demand, as they are almost over. Lilies are moving slowly. American Beauties are not quite so plentiful, but enough to meet the demand. All greens are moving nicely.

CLUB BANQUET.

The florists' and gardeners' club celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary with an elaborate banquet at the Fort Pitt hotel, November 21. About 70 members were present and all had a very enjoyable evening. All the oldest members and officers of the club were seated at the speakers' table. They included: E. C. Reineman, P. S. Randolph, Geo. Osterleo (the first secretary of the club), W. A. Clark, Fred Burki, J. W. Ludwig, E. C. Ludwig, Wm. Loew, B. L. Elliott, Neil McCallum, John Jones, Wm. Falconer, T. P. Langhans, H. Meuschke, President Fred Becker and Secretary H. P. Joslin. After an excellent menu, the president introduced E. C. Reineman, the first president of the club, who acted as toastmaster and gave a brief history of the club from the day of its organization up to the present time, which proved very interesting to all present. Others who followed and made brief talks were: P. S. Randolph, J. W. Ludwig, W. A. Clarke, Wm. Falconer, George Burke, Neil McCallum, John Jones, T. P. Langhans, George Wessenauer, Fred Burki and H. Meuschke. All present expressed a desire to have a large flower show in the city in the near future and expressed a willingness to help the Garden Club with its exhibition in June. The banquet was one of the most enjoyable events in the club's history and the members joined in a wish that the anniversary could be celebrated every month.

I. Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, called on the trade in this city and vicinity during the week.

G. M.

Albany, N. Y.

Under the direction of Philip Bender, superintendent of parks, workmen have completed the planting of 225 beds of tulip and other bulbs in the various recreation centers owned by the municipality. One order placed by the city for the work amounted to 95,000 bulbs.

The annual chrysanthemum show, conducted by the park department, came to a close, November 19. The plants were grown in the park greenhouses on New Scotland avenue and brought to the lake house, Washington park, for the exhibition. A list of 30 new varieties on exhibition in the collection for the first time was published in the daily papers and stimulated curiosity. The exhibit, however, as a whole, was not as good as a year ago.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich., President; F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., First Vice-President; L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer. Thirty-fifth annual convention, June, 1917.

EGG PLANT seed will be short.

BOSTON, Mass.—Chas. H. Breck and wife are spending a few days at Atlantic City.

THERE will be a big demand for tomato seed. Early sorts, $2 to $2.50; late, $1.75 to $2.

SPINACH is very short and the price is as much as the traffic will bear, 75 cents approximately.

RADISH is in short supply. Turnip sorts will be quoted to the trade at 40 to 50 cents, long sorts 35 to 40 cents.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Lester L. Morse is thought to have improved in health during and since his recent Chicago trip.

NEW YORK.—Watson S. Woodruff returned from the west via Galveston, Tex., and admires the pluck of these rebuilders after the tidal waves.

HAVE you provided your Early Jersey Wakefield cabbage seed for 1918? Cabbage for wintering this season is scarce. The northwest coast is in fair shape for cabbage crop.

CANNERS are said to have deliberately invaded Connecticut seed sweet corn sections and, bidding double local prices, pirated considerable stock which was verbally optioned to local jobbers.

IN the New Jersey pepper seed growing region green peppers proved of greater value than the prospective seed because of which truckers repudiated their contracts. Legal efforts failed to get the seed saved.

THE demand for seed sweet corn from canners who have had a prosperous season seems to put the price so high that it becomes a serious matter for the average seedsman to ask his market garden customers to pay three dollars or more per peck.

SWEET CORNS quoted at top price, one because of very strong retail demand, the others because of canners' necessities, are Golden Bantam, Country Gentleman and two types of Stowell's Evergreen. All these are said to be worth $25 to $30 per 100 pounds at wholesale.

THE Wholesale Seedsman's League met at the Hardware club, New York, November 23. Former officers were reelected. General discussion of seed harvests and importations followed. Sweet corn and peas (canners' sorts), wax and bush beans, spinach and beet were all reported short.

THE use of the cental system in the garden seed trade is strongly urged. Four states require by law all seeds sold by ounce and pound. Other states differ in legal weights of sweet corns, peas, etc. All catalogue seedsmen should adopt the cental system at once. Probably more than half of the jobbers have already done so.

Holly and Green.

Holly scarcity continues. The supply will be short, the quality not yet certain. Florists may have to be satisfied with a lower grade than usual.

Bouquet green will be scarcer this year than ever known, both east and west. Old dyed stocks are exhausted.

Commercial Varieties of Alfalfa.

Increased interest in varieties of alfalfa and the need for the grower to know whether a certain variety is suitable for his neighborhood, has led to the publication under the above title of Farmers' Bulletin 757 by the United States department of agriculture. Its 24 pages are devoted to a discussion of the characteristics and habits of the nine distinctive strains now recognized in the United States as fairly distinctive commercial varieties, together with their adaptation to climatic conditions.

Seed Growing Speculation.

The inexperienced men or women who invest money in wild cat seed growing schemes before consulting competent and reliable experts can only blame themselves for any losses they may sustain in these ventures. Thrifty and diligent men have grown old in this industry, in California and elsewhere, without any of that excess of the world's wealth with which they are credited in certain extravagant announcements in newspapers of the profits in seed growing.

Beans.

Some jobbers are of the opinion that farmers will require from $1 to $1.50 advance over last season for growing garden beans, because of present very high prices for food beans.

Elevator men in Michigan are getting from farmers beans which have been grown for seedsmen from the latter's seed stock.

In the Santa Ynez Valley, Lompoc region, 40 pounds of garden beans yielded 1,200 pounds.

Bean crops in Idaho went off during November 50 per cent from October expectations.

Rocky Ford bean planting did not return seed stock.

Ground Storage of Bulbs.

In a recent paper by Eltweed Pomero, the well-known bulb grower of Donna, Tex., attention is called to the advantage of ground storage of bulbs in sections of the country where climatic conditions permit. In Texas, for example, the bulbs can be stored in the ground, where they continue to increase in size and value, and can be dug in the late winter or early spring and supplied to the northern planter in a fresh condition, with their vitality preserved, while in northern climates the bulbs must be grown in greenhouses, which means added expense and inferior bulbs, or else dug in the fall and stored until spring, and it is difficult to preserve their vitality during these long storage periods, which, however, are necessary wherever frost enters the ground. The author states that in his experience not more than 50 per cent of canna tubers obtained from warehouse storage survive, while bulbs from ground storage increase in value and there is no loss at the end of the season.

Insect Powders Irregular.

The United States Insecticide Board Announcement No. 14 shows that the makers of the following insecticides have been tried and punished under the law:

Naptha-Kale.
Cedar Spray.
Germo Animal Dip.
Feiris Cedarol Fluid.
Lime Sulphur Solution (Riches-Silver & Co.).
Bowes Blue Label Slug Destroyer.
San-O-La.
Killitol.
O. K. Fly Relief.
Kibler's Paris Green.
Fuller's Carbolic Insecticide.
Sectease.
Readeana.
Soluble Pine Oil.
Simplex.
Rat-Mum.

Seedsmen who are offered the above or other similar preparations should investigate thoroughly before stocking the same and buy only when a full legal, signed guarantee is written on every invoice.

Free Seeds Not True to Names.

That a good many people who tried this season to have a garden from free seed sent out by the government had all sorts of trouble with the seed is indicated in a speech made recently by Representative P. P. Campbell of Kansas in the house of representatives. He, like practically all his colleagues in the house and the senate, sent out 20,000 packages of government garden seed to his constituents. Evidently the responses that have come to him from his constituents have not been complimentary to the quality of the seed. He told his colleagues that they might expect to hear from their constituents about the seeds when they get home and start their campaigns. He also attacked the practice of the government in buying these seeds from dealers in foreign countries, the fact that the department of agriculture has just entered into a contract with an English firm to supply 40 tons of seed for next year's distribution having been brought out in the debate.

"What I want to get at is the policy involved," Mr. Campbell said. "Whether or not these seeds were purchased in England because it was hoped that the department would get a variety of seed that would be useful in introducing new plants into the United States or whether it was done because a lot of miscellaneous and badly mixed seeds could be purchased cheaper in England than in the United States.

"If what gentlemen have said here today be true, that the American seed growers were not competing in these bids for congressional seeds for next year, I am wondering if it is because they feel they cannot compete with the seed growers of foreign countries under present conditions."

"I know something of the character of the seeds sent out this year," he told the house, "and they were a badly mixed lot of poor seeds. Cucumber seed and cantaloupe seed were mixed indiscriminately; watermelon seed and pumpkin seed were mixed in the same package; and six separate kinds of lettuce were mixed in one small package, all marked some sort of special lettuce, and yet there were six kinds in that one little package—all poor."

Efforts were made in congress this session to abolish the free seed distribution, but without success. The usual appropriation was made for the purchase of seeds for next year's distribution.

CHRYSANTHEMUM NOVELTIES

1917

Our Novelties for 1917 are the best we have ever had. The finest of the year in the large flowering type will be—

LOUISA POCKETT

Mr. Pockett, who raised both varieties says that Louisa Pockett, will easily displace Wm. Turner as the best white in cultivation. From our knowledge of it I can endorse this statement.

In 1906 I distributed Beatrice May, which remained our standard white for years. Five years later in 1911, I distributed Wm. Turner and now after a lapse of five years, in 1917 I will distribute this sensational white that surpasses all others—Louisa Pockett.

This is a seedling from Turner but a larger flower and heavier grower.

Other splendid Novelties for 1917 will be: Nag-Ir-Roc, W. H. Waite, Pres. John Everitt, October King and Bol d'Or, January delivery, 2½ inch pots, $16.00 per dozen; $100.00 per 100.

We will also distribute Schaeffer's Phenomenal Japanese Anemones and our new Singles for 1917, are as usual, the Finest in the World.

COLUMBUS, O.—The sixth annual exhibition of vegetables and fruit of the Ohio State University Horticultural Society will be held December 14-16.

FARMERS' BULLETIN No. 753 of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., 40 pages well illustrated, is devoted to the commercial handling, grading and marketing of potatoes.

RECENT advices from Riverhead, L. I., stated that pickle manufacturers had paid $100 per ton for cauliflower, delivered on the siding at that place. It was further stated that not very long ago the growers were glad to get $20 a ton for it. It appears that the pickle manufacturers are hard pressed for stock to carry on their business.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Mushrooms, home grown, 35 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, small cases, 12½ cents; radishes, $1.50 per 100 bunches; celery, 75 to 90 cents, open crate; tomatoes, 10-lb. baskets, $1.00 to $1.40; cucumbers, per 2 dozen box, $1.75 to $2.50.

New York, Nov. 28.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $4.00; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.50 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, 10-lb. basket, $1.25 to $2.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, 50 cents to $1.00; lettuce, per package, 20 cents to $2.50.

Vegetable Prices at New York.

Potatoes at New York continued high November 25, much stock being held in storage. The following prices were quoted: Long Island (180 lbs.), $5.25 to $5.50; Maine (165 lbs.), $4.75; Canadian (180 lbs.), $4.80 to $5.25; Southern sweet (per bbl.), $2.00 to $3.00.

Cauliflower is higher, Long Island, short cut, being quoted at $4.00 and $4.25 per barrel.

At Thanksgiving the turkey market attracts particular attention. On November 25, prices for fresh killed were 33 and 34 cents per pound.

A. F. F.

Potato Prices at New York.

Joseph Hartigan, commissioner of weights and measures, has predicted that a break in potato prices will come this week. He thinks they will drop from 5 to 7 cents a pound, to 4 to 6 cents. The farmers are now shipping in larger quantities. There is always some loss in stored potatoes, and again, the recent high prices have brought about what may be called an automatic boycott, as the public has been buying less potatoes and more of other and cheaper vegetables. Commissioner Hartigan has made the interesting statement that for every dollar paid by a New York family for food, only 35 cents goes to the farmer or producer.

Oklahoma City.

Retailers say business is satisfactory in all lines. We have been having cold, snappy frosts during the nights and clear, sunny days, so that the weather conditions have been ideal. Then there has been a season of grand opera, which tended to stimulate social functions, most of which called for some floral effort; also, one or two rather large weddings, so florists have reason to remark that business is keeping up very nicely. Thanksgiving trade is always of a generous order and big things are looked for in the next few days. The stock of flowers available is excellent. Moreover, unlike many other commodities, flowers are not being affected by the high cost of living prices; for instance, special sales of carnations at 60 cents per dozen have been featured this week.

NOTES.

W. R. Maxwell, Tulsa, Okla., is building 20,000 feet of glass in that town, which will be managed by his two sons. He has been in the florist business in Alva, Okla., for several years.

PYFER & OLSEM,

Wilmette, Ill.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

The classes in floriculture visited the establishment of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell, Conn., November 18. Tom Beers acted as guide to the classes, pointing out the special features, and the varied crops grown. The trip was very enjoyable and the students all left very tired, but much impressed by the size and magnitude of the business done by this firm.

The students are engaged in the planting of bulbs and trenching of sweet peas this week.

The florists' and gardeners' club met November 23 for a discussion on the publication of an "annual." Great plans are being laid for this enterprise and it is hoped a valuable booklet will be the result.

Jens Jensen, of Chicago, spent the week end at the college. November 17 he addressed the landscape gardening students, explaining somewhat his work.

BARRINGTON, R. I.—The town authorities have appropriated $1,000 for the extermination of tree pests.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Theodore Payne of this city has been elected president of the Arboricultural Association of Southern California.

PIEDMONT, CALIF.—The city authorities have voted an additional $13,000 for park purchases in connection with Dracena and Linda parks.

LEXINGTON, KY.—Gratz park will be beautified in the spring, plans for the improvements having been drawn by Olmstead Bros., Brookline, Mass.

SAN DIMAS, CALIF.—The San Dimas Citrus Nurseries, Inc., has gone out of business and will be succeeded by the R. M. Teague Citrus Nurseries as an individual enterprise.

HAINES CITY, FLA.—The Consolidated Fruit Corporation, 204 Franklin street, New York, has purchased 3,000 acres of citrus fruit land, near here, and will develop it in the near future.

"CRANBERRY RED" may become a new color for ultra-fashionable men next spring if reports coming from Jersey are true. The dye shortage caused manufacturers to buy up entire crops in South Jersey this year to convert the Thanksgiving turkey seasoners into coloring.—Milwaukee Journal.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Trueman Latham, superintendent of trees and parkings in the District of Columbia, died at the home of his son at Fort Howard, Md., following a short illness. He had held the position since 1885. He will probably be succeeded by his son, Clifford, the present assistant superintendent.

BOSKOOP, HOLLAND, nurserymen write regarding British embargo: "This has no effect whatever on the prices of the articles which are usually shipped to the United States. England imported Azalea mollis and all kinds of hardy azaleas from Belgium, but comparatively little of other stock. In fact England paid more to America before the war than at present and this would tend to make the prices go up instead of down. The season so far has been unfavorable for some articles, for example roses and ampelopsis. Many small growers have discontinued because of low prices, having found more profit in vegetables."

Tanbark for Roofing.

A method for using waste hemlock tanbark to partially replace expensive rag stock in the manufacture of felt roofing has been developed at the forest products laboratory of the United States department of agriculture, and is now being used commercially by co-operating mills, according to an announcement made by the forest service. It is stated that, in these mills, from 20 to 30 per cent of the rags is being replaced by waste bark and that the quality of the finished product is equal to that manufactured solely from rags. According to the census of 1909, over 698,000 tons of hemlock bark is produced each year in the United States. After the tannin is extracted this bark is used for fuel purposes, for which it is said to have a value of 60 cents per ton.

In addition to the use of the bark for roofing, papers made at the forest products laboratory on the basis of 80 per cent of waste tanbark, have been successfully printed on a commercial twelve-color wall-paper printing machine, and give promise of being entirely satisfactory. Other paper of the same make-up has been made into fiber conduits by a commercial manufacturer.

Providence, R. I.

BUSINESS IN GENERAL IS GOOD.

The weather has been crisp and November has given us a taste of winter business. Parties, weddings and other social functions have all added their share and the local florists have been busy. The main supply is in cut flowers and chrysanthemums are far in excess of all other varieties. Pompons are more popular this year than ever before. Roses are about equal to the demand and the quality is better than at this time last year.

NOTES.

The Quidnick Greenhouses can be classed as a truly model range. Several houses, modern in construction and equipment, are given over to roses and carnations exclusively. The latter were formerly grown in great numbers but in recent years this place has developed into one of the largest rose growing establishments in southern New England.

John Wood has entered into an agreement with the proprietor of one of the local fruit stores to act as manager of the flower department next to the Empire theater. He opened up last week, and as the location is a central one, business should come his way.

The new store of T. J. Johnston & Co. will be ready for occupancy the first of the year. Many transformations are being made, the lighting fixtures are rich and novel, and the whole establishment will present a handsome appearance.

J. Kopelman & Co. have quite an area planted to hardy inside chrysanthemums at Riverside. The crop has been of good quality but too large in quantity for this market to completely absorb them.

Smith, the Washington street florist, is using considerable newspaper space. His advertisements, while moderate in tone, are of a convincing character and are about the best in their line seen here this year.

Wm. Hoffman, of Pawtucket, has entered upon his ninth year at his Main street store. His window of green tile has stood up wonderfully and is in almost perfect condition today.

Orchids are scarce, both locally and in the Boston market. Macnair, who predicts a growing demand for this flower, reports he cannot secure enough of them to fill his orders.

Mr. Solomon, of Kresge's 5 and 10 cent store, has purchased the Empire Floral Co. establishment. The store is on a new street with low rent and should be a success.

M. J. Leach & Sons had 50 floral designs for Diamond Hill a few days ago. Timothy O'Connor is also filling many orders for this service.

West Hoboken, N. J.

Calling recently at the range of Herman C. Steinhoff, we found a great amount of stock coming forward in fine condition. In the past he has been noted for the bulbous stock which he shipped to the New York market, and for this season he will probably have more than in any previous year. One hundred thousand tulips, narcissi and hyacinths are being rooted and 50,000 lilies are in pots. Bouvardias, pink, white and red, are leading features of this range. In addition there is a variety of plant stocks, heather, hydrangeas, cyclamens and rubbers being noteworthy. He has another range and nursery at West Norwood, N. J., where much stock is grown. Anthony J. Dwyer, who for a time conducted a retail store in Hoboken, has sold it and is again at the Steinhoff range.

Although Oscar Boehler does an extensive business in designing and decorating, he has considerable glass and works it to the limit. The surplus that he grows is sold in the New York market, but he is an extensive buyer of roses and other stock not grown at his range. At present he is bringing forward a large stock of bulbs. Carnations, callas and other stocks are also grown.

W. Gullicksen has a fine store at 130 Summit avenue, "the Junction," and does an extensive business. He has also a considerable glass area at Secaucus, N. J., but buys extensively in the New York market to supply his retail trade. He is one of the very active young florists of this section of the state.

George Giatras makes a specialty of ferns and has brought out several new varieties and has a fine stock on hand. He recently received a shipment of 2,000 rhododendrons, and we have never seen finer stock. Acacias, bottle-brush plants and hydrangeas are also grown.

Rudolph Wittman has been cutting good stock of chrysanthemums and has also a fine stock of bouvardias. He is an extensive grower of bedding plants.

Henry Baughman is erecting a residence for his son, who is now associated with him in the business.

John Birnie is showing good carnations and working up a great stock of bedding plants. A. F. F.

Carlstadt, N. J.

Carlstadt is a near and good neighbor to Rutherford, of which we sometimes write, and has several clever and energetic florists. Emil P. Knorr has a considerable glass area. He is yet a young man, but knows his business and is full of push and vim. He is now about through cutting a very fine stock of chrysanthemums, about the last being a splendid stock of Major Bonnaffon. Though there has been much complaint this fall relating to the low prices on chrysanthemums, he says that he has been well satisfied, which shows that his stock was good. He also grows a great stock of bedding plants.

Fred Luther makes a specialty of designing, though he also grows quite a variety of stock, also doing a seed business. His place is neat and well cared for. A. F. F.
